Spring Millinery Opening

Monday and Tuesday, March 10th and 11th

TO WHICH WE INVITE ALL OUR FRIENDS AND PATRONS

EVERY new and novel idea introduced by leading Foreign and American milliners will be broadly displayed. Our unquestioned leadership in the selling of high class millinery at popular prices is well known. The BIG STORE receives what publicity it needs chiefly from the gratification of its constantly widening circle of customers. The distinctive feature that has made this branch of our business so extraordinarily successful is very clearly shown. It can be described in a single phrase—BEAUTY THAT DOESN'T COST MUCH!

No hats are more beautiful than ours—none can be. We get the best creations from clever designers, also those that our own splendid milliners produce. But we do not ask and can see no reason for the extravagant prices that many city milliners ask. March 23 is Easter; already our workrooms are full to overflowing with orders. We suggest an early inspection.

When hats and trimmings are purchased here our expert designer will trim your hat without additional charge. —BALCONY SECTION.

We Sound the First Note of Easter in this Exhibit of New Gowns, Dresses, Suits and Wraps

YOU will be entranced with the showing which we are making this season of garments for evening and semi-dress occasions, as well as for street wear. Every fashionable fabric is represented and each one reflects the last thought of the style creators of the fashion world in Dresses, Gowns, Coats and Suits.

Again we invite one and all to our display opening in our balcony section.

Special Monday and Tuesday—double GOLD BOND Trading Stamps with each 10c purchase in the balcony.

NEW PRESIDENT IS INAUGURATED

The Usual Ceremonies Attend Induction Into Office of Woodrow Wilson

Washington.—Woodrow Wilson became the 28th president of the United States Tuesday, amid imposing ceremonies and tumultuous scenes of popular greeting. Standing at the historic east front of the capitol he took the constitutional oath of office, and in his brief inaugural address made a fervid appeal to all patriotic men for counsel and aid.

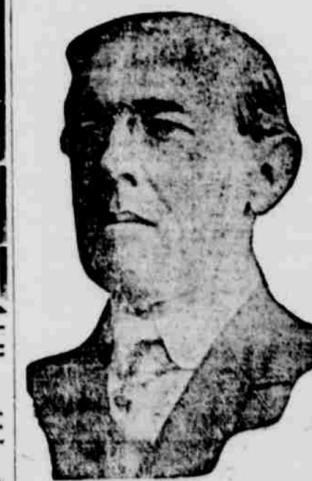

The program arranged for the pageant and ceremony was virtually the same as that of other inaugurations of recent years. The two big features of the day were the induction of the president and vice president into office at the capitol and the parade that followed these ceremonies.

At 9:45 A. M., Mr. Wilson and Mr. Marshall, accompanied by the congressional committee, began the short drive to the White House. The party whirled up the drive to find President Taft waiting to welcome the incoming president and vice president on the front portico.

At 10:17 o'clock the ride to the capitol began. In the first carriage were President Taft and Mr. Wilson, Mr. Taft occupying the right hand seat. With them were Senators Crane and Bacon. In the second carriage Mr. Marshall sat at Senator Overman's right; and with him was also Representative Rucker. In the third carriage came Representatives McKinley and Garrett.

President Taft and Mr. Wilson were at once escorted to the president's room, where Mr. Taft at once took up the work of signing bills. Mr. Marshall went to the vice president's room accompanied by members of the committee.

At 11:30 o'clock committees from the house and senate waited on President Taft in the marble room and gave formal notification that congress was ready to adjourn.

WOODROW WILSON. The President Who Will Rule the Nation for the Next Four Years.

At 11:45 o'clock Vice-President Marshall, accompanied by the congressional committee, was ushered into the senate chamber and given a seat in the front row, facing the presiding officer, and when all the guests were assembled he stepped up to the desk and at 12:34 o'clock took the oath.

The march from the senate chamber to the east front of the capitol where the oath of office was administered followed. President Wilson was led by the senate sergeant-at-arms. Behind them came the justices of the United States supreme court wearing flowing judicial robes over their overcoats. Wilson and Taft, walking, followed. Wilson removed his hat to test the weather and a gale of wind quickly disarranged his hair. He replaced his hat immediately.

At 2:05 o'clock the new president entered a four-horse carriage and returned to the White House. He took the right hand seat. To his left rode William H. Taft, the retiring president. Opposite Wilson sat Senator Bacon of Georgia and opposite Taft sat Senator Crane of Massachusetts. Crane and Bacon were members of the congressional inaugural committee.

