The First Mountaineer.
A Mountain owner has been searching the records of history to discover who were the first mountain climbers. It gives the name to Moses for his ascent of Mount Sinai and rules out Noah for his ascent of Mount Ararat because he made it in a boat. There is sufficient evidence to show that the ancients thought mountain climbing sheer madness. No one in the time of Horace or Polybius wanted to go climbing for a summer holiday. A Chinese emperor in the seventh century was the first to make climbing fashionable in the east, but the first true tourists in Europe seem to have been Dante, Petrarch and Leonard. Then came the Emperor Maximilian I, who used to hunt in the mountains near Innsbruck, and after him Conrad von Gesner and Josias Simler explored the Swiss mountains. But climbing for pleasure such as we know it today was not thought of until quite recently.

BEFORE THE CAMERA.

The Best Pose, as a Rule, is For the Three-quarter Face.

How very few people really know how to sit for photographic! Every face has its weak points, and these, unmercifully, have a way of cropping up in a picture and ruining the effect. Of course a photograph should be absolutely lifelike, but at the same time one naturally prefers to look one's best. Scarcely one face in a hundred has features perfect enough to promise a satisfactory photograph in profile, for this pose brings any little defect into the foreground.

For a full face picture a sitter must possess fine eyes, above all things. If they are good the pose will be a success, even if the other features are lacking in comeliness.

If one has any pronounced defects to hide, the three-quarter face is really the happiest way to be photographed. This position enhances the charms of the beautiful and tones down the irregularities of the plain face.

It is never well to be photographed in a hat distinctly modern style, for in a year or so the picture is ruined by the old fashioned headgear. But a picture hat—such as those worn by the Gainsborough women—makes a most picturesque setting for a beautiful face, and this, of course, is never out of fashion—London Answers.

THE HUMMING BIRD.

Known as a Flower to Which God Has Granted Wings.

Our continent has a monopoly of humming birds, the name of the feathered creature. Of these there are said to be as many as 400 species, most of which confine themselves to the tropical regions.

Only eighteen varieties live farther north than Mexico. It is generally thought that humming birds live upon honey. This, however, is a mistake. They do derive some honey, it is true, but most of their food consists of the small insects which inhabit certain flowers.

The little bird is therefore useful as well as beautiful and is often called a power to which God has granted wings.

Humming birds are so small that when they are captured for commercial purposes it is impossible to use even the smallest shot for fear of injuring their skin. They are therefore stunned with a drop of water from a blowgun or syringe and fall into a net when they are quickly poisoned.

Humming birds vary in size from three-half as large as a sparrow to those about the size of a bee. Their flight is so swift that they can be well seen only when poised on a flower—Ave Maria.

The Train Robbers.

"Yes," said the distinguished foreigner traveling in this country and being interviewed by the busy reporter—"I've gone about quite a bit in this tall big country, y' see. And I can't help wonderin' why your bloomin' government doesn't catch the train robbers and lock them up by Jove!"

"Train robbers?" said the American. "Why, have you met up with train robbers already?"

"Tubby Shaw! Tubby Shaw!"

"Who's that?"

"I mention 'em, yes, I have. These bandits black their faces, y' know, and that they come in very politely and take me money."

The American thought it over, and then it began to dawn upon him that this was only another story about Pullman porters—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Her Mistake.

"While in Kansas City last week I had occasion to dictate some notes to a hotel stenographer in regard to a coming convention," said a Chicago man. "I began one paragraph with this statement:

"On Wednesday evening the visitors will be the guests of the various fraternal organizations having clubhouses in the city."

"This particular paragraph came back typewritten thus:

"On Wednesday evening the visitors will be the guests of the various freight terminal organizations having clubhouses in the city."—Chicago Post

The Moon's Offering.

Looking out of the window one evening, little Marie saw the bright full moon in the eastern sky and apparently only a few inches from the beautiful Jupiter shining almost as brightly as the moon itself. Marie gazed intently at the specimen for a moment and then, turning to her mother, exclaimed:

"Oh, mother, look! The moon has laid an egg!"—New York Press.

Not Attractive.

Mrs. De Good—Why aren't you going to church? Mr. De Good—Last Sunday the roof leaked, and three or four drops went down my back. Mrs. De Good—The roof has been repaired since then. Mr. De Good—Huh! Then they'll be wanting money to pay for the repairs.—New York Weekly.
