POLITICIANS ARE BUSY

the farmers of Tillamook county, are almost unanimously refusing to support him. Statements made by many farmers are to the effect that the farmers do not care to elect a man to represent them in the next legislature whose interest in Tillamook county is to represent a big timber company from Michigan, which happens to own timber in this county. Hawkins' friends admit that this kind of talk among the farmers is hurting his chances for election.

Mr. Winslow is conducting a quiet but forcible campaign and has the backing of the farmers and many business men of this city. It can probably be safely said that the result of this race will depend upon the votes of the cities of Tillamook, Bay City, Garibaldi, Wheeler and Nehalem, as it is believed that the timbermen's vote which is claimed by Hawkins will just about offset the farmers vote which from present indications will be solid for Winslow.

Attorney George P. Winslow, candidate for the office of representative in the next legislature for Tillamook county was forced to abandon all politics the latter part of last week on account of the death of his father-in-law, C. L. Prince of Salem. Mr. Winslow immediately upon hearing of his father-in-law's death left for Salem to join Mrs. Winslow who has been at her father's bedside for more than five weeks.

During Mr. Winslow's absence, Hawkins shot the first gun of his campaign by causing many posters to be placed in the windows of business houses of Tillamook. Many of these posters have for some unknown reason, disappeared from their places. It is a well known fact that the business men of Tillamook are supporting Mr. Winslow for this office.