Behind the presidential party came

TAFT'S LAST DAY BUSY ONE

Retiring President Finds Regret Overshadowed by Pleasant Memories

Washington.—President Taft's last day in the White House was one of his busiest. As a working day it did not last more than ten hours, but it was crowded with unusual events, full of incidents that fall to the man who sits in the White House, and crowned with pleasantries. The president shook hands with several hundred citizens and officials of the government; received scores of telegrams from friends all over the world; signed his name to pile after pile of pictures and letters and held three receptions.

He quitted the room he has occupied for four years in the executive offices with a smile and without a backward glance, and with many a pleasant recollection of the days he has spent there. He met his old time friends of the Washington diplomatic corps and the justices of the supreme court in the White House, and, last of all, he gave the first formal welcome in that mansion to the president-elect and Mrs. Wilson.

Marshall Fills Long Vacant Office

Washington.—For the first time in many months the United States possesses a vice president. When Thomas R. Marshall, of Indiana, took the oath in the senate chamber, the vacancy in that office caused by the death last year of former Vice President Sherman was filled.

Known Casualties 400

Washington.—Although the known casualties for inauguration day and night reached a total of about 400, few were serious and most of them were of minor nature.

Many of the injured, especially those who received burns at the display of fireworks, went for treatment in the downtown section without the aid of ambulances.

troops of cavalry, infantry and bands. Mrs. Wilson and her daughters also occupied carriages in the triumphal march from the capitol to the White House. The trip up Pennsylvania avenue was one continued ovation, with President Wilson, holding his silk hat in his hand, bowing to right and left. Retiring President Taft sat back solemnly in his seat, looking stolidly at the crowd.

The inaugural parade was declared the most pretentious of any in history in length, numbers, and novel features. It was unique. For nearly three hours it wended its way through Pennsylvania avenue.

CAPITAL WARMLY GREET'S WILSON

Washington.—No president-elect has ever found the capital of the nation whose destinies he is to guide more brilliantly arrayed or more abundant with enthusiasm than Woodrow Wilson.

Mr. Wilson and his family arrived at 3:45 o'clock Monday afternoon. With them in special trains came students from Princeton University, who formed a lane from the train shed to the president's room in the station, where the inaugural reception committee of senators, representatives and citizens awaited the Wilson family.

One of Mr. Wilson's last acts as a private citizen was to call, with Mrs. Wilson upon the president and Mrs. Taft. The president-elect and Mrs. Wilson were escorted to the White House soon after their arrival. President and Mrs. Taft received them in the Blue room.

Surrounded by cheering thousands, the president-elect and members of his family were hastened from the station, escorted by the official reception committee to their hotel.

The dome of the capitol glistened under a brilliant sun as they passed and the city presented a panorama of patriotic color as viewed from the hill. Smiling in the glow of a kindly day and bowing to the plaudits of the people, the former president of Princeton University, who rose through the governorship of New Jersey to the highest office in the land, looked happy.

Before visiting the White House the Wilsons received the vice-president-elect and Mrs. Marshall, Governor Sulzer, of New York; Governor Pothier, of Rhode Island, and staff, and a few personal friends. First, however, immediately after their arrival at the hotel, the president-elect, Mrs. Wilson and their daughters, joined in an informal reunion with other members of the family who have assembled from different parts of the country.

OREGON SESSION ADJOURNS

Overriding 29 of the 40 Vetoed Bills Legislature Adjourns Sine Die

Salem, Or.—The Twenty-seventh Legislative Assembly passed into history at 11:40 o'clock Tuesday night.

Of the 40 vetoed bills of Governor West, 29 were passed notwithstanding the veto and 11 vetoes were sustained. Of the 29 that were passed, 19 were salary bills.

Some of the bills passed were of large import, including the Rogue river fishing bill and the bill providing for investigation of the resources of the Celilo rapids in the Columbia river.

Probably one of the most important bills which was vetoed by the governor and in which his veto was sustained was the Abbott bill, repealing the law placing the State Printer on a flat salary. In addition the legislature decided to sustain the governor's vetoes on a number of important measures, including the bill providing for the extension of the recall provisions of the constitution.

Recall Machinery Agreed On

Olympia.—Machinery for the operation of the recall in this state embracing a number of new features was agreed upon by the state senate with an unanimous vote. The bill as passed places in working shape the constitutional amendment adopted by the people at the last election opening the way for the recall of all officials excepting judges.

Geo. Loehrpabel, Wm. Tohl and O. A. Lommen of Mohler were attending court here this week. Mrs. Lommen came with Mr. Lommen on Wednesday and returned on Thursday.
