A telegram from Barnett H. In the near future a refrigerator window will be installed to take care of fresh fish and crabs. Mr. Linecum expects to handle a full line of meats, fish and wholesale and retail poultry. His family will locate permanently in Tillamook. Frank Hubler will continue his services in the market.

TILLAMOOK ENTER-TAINS THOUSANDS

partment, aided by an adequate water supply that may well be the envy of many cities much larger than Tillamook, for at this time of year a water supply sufficient to combat a stubborn fire for three long hours is very rare among the towns of the size of Tillamook.

There are towns on this coast that boomed themselves to death and at present people are leaving them in hordes seeking other places suitable to their line of work and conforming to their vision of a desirable place in which to live. Many of them are looking for a place such as Tillamook. Our own people, those who have already established themselves in the community and its life, are preparing to show the visitor the best we have. We have had several state conventions of fraternal and industrial organizations and we are preparing for more in the near future. There are several places still needing "new paint" and if we "save the surface we save all."

DEATH OF CALVIN COOLIDGE JR. FELT BY ENTIRE NATION

Although the President and his family asked that no nation wide official period of mourning be observed upon the sad occasion of the death of his youngest son, sorrow is perhaps more universal than that felt upon similar tragedies that have occurred at the White House in recent years.

During the last ten years Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Theodore Roosevelt, Warren G. Harding and Woodrow Wilson have passed on and upon each of these occasions flags were flown at half mast and the nation went into mourning at a request from the capitol. An official request from the bereaved family, in this present tragedy is wholly unnecessary, for the grief and real sadness is felt through out the nation. In the loss of Calvin Coolidge Jr. the grown up and the statesman feel that the nation has been called upon to give up a vast amount of virile Americanism, for Calvin was evidently a courageous and clean cut young American with wonderful potentialities. To the youth of the land a keen sense of the loss of a pal is felt. His position as one of the country's first boys was probably more enviable to the average young American than the President's chair itself.

WHEELER vs. WARRENTON AT NEHALEM

The ball game at Nehalem, Sunday, between Warrenton and Wheeler, was attended by a good sized crowd.

A bunch of Wheeler enthusiasts accompanied their team and endeavored the occasion by their strenuous "rooting" for their favorites. Warrenton team were enormously handicapped by the absence of their regular pitcher Ely, he being on his vacation, and in consequence, had to use two substitutes, who, however, have never made any pretensions as to their pitching ability, however, the Warrenton team, as a whole, played nice ball and made a game but futile effort to win.

The Wheeler team played a clean, fast game and deserved to win, the work of Anderson, their pitcher being giltedge, he striking out 11 and holding his opponents to 5 hits, as against 10 hits, garnered off of Coma, who worked 4 innings, and Walker, who finished the game. The batteries were Anderson and Heisel for Wheeler, and Coma, Walker and Patterson, for Warrenton. The features of the game were the clean, snappy fielding of the Wheeler team and a spectacular one handed catch of a high fly in right field by Dean of Warrenton. Final score, Wheeler 10, Warrenton 4.

Early in the week Reta Rogers hit a trailer at the corner of 3rd street and 3rd avenue. E. Mrs. Clarence Hannekranz had a minor collision when she stopped her car on the Pleasant Valley road to rescue a small dog belonging to friends. The car was wrecked, but neither he nor his companion was seriously hurt. C. S. Ward, driving a Union all truck, was hit by a car that was trying to pass a long string of cars on the highway near Beaver. R. D. Hill's car hit the rear end of a car belonging to Frank Still and knocked off a baggage carrier. A car driven by Fred Doane, of Portland turned into a driveway driven by Richard Dannels, also of Portland, at a point a mile and a half south of Garibaldi, at a narrow grade. This kept the Doane car from going over the grade. Only one bright light on the car driven by Leo Johnson, of Beaver, blinded L. E. Springer, of Salem, so that he was unable to see the road, and as a result both cars were damaged, Johnson's going in the ditch.
