FRIDAY DECEMBER 12, 1913.

If statements current in the newspapers are true, Uncle Sam is finding the parcel-post a very profitable industry. It is declared that the first six months of its operation showed a net increase in the postal returns of about $14,000,000. This means a revenue of probably $30,000,000 a year, with a possibility of much greater returns in the near future. The railroads, however, set up a loud wail that this is all at their expense—that they have been compelled to carry the added parcel-post mail with practically no extra pay. It is declared, however, by the New York Times, "from a reliable quarter," that even assuming that the contention of the railroads is correct there still would be a good margin of profit at the end of the calendar year 1913 after the payment of extra remuneration to the roads. Even if a parcel-post adjustment were made along the lines suggested by some of the railroads, probably not more than $10,000,000 of this $30,000,000 would be due to the railroads as extra pay. The total gross income from the parcel-post for 1913 will be around $80,000,000. When it is remembered that the great bulk of this was formerly gathered in by the express companies, it is no wonder that they squirm. The parcel-post has evidently come to stay.

SAUCE FOR GOOSE AS WELL AS THE GANDER

From Telegram: Twice within the space of a few weeks have the people of Salem declared by substantial majorities that they do not want the saloon. The second declaration was more emphatic than the first, although concerning the first there was no room for doubt. This twice affirmed verdict commands no respect from the liquor interests. They have sought to invalidate one verdict and they will take the same course regarding the other. In both cases they rely upon legal technicalities; in neither case do they give the snap of the fingers for the recorded will of the people, or the right of the people to have that will observed.

If there is any class of men on earth more fond of prating about personal liberty, popular rights, and all that sort of thing, than the liquor interest, that class has not yet been discovered. In profession of democracy they are hard to beat. But under stress it is disclosed that the kind of democracy which they regard as the genuine article, is that which will support the liquor business. Democracy that will manifest itself otherwise is spurious. The true explanation of the liquor men's attitude is that they want to sell booze and make easy money regardless of consequences. If they can gratify that desire despite the opposing will of every decent man and woman in the community well and good. The fact the business is an economic waste and a moral scourge cuts no ice with them.

In part at least this un-American, unreasoning and defiant attitude of the liquor interests has aroused the grim and determined opposition of thousands who are not and never have been prohibitionists.

COMMUNICATION.

Editor Herald: The Tillamook Herald is a very welcome semi-weekly visitor to my home, which is located about two miles south of Coquille City, the county seat of Coos Co. This small place is called "Johnson". Mr. Johnson owns a half section of valuable land and had a large sawmill here which burned some three years ago. There are about twenty houses in the camp and nearly all are occupied. I am living all alone in the large rambling white farm house which can be seen for miles away toward the south and west. About thirty yards below the house is the railroad (four passenger trains a day), a narrow stretch of green valley lies between it and the Coquille river where steamboats and other smaller crafts ply up and down at their pleasure or on schedule time. Perhaps half of the trees in this locality are myrtle. I admire them because of their comely shape and perpetual verdure. This is a fine country for fruit and garden stuff, had fresh roasting ears for my dinner the first day of December. I enjoy the boat rides much better than I anticipated, it is an established rule not to charge any active minister consequently I don't walk much. My churches are four miles apart, I have been looking after another neglected charge and renewed old acquaintances of those who had been delegates to the Conference.

Rev. C. H. Waymire and wife who are located some twelve miles from here, are doing excellent work in building up the Kingdom of God. I have been away from Beaver about two months and not a word have I ever received from any of my letters or cards. Yesterday a letter came back, the postmaster somewhere said such a place as Beaver could not be found; so if the place has been entirely wiped off the map I need not expect any replies, but if a few remain they might write a statement of how they escaped the great disaster, and direct to Dora Young, Coquille, Coos County, Ore.

HAZEL BEND.

R. Y. Blalock has been at Cloverdale for the past week, where he has been assisting in a protracted meeting.

Mrs. M. O. Guthert is home again after a visit with her relatives in Portland.

Mrs. L. N. Sandoz went to Tillamook last Tuesday expecting to be absent several days.

Ralph Waldo Emerson Welch is having a strenuous time these days, hauling cedar posts down Boulder Creek. He has our sympathy.

Mrs. Alice Magarell visited Mrs. Ella Krake, one day last week.

Mrs. Marion Keene and little daughters Wanda and Lillian, went up to Battle Lake last Wednesday to spend Thanksgiving with Mr. and Mrs. John Borba, remaining until Sunday.

Mrs. H. L. Jensen visited her sister, Mrs. H. D. McIntyre, at Rainier, Ore., last week.

John Borba visited the county seat last week, going out Monday and returning Wednesday.

D. L. Dutton and son Maurice went to Tillamook last Tuesday, to consult a physician in regard to a painful swelling on the boys neck, which required lancing. He is improving at this time, we are told.

Hiram Smith and wife, entertained R. Y. Blalock and family at a Thanksgiving dinner.

Wilbur Booth and family of Hemlock, and Earl Ayer and family of Tillamook, spent Thanksgiving with Mrs. N. Smith.

We are very sorry to note the death of little Weltha, the seven year old daughter of H. D. McIntyre, at Rainier, Ore., last week. The body was brought to Blaine, where it was laid to rest Sunday afternoon. The sorrowing parents have the sincere sympathy of their many friends in this neighborhood and we pray that they may in time, come to think of their little daughter, as "Not dead, but sleeping, not lost, only gone before."

The Helping Hand society met with Mrs. E. P. Mills, last Wednesday.

A baby girl came to the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Chopard on Tuesday evening, Nov. 4th. Our announcement is a little late, but the old adage tells us "Better late than never."
