FRIDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1913.

As finally agreed upon, the income tax feature of the new tariff bill imposes an annual tax as follows: On incomes ranging from $3,000 if person is single, or $4,000 if married, to $20,000, one per cent; from $20,000 to $50,000, 2 per cent; $50,000 to $75,000, 3 per cent; $75,000 to $100,000, 4 per cent; $100,000 to $250,000, 5 per cent; $250,000 to $500,000, 6 per cent; above $500,000, 7 per cent. In figuring up his net income for purposes of taxation under the law, a business man, after deducting $3,000 for himself, or $4,000 if married, will have the right to claim the following exemptions: Necessary expenses of carrying on business, not including personal, living or family expenses. Interest paid out on indebtedness. National, state, county, school or municipal taxes paid within the year. Trade losses, or storm or fire losses not covered by insurance. Worthless debts charged off during the year. A reasonable allowance for the depreciation of property. Dividends from companies whose income has already been taxed. Interest from state, municipal or government bonds. It is a clear provision of the law, however, that the taxable person must make a return to the internal revenue collector for his entire "net income," and exemptions claimed under the law must be submitted to the federal officers for them to determine upon their reasonableness or legality. It is figured that 425,000 people will pay an income tax. It is estimated that the tax will yield $82,000,000 next year, besides the $37,000,000 produced under the present corporation tax, which is continued as part of the new law.

The third annual American Good Roads Congress, with whose presence Detroit was honored last week, accentuated the fact that this is the automobile age. While it cannot be questioned that the farmers, more than any other class, need good country roads and are benefited by them, it was not until the automobile and its influential patrons came on the scene to demand improved highways, that any extensive movement in that direction began to take shape. Now, with touring cars of all prices and sorts straining in the leash to carry city folks into God's out-of-doors, the necessity of good roads has been given a mighty impulse. A Lincoln highway across the continent, and other trunk lines longer or shorter, are projected. "State roads" are being aided in all the commonwealths. Counties are vying with each other to make their main thoroughfares of gravel, stone or cement construction. Under the old order the farmers had to bear all the cost of good road improvement. Now the cities and villages must share in the expense. All this is as it should be. While good country roads are a great boon to the farmer in his necessary work, to the automobilist they are a necessity; and he should help pay for them. One feature of good roads and the use of them by the motor car—reckless driving and insolent disregard of the rights of the rural users with their slower horse-drawn vehicles—has happily been greatly altered for the better, though there is still room for improvement in that respect. Good facilities for intercommunication are a mark of high civilization. Indeed, some one has well said that "transportation and civilization go hand in hand." Among the chief indications and means of Roman civilization were the great roads with which she belted her empire. Our country surpasses all others in her network of railroads, but her ordinary highways have been much neglected. A new era is at hand; and though it involves vast expenditure, it will be wisely made. Good roads are worth more to a people than battleships and great standing armies.

LA FOLLETTE

From Harper's Weekly.
Every member of either house who refrained from trying to embarrass the Democrats on the tariff bill deserves credit, but to one man falls the greatest share of glory for independence, because it cost him most. Especially did Senator La Follette's situation require strength of character; not only had he always been a Republican, but he had, since the Roosevelt split, come to be looked upon as likely to dominate the party in the future. As Progressiveness seemed needed to save it from destruction, La Follette's influence had suddenly been multiplied. In voting for the Democratic tariff, he gave a final proof that no consideration can prevent him from following always his conviction. This man has fought the straight fight all his life. Often the sacrifice has been great. He has given up friends, money, comfort, party praise, easy advance. He has stood abuse and suspicion. Nearly always the country and his party have come around finally to La Follette's position. This last proof of patriotism may annoy the Republican senators for the time being, but it will probably mean that La Follette's influence, even over them, will be strengthened in the end; because a man who is so experienced, strong, farsighted, and fearless is badly needed by the party now.

CHINESE REPUBLIC STUDIES OUR FOREST METHODS

David Z. T. Yui, formerly secretary to the vice-president of the Chinese Republic, is now traveling in this country to learn modern methods for adoption in China. He is at present in charge of the lecture board of the Chinese Y. M. C. A., which is in close touch with the new government and is aiding in putting into effect an educational campaign for the citizenship of the republic.
While in Washington recently Mr. Yui spent some time investigating the work of the forest service, in order that he might find out whether its organization and methods would be of value to the newly created department of agriculture and forestry in China. In speaking of this part of his work, Mr. Yui said:
"In the matter of forest conservation the United States profited much by looking upon the disasters which were the result of the Chinese neglect of forestry. This was a great warning to you. Now we wish to profit by the improved methods of forestry which the United States has discovered and applied."

