FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1913.

Eleven towns in Oregon have been added to the dry column. A well organized fighting force has made this result possible. The fight for prohibition in these towns, however, has been but partly won, as it will take a continuance of present organizations, kept up at full fighting force, to see that the prohibition laws are enforced. It is to be hoped that the towns that have voted dry do not quit while the job is only half done. A season of strict enforcement of the law will have an untold influence for good in connection with the liquor question.

About 300 voters of the city of Tillamook have registered at the Recorder's office, one hundred of these being women. Tillamook now has approximately 500 voters, thus it will be seen that a small vote will be polled at the next city election which will be held on Dec. 1st. The registration books were supposed to be closed on Oct. 31st, however, Recorder Todd says the law is not very clear on that point and it may be possible that it will be legal to hold the registration books open until some later date.

At the next regular meeting of the council provision will be made for holding the city caucus.

Recent election returns indicate that the Democratic administration has been sustained by the electorate of the east. President Wilson and his co-workers have been doing about the right thing and the people appreciate it. They have not been playing politics; they have endeavored to redeem certain pledges made to the people, and they have gone at the job in a manner that has left no doubts in the minds of the people as to what they were endeavoring to do. This procedure is indeed refreshing, after such a protracted season of chicanery as was perpetrated upon the people under the old stand pat regime.

Our city election is drawing near. December 1st being the date set for that event. Mayoralty candidates are as scarce as hens teeth. The office of mayor is a thankless job, but regardless of that it is the duty of some one of our strong business men to take hold of the work in hand. As a rule our most capable business men keep clear of city offices and in consequence the interests of their town and their own individual interests are oft times jeopardized. It is to be hoped that our people can get together and put some one in for mayor who will run the city on a business basis and ever keep in mind the best interests of the city.

A refugee from her own country, under three years' prison sentence for violent militancy, Mrs. Pankhurst has through the favor of President Wilson been admitted to the land of the free for a lecture tour, to raise funds for "the cause" over there. She will try to justify militancy in England, but is under pledge not to stir it up here. Mrs. Pankhurst is not "drawing" as anticipated. At Madison Square Garden, where 12,000 were expected, only 3,000 appeared. If the charges made by Anthony Comstock and the New York Society for the Suppression of Vice is correct, as it appears to be, that she brought with her and has been circulating at her meetings copies of a paper edited by her daughter in London, containing matter that is obscene and indecent, then Mrs. Pankhurst is an "undesirable alien," and the sooner she leaves our shores the better for the suffrage cause.

FEDERAL BIRD LAW BEING ENFORCED.

Several of our boys have been arrested by Game Warden Leach for violating the law in regard to shooting ducks after hours. The boys were entirely ignorant of the law and had no intention whatever of violating it. The shooting was done only a few minutes after the time proscribed in the law. It is quite likely that the authorities will deal lightly with the boys, they should not be unjustly prosecuted. By letting the boys off, an example will have been made that will have its effect all over the county, and no injustice will have been done.

The following will be of interest: State Game Warden Finley, who is also federal commissioner to see to the enforcement of the federal law relative to migratory birds has had prepared the following table, indicating the hours between which it is lawful to shoot:

	Sunrise	Sunset
November 2	6:53	4:56
November 9	7:03	4:47
November 16	7:13	4:38
November 23	7:23	4:33
November 30	7:32	4:28
December 7	7:40	4:23
December 14	7:46	4:26
December 21	7:50	4:28
December 28	7:53	4:33
January 7	7:53	4:39
January 11	7:51	4:46

THE DRYS WIN.

The dry forces won marked victories throughout the state last Tuesday, eleven cities being added to the dry list.

The following wet towns went dry: Salem, Oregon City, Springfield, Hillsboro, Woodburn, Dufur, Rainier, Stayton, Sherwood, Gresham, Harrisburg and precincts 57, 58, 59, 60 and 61 in Portland.

The following dry towns remain dry: Willowa and Florence.

The following wet to us remain wet: The Dalles, Joseph, Milwaukie, Sutherlin, Bandon, Newport, Falls City, Wasco, Haines, Metolus, Eagle Point and precinct 76 in Portland.

The most notable dry victory was the Salem result, which stood as follows: 2784 for and 2226 against. Oregon City stood 974 dry and 759 wet. The other places the results were closer, and at no point did the wets win by over a majority of eighty, and most of their majorities were below forty, some being as low as two and six and seven.

The result of last Tuesday's prohibition elections tells us that another strong prohibition wave is surging upon us which may result in putting Oregon in the dry column in 1914.

