

BAD DEBT COLLECTED BY SHERIFF ASCHIM

Tillamook county will be better off by the sum of $350, provided Louis Smith, Jr., pays an old score due the county for a bootlegging fine back in 1922, which he says he expects to do.

In 1922, Smith was arrested for operating a still up on the Miami, and was convicted before Justice Stanley for violating the prohibition law. He was fined $300, but gave bonds and appealed the case to the circuit court. He was later convicted in the upper court and was fined $500 and given six months in jail. He was allowed five days under his bond to raise money, when he would be paroled as to the jail sentence. But Smith, however, jumped his bail and disappeared from sight in this neck of the woods. But Aschim had him on his bad debt sheet.

Recently he came back, and Wednesday last was seen on the streets of this city. He was going east in his auto, when Sheriff Aschim discovered he was leaving town, and the latter got into his auto and gave chase. Smith kept ahead for 40 miles, maneuvering so that the sheriff could not pass him, until the Yamhill line was passed. Here Aschim arrested him. Smith objected to Aschim's jurisdiction under the law. The latter said: "Well, you're under arrest, and I can take you to the nearest Yamhill magistrate. If you want to save time you would better agree to go back with me!" "All right," said Smith, seeing that Aschim knew his business, and so back they came. Smith is now in the county jail, and his case will come up before Judge Bagley next week, and in the event, he pays out, Tillamook county will be ahead $350 bucks of the realm. As a county bad debt collector, Sheriff Aschim is always on the job.

His son, C. Larson went immediately upon receipt of the news, and Mrs. Larson followed later. The funeral occurred last Tuesday the 29th inst. Deceased is survived by his widow, and one son, C. FISH WAS CAUGHT ON ANOTHERS LINE

A Tillamook fisherman who was down on the Nostucca last Sunday, states that the river was lined with Portland fishermen. Some were lucky, but the Tillamooker noticed one poor chap who seemed discouraged. He had been fishing nearly all day, and had not a fin to show for his work. The fellow asked the Tillamooker to take his salmon rod and try it. The man complied, and pretty soon hooked something. It proved to be somebody's else line. Tillamooker found the loose end of the line and began to wind it up, when there came a tug at the unseen end of the line and then the local man got busy, and for several minutes things were lively thereabouts. Finally, a big 15 pound salmon broke water, and was gaffed. While it was not one of those perfectly fresh boys that cavort in covered with sea-lice from the vasty deep, yet, it was a fair fish, at that, and when the local man presented it to the Portlander, the latter was delirious with joy.

Said the Portlander: "My wife told me I wouldn't get a fish, but I'll make her eat her prediction this time!" The line attached to the fish was about 75 feet long, and quite accidentally the hook thrown out caught under the floating line to which the fish was hooked, and that's the way the Portlander got his fish, and incidentally, it is believed, escaped some caustic remarks from his better half, upon his return home.

FORMER SHERIDAN MAN RATES HIGH IN LAW

W. O. Sims, the Portland lawyer who is defending Steve Scroggins, the Sheridan banker on charges which caused his indictment in the United States circuit court, was in the city Monday on legal business. Years ago, a young man by name of Sims taught school at Sheridan, and while he taught, he read law, and finally was admitted to practice. He has made a success in his chosen profession, and now stands well up as an attorney in Portland. In fact, he is said to be one of the coming attorneys of the state, and his defense of Scroggins up to the time of the filing of new charges against the defendant, has been masterly. Whether he will clear the Sheridan man on the recent charges, remains to be seen.

F. HEYD FUNERAL HELD BY MASONS

The funeral services of the late Frank Heyd were held in the Masonic lodge hall in this city last Friday afternoon. The attendance was large, and was composed of those who had known the deceased in his lifetime and who respected him as a man and as a neighbor. Rev. Anderson, pastor of the Presbyterian church delivered an excellent sermon, in which he paid a high eulogy to the life and character of the deceased. This was followed by the Masonic funeral service, which was impressive in its character and scope.

