The following communication has been received from Lieutenant Colonel C. F. Andrews, of the recruiting office in Portland: Mr. Citizen and American:—

In order to correct any misconception, you are furnished the following epitome of what the Defense Day test scheduled for September 12th, is and what it is not.

What it is—It is an explanation test of mobilization plans. These plans, made by the war department, for National Defense, the citizens have a right to know and should know. It is democratic. Enrollment on this day is equivalent to saying "I believe in National Defense." The primary purpose is to enable our people to visualize the initial processes necessary to muster our forces in the event of a national emergency, and to avoid the danger of delay, should war be thrust upon us.

What is it not—It is not a mobilization. It is not an enrollment for any future war, and is not an obligation for service, any where, any time. Do you believe in preparedness or defenselessness? Think this over and line up with something; an enrollment or attendance at some service on September 12, 1924.

NEW EXPLOSIVE PYROTOL OFFERED FOR FARM USE

The new war explosive pyrotol will be distributed in Oregon this fall by the college extension service. Complete details of cost and method of distribution will be announced soon, says George W. Kable, agricultural engineer. It is similar to sodatol, almost a million pounds of which have been used by Oregon farmers.

The average cost of sodatol as reported by 13 agencies cooperating with the extension service in distribution, was $7.77 per hundred pounds laid down, that of Pacific stumping powder 16.67.

Only two complaints of the quality of sodatol reached Mr. Kable, who directed the distribution. One of these was where the explosive became wet and would not explode. Two cases of stock poisoning were reported, both due to careless handling. No accidents were reported.

The charge of 75 cents a hundred to cover actual handling proved too great and the extension service is refunding 26 cents a hundred, totaling $2546 to the 2691 farmers who used the material. Tillamook County received 49,400 pounds distributed by W. D. Pine.

CONSUMPTION OF PAPER IN U. S.

In 1922 the people of the United States consumed more than 8,000,000 tons of paper, more than all other countries in the world combined. In the manufacture of this total the industries of the United States and of several other countries utilized about 5,847,000 tons of new wood pulp, which in turn was secured from about 9,148,000 cords of pulp wood. In addition the United States re-used in its own mills in 1919, the last year for which data are available, slightly in excess of 1,850,000 tons of waste paper, in which wood pulp constituted 85 per cent of the raw material.

Consumption of nonforest materials though important for specialized products, is relatively small. We used in paper manufactured in the United States in 1919 slightly more than 275,000 tons of rags, 115,000 tons of manila stock, 350,000 tons of straw and 105,000 tons of all other nonforest materials, all of which are insignif-cant in volume in comparison with wood in present-day paper manufacture.