Returns from Illinois are also very encouraging. Nine Illinois towns formerly wet went dry, and not one dry town went wet. Among the towns that went dry were: Jacksonville, Petersburg, Pineknayville, Percy, Ullis, Virginia and Beardston, all large places.

The women of both Oregon and Illinois are given the credit for many of the dry victories. Good for the women!

The liquor business is on the run. For years it has been paralyzing, ruining and deluding much of the best blood of the land. A halt is being called all along the line against the liquor business. The German Emperor who is anxious that his country shall live up to its best opportunities, and that his army shall be second to none, has come out fair and square against the liquor business. President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan and other members of the president's cabinet are also exerting a strong influence for the cause of temperance. Every county now has its score of big men who are fighting the liquor business. The saloon is a strong competitor to every other line of business for the simple reason that money which should buy food, clothing, hardware and every other kind of merchandise, doctor bills, etc., is too often spent over the bar. Men are now realizing this fact.

The Webb Act which prohibits the shipment of liquor into dry territory within the state, has been a strong factor in influencing many voters to vote dry, for it is now possible to keep liquor shipped for commercial purposes out of dry territory.

In summing up the situation we publish below an editorial taken from the Oregon Journal of the 5th, which we think hits the nail pretty squarely on the head:

"Bavaria, the home of beer, drank less of that beverage during the last twelve months than during the former year. Dispatches say the decrease is represented by half a million dollars—not much, perhaps, but enough, to indicate a general tendency. The decline in beer drinking by Bavarians is attributed to Emperor William's temperance crusade.

"In Berlin, the General Electric company five years ago established a canteen for its thousands of employes. Beer was provided, of course. In addition, tea, coffee, seltzer and lemonade, all of capital quality, were furnished at 25 cents a pint. At first the sale of soft drinks was but one-third as much as that of beer. Today non-alcoholic drinks have a demand more than twice as large as that of beer.

"The company's records show that coincident with beer drinking's decline there was a steady reduction in the number of accidents. Greater safety is attributed to the company's policy of purveying soft drinks with nicety and care.

"In the United States, railroads and other big employers of labor are insisting upon no dalliance with the beer mug. These are the days of swift motor cars, fast passenger elevators, of trains often speeding more than a mile a minute. Drinking accounts for a large proportion of automobile accidents. Common prudence dictates that the locomotive engineer and the elevator operator, men holding lives in their hands, shall have keen eyes and quick nerve. Employers are insisting upon it.

"Aviators as sportsmen lead the world in skill and daring. To a man they leave strong drink alone. Narcisse Guimet, world champion golfer, is a water drinker. Boys are being taught in gymnasiums that beer and spirits never made champions. All sports, baseball, football, all of them, are linked to teetotalism.

"Alcohol is a losing fight. The odds are against it. Temperance is not a moral issue alone.

"It is an economic issue."

RURAL ORGANIZATIONS THEME FOR FARMERS' WEEK

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Ore., Nov. 4.—A preliminary announcement of Farmers' Week and the Winter Short Course at the Oregon Agricultural College has just been issued from the office of the Registrar. It announces the dates of Farmers' Week December 8-13, 1913, and the Winter Short Course, January 5-31, 1914, and indicates that the key note of Farmers' Week will be rural organizations. In this connection, as special features of Farmers' Week, it promises exhaustive discussions of European conditions viewed by the Professor of Political Economy on his tour of last summer, when he went abroad as one of the Oregon representatives on the national commission. It promises also reports on American cooperative organizations, presented by specially qualified observers.

There are eighteen or twenty main subjects of discussion outlined in the bulletin as leading topics of Farmers' Week, when six full days, from eight to five, in addition to the evening, will be given up to this work. Each of the eighteen leading subjects is divided into lecture topics numbering from four to eight or more. Thus, dairying will include: Dairy Equipment; Judging Dairy Cattle; Farm Butter Making; The Babcock Test Demonstrated; Milk Records and the Babcock Test; Dairy Herd Improvement; Dairy Rations; Farm Cheese Making; and Cream Separator Demonstration. Horticulture, to use a second example, will include the following: Choosing an orchard; Establishing the Orchard; Maintaining the Orchard; Pruning the Orchard; Orchard Heating and Smudging; Walnut Growing; Growing Prunes; Prune Drying; and Fruit Packing.

Vegetable growing, poultry, live stock, health, home economics, field crops, and business methods on the farm, together with various other fundamental topics in agriculture are similarly treated.