On Saturday last the remains were prepared for forwarding to the old home town of the deceased in Kirksville, Mo., where interment will be had, it is presumed under the direction of the Masonic lodge, to which the late brother belonged before coming to Tillamook.

The remains were accompanied by Mrs. Heyd, the widow and by Jacob Heyd, the father of deceased. Both the latter will return to Tillamook in the near future.

Dr. Robinson reports the birth of a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Holden January 23.

PLAN TO SWAP SUBSCRIBERS

A conference was held in Portland last week by representatives of the County Telephone company and the Pacific States Telegraph and Telephone company in which the matter of exchanging subscribers to the two companies was discussed. The Pacific States company, it is said, made a proposition to swap its country subscribers for the city subscribers to the County Telephone company, but it is understood that subscribers to the latter company made objection, and the matter was dropped for the time. It is asserted, however, that the Bell company offered to the farmers a charge of 50 cents per month for exchange service. It is further understood that a representative of the Pacific States company is now on the ground here, in the interest of some sort of an arrangement looking to an exchange of its country subscribers for the other company's city subscribers. It was urged that such an arrangement would be beneficial to both companies.

housing of the big crowd, which by the way, will be no small job of itself. It is planned to have a tent city, with electric lights, water and other conveniences, within the city during the sojourn of the visitors.

The Elks committee will purchase about nine hundred pounds of Tillamook cheese which has been well cured, and give it away to the guests in advertisement of Tillamook's leading industry.

The Coliseum theatre has donated that playhouse to the Elks for the night of February 7th, when a show will be staged by the Elks in which local musical talent, and Portland vocalists of high order, will join in a fine programme, the proceeds to go to the Elks entertainment fund.

C. J. McNaughton arrived here from Portland Tuesday, to make arrangements for the production of the second annual musical comedy in the interests of the Elks entertainment fund, and it is expected that the comedy will be placed on the boards at the armory anywhere from the 15th of February to the first of March next. Those who know Mr. McNaughton, feel assured that the date finally selected for the comedy will bring an overflowing house.

To the Live: About the Dead

Twentieth Century

Three thousand years ago lived an Egyptian King named TUT-ANKH-AMEN. The name sounded like a stutter, so fellow Luxorites called him "Tut" for short.

When "Tut" reached the DANGEROUS AGE, and finally succeeded in producing the "Staycomb" effect with his somewhat luxuriant locks, he up and died. Dying was one of the leading indoor sports then, and "Tut's" death was a Major League event. They proceeded to (w)rap him as per custom in a series of layers and finally deposited the remains in a tomb in the Valley of Departed Kings.

Three thousand years later, a party of Anti-Volsteaders while, exploring for a fit spot for "still" development work, dug up 'Tut's' tomb with all the medieval relics buried with him. Then the advertising men stepped in and took charge, and in a few weeks gave 'Tut' a reputation which shades CHARLIE CHAPLIN, DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS and MARY PICKFORD into oblivion by comparison.

Dead three thousand years! Forgotten! Lost! Then 'BANG'—advertised, and the whole world clamored for more news of 'Tut'.

If advertising can put that much life into something dead for three thousand years, what will it do for a LIVE SUBJECT or PRODUCT? For a LIVE BUSINESS? OUR BUSINESS?

They might have dug up a hundred 'Tuts', and if they kept the news to themselves, only a few bookworms and historians would have ever heard of it.

Moral: You might have the best product in the world, but unless you TELL them about it, your business will slumber peacefully to death.

And that is why we advertise to you folks in Tillamook County. We want you to know that we have a science that REALLY and ACTUALLY Adjusts the causes of such trouble as paralysis, heart trouble, diabetes, high blood pressure, tonsillitis, pneumonia, neuritis, tuberculosis, fevers, mumps, deafness and every other affliction you have ever heard of. When you stop to think of it wouldn't it be about the most suicidal business policy to spend real money on these advertisements to tell you these things if we couldn't make good on what they say. The reason PACKARD, CHICKERING, TIFFANY and VICTROLA spent real money to advertise is because they have the best in the world in their particular line. So have We. We practice the most nearly perfect cure in the world for all disease. Bar NONE.
