HOME-GROWN FURNITURE FOR NORTH CAROLINA

Home-grown lumber to supply North Carolina's important furniture industry is one of the state's greatest needs, according to Director E. H. Frothingham of the Appalachian Forest experiment station. "This leading industry of the state," declared Mr. Frothingham recently, "makes demands upon the forest for high-grade lumber not called for by any other local wood-using industry. Where 15 years ago practically all of this lumber was grown within the state, today as much as a third comes from outside, mainly from the Mississippi Valley.

"The furniture industry of North Carolina has grown tremendously of late years. In the decade 1909-1919 the value of manufactured furniture increased nearly four-fold. North Carolina is one of the leading furniture manufacturing states in the union, far outranking any of the other Southern States in consumption of raw material, value of finished product, number of plants, and number of wage earners engaged. But the continuance of this wealth-producing resource of the State depends vitally on the question of timber supply."

Mr. Frothingham believes that the Mississippi valley supplies, drawn upon as they are by other states than North Carolina, possibly in increasing amounts, can not be counted upon for much more than 20 or 25 years longer. When labor and transportation costs of imported timber are also considered, the urgency of maintaining and increasing the local timber supplies is obvious. The forest service experts are confident that North Carolina can grow ample domestic timber supplies if there is sufficient public interest in setting a work present id timberlands within the state.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED TO SHERIFF ASCHIM?

Considerable doubt was felt regarding the heretofore unquestioned integrity of Sheriff Aschim, when a letter was received from Jacksonville, Florida, this week, enclosing the sheriff's railroad ticket.

It seems that a gentleman of African extraction found the slip of cardboard and turned it in to a ticket agent at the Florida town, who sent it on to Tillamook.

Now the associates of the Tillamook county sheriff are wondering what kind of company their superior could have fallen into that he reached such a condition that he would lose his railroad ticket.

Sheriff Aschim, who is head of the Oddfellows in this state, was on his way to a national convention of the lodge in Atlanta.

People are wondering; that's all.

Don Gilbert is the new proprietor of the Blaine store, formerly managed by Earl Ayer. Don is the son of W. J. Gilbert, proprietor of the store at Beaver. Don is making many new and attractive improvements. The outlook is for a bigger and better business for this fall.

Earl Ayer is building a new store building just across the road from the Blaine school and expects to be back in business in a very short time. Blaine is taking on the appearance of a real live village.

FORTY-YEAR-OLD DOUGLAS FIR MAKES PROFITABLE CUTTING

Among many interesting things encountered in a recent field trip thru Oregon and Washington in search of pure stands of Douglas fir of even age, Junior Forester R. E. McArdle of the Pacific Northwest Forest experiment station tells of coming across a portable saw-mill in the midst of a 43-year old stand of Douglas fir. In this timber that had attained approximately but one-third of its full growth the mill operators were making a profitable cutting of ties and side lumber.

The field trip through this region is the first advance of the new Pacific Northwest station toward getting complete information of the timber yield that can be expected from Douglas fir in pure, even-aged stands at different ages. This will follow up and amplify the work of the old Wind River Forest experiment station at Stabler, Oregon, and will consist of establishing sample study plots in trees of all age classes from 40 to 140 years, on every variety of soil and in every climatic region of western Oregon and Washington.

HEALTH EDUCATION NOTES

"Working for Dear Life" is the title of a film produced by the Metropolitan Life Insurance company. This film interestingly tells the story of the average man who scoffs at the idea of a periodical health examination until he is forced by circumstances to take the opposite point of view. The picture was booked in several places in the state during the month of June, and proved to be very successful as it is entertaining as well as instructive.

A number of requests have come in from other counties for the use of the film, and arrangements are being made whereby it will be in the state during the entire month of November. There are no charges for its use except the payment of transportation. It is extremely difficult to route a film without overlapping of dates; this can only be avoided by early reservations, and any county health association planning to use this picture, should make application at once.

A total of almost ten thousand chore records has been sent out during the past week, for the Health Crusade. Mrs. Bertha L. Denton, school nurse, has installed the Crusade in all the Medford schools.

Miss Alice Marquardt was invited by the superintendent of schools to present the subject of the Crusade before a meeting of the teachers and, as a result, it is to be taken up by the schools in La Grande and Elgin.

Instead of awarding the pins, a competitive scheme will be followed; every room having an hundred per cent Crusade record for a month will receive a large gold star. At the end of the year a banner will be awarded by this association to the room having the greatest number of stars.

Clackamas county, under the direction of Miss Pearson and Miss Howard, is planning to pursue a "laboratory method" in the conduct of the Crusade. It will be installed in only a few schools where the teachers are especially interested in health work, and carried on intensively with the assistance of the nurses.

Shortly before the close of school announcement was made by the National Tuberculosis association of the awards made in the national tournament. Oregon Crusaders received four pennants for making hundred per cent records. The victorious Crusaders belonged to the following schools: Berlin, Linn county, Mrs. Laura J. Blume, teacher; Ione, Morrow county, Miss Juanita Rietmann; Umapine, Umatilla county, Mrs. Gladys C. Anderson; Wilsonville, Clackamas county, Miss Menga Bat-algia.

Any grade, or school with more than seven pupils, may enter the National Tournament and by making an hundred per cent record—that is, each child performing 54 or more chores each week for a period of twelve weeks—will receive a pennant. With so many schools beginning their Crusade early in the year, Oregon ought to win more than four pennants this year.

New pamphlets and other supplies have been added to the health education material, and complete lists of this may be obtained from the office. An unusually good outline of a health education program that might be carried out in any school was prepared by Miss Jean Melvin in her university work last year, and based upon her experience in a rural school. It is very suggestive and shows the many possibilities for constructive health work that lie in the average school, if they are properly evaluated and developed. This report will be issued in the October number of the "Crusade Lance and Shield;" extra copies will be available if ordered in advance.

Later in the year the bulletin will contain the program of health teaching carried out by Miss Anne Simpson at the Buckman school. Miss Simpson was awarded the $500 scholarship given by the American Child Health association for excellence in health teaching. Her outline shows how physical education, nutrition, and training in health habits may be successfully correlated, not only with each other, but with all studies in the curriculum as well.

For full time school nurse service, Miss Maude Agnes Covalt has been chosen to work in the city of Klamath Falls. Miss Covalt comes from Augusta, Kansas, and assumed her duties about September 1st in preparation for the opening classes.

The Eugene Parent-Teacher council is very much interested in instituting a goitre prevention program in the schools there. A petition was presented to the school board recently asking for the employment of a school nurse, as a part of the prevention program.