In the "Astoria 30 years ago" column of last Saturday's Astorian appeared the following interesting item: "The oldest Oregon settler has been found at last. His name is G. B. Gohar; he lives six miles north of Salem. He came to Astoria in 1823. After living here awhile he went to Marion County, where he has been living for the past 50 years. The returns are all in; there are no more counties to hear from; the accounts are made up and Mr. Gohar is entitled to the distinction. We always thought that an Astorian would eventually get away with it."

NEW I. O. O. F. BUILDING READY FOR OCCUPANCY.

The new I. O. O. F. brick building which has been under construction during the past summer is now ready for occupancy. It is a fine well appointed building and a credit to the city. The total cost of the building including heating plant is $28,000.

The second story accommodates a fine lodge room 38x62, and banquet hall, 19x44. A kitchen joins the banquet hall, and other rooms and conveniences have been built in connection with the hall. The second floor is also devoted to office rooms which are occupied by the following professional men: Dr. Wendt, Dr. Boals and Dr. Jack Olson. Attorney S. S. Johnson will occupy a suite of rooms, and S. B. Whitehouse, insurance broker, will have an office there.

The first floor will be occupied by the First National Bank, A. J. Stillwell, dry goods store, and Webb Mattux, Transfer Co. Mr. Stillwell's store room is 40x101 feet, and will give him room for a fine display of goods. He is now moving his stock into the new store.

The First National will occupy a floor space 38x60, and will have a complete and up-to-date equipment in every respect. We understand that the furnishings and special equipment for the bank alone will cost $5000.
The room occupied by Mr. Maddux is 32x50, and will give him a fine office in which to carry on his growing transfer business.

TILLAMOOK MAN BUYS PORTLAND FISH BUSINESS

While on a recent visit to Portland, F. D. Small and associates, bought the Bay Center Fish Co., wholesale plant. The Tillamook people will conduct a wholesale business in Portland, handling everything in the line of fish and sea foods.

The new company will be called the Tillamook Fish Co. and will be located at 100 Front Street. J. H. Reeves, of Portland, will manage the affairs of the company at the Portland end.

The Tillamook people found it necessary to put in a wholesale house at Portland, carrying all kinds of fish, for the reason that they are compelled to a certain extent to compete with dealers who are doing business under like conditions there.

We understand that the new company may undertake to develop the halibut banks that are known to be off our shores. It will be remembered that the development of the halibut fisheries was attempted nearly two years ago and that the Vida, a rotten hulk of a boat, went out and in a few hours caught nearly a thousand pounds of fine halibut, but on returning endeavored to cross the bar at low water, and was wrecked near the entrance of the bay. That ended any further effort along that line, but it proved the fact that we have fine halibut fishing at our doors, which, with the aid of quick transportation by rail, ought soon to be on the road to development.

CHEESE TRADE IS EXCELLENT.

From Wednesday's Journal:
Excellent tone is showing in the cheese trade along Front street. Supply has been rather small of late but there has been a good shipping demand both to the north and south as well as to the east. Prices are firm.

Why Salves Can't Cure Eczema

Since the old-fashioned theory of curing eczema through the blood has been given up by scientists, many different salves have been tried for skin diseases. But it has been found that these salves only clog the pores and cannot penetrate to the inner skin below the epidermis where the eczema germs are lodged.
This—the quality of penetrating—probably explains the tremendous success of the well known liquid eczema remedy, oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine, etc., as compounded in D.D.D. Prescription.
We have sold other remedies for skin troubles but none that we can recommend as highly as this for we know that D.D.D. stops the itch at once. That is what you want to give D.D.D. a trial. That will be enough to prove it.

Of course all other druggists have D.D.D. Prescription—go to them if you can't come to us—but don't accept some big profit substitute.
But if you come to our store, we are so certain of what D.D.D. will do for you that we offer you a full size bottle on this guarantee:—If you do not find that it takes away the itch AT ONCE, it costs you not a cent.
