TEN COWS MAKE PROFIT OF SIXTY

"Cows like these support you," was the legend characterizing ten cows in the Riverside (Calif.) Cow Testing association, whose pictures were hung up in a farm bureau booth display at the Southern California fair by Assistant Farm Advisor John Q. McDonald.

With each picture was the record made by the cow in a year's test. The ten cows had made a total of 5,668.6 pounds of butterfat, which when valued at $1 per pound, gave a gross return of $5,668.60.

The total cost of feed was $2,145.20, which left a difference of $3,523.40, or $352.34 per cow net above cost of feed.

The ten cows, seven of which were Holsteins; two Guernseys; and one Jersey, gave a good living for a family and good wages for the milker.

On the other side of the booth were pictures and records of ten other cows entitled, "Cows like these you support." They had produced 2,191 pounds of butterfat having a total value of $2,190.10.

The cost of feed was $1,677.80 and the net profit above feed cost to pay for care and milking, risk interest on investment, etc., was $512.30.

In order to make as much profit above the cost of feed as the ten best cows made, the keeper of the ten making the poorest return would have had to milk over 60 such cows.

Another excellent lesson taught by this exhibit was that the appearance of a cow is no sure indication of her ability as a producer.

The appearance of some of the low producers would, no doubt, have sold them for a higher price than some of the high producers, if the production records of the two were not known.

Frye's Delicious Ham
no more delightful way to spread Christmas cheer
"Christmas comes but once a year" and thousands of Northwest housewives make their plans for the festive board from their experience throughout the other twelve months.
Those who give their families the all-year-round treat of Frye's "Delicious" Ham know that it never varies in quality—and they have found its unusual goodness and delightful mild flavor so appetizing that it will surely occupy an important place on many holiday menus.
In no way can you better prepare for the unexpected guest than by baking a bit of a Frye's "Delicious" Ham just as you would a fresh pork roast, using powdered cinnamon, cloves, mustard and brown sugar. Use a covered roaster with enough water to make steam. The young, tender pork of Frye's "Delicious" Ham requires only fifteen minutes' baking to the pound.
