FRIDAY JANUARY 9, 1914.

Quite frequently, lately, we have heard of fighting in the saloons. During the past week quite a fierce encounter is reported to have taken place in one of our saloons, with a bartender as one of the active contestants. Everything possible should be done to stop this brutality in the saloons. Of course drunkenness caused by liquor is the cause, and about the only way to cure a disease is to remove the cause. Did it ever occur to you that while it is an ordinary thing to hear of drunken men fighting it is very seldom that we hear of sober men indulging in this brutal pastime?

The Western Union Telegraph Co. has installed a station and operator in the business section of our city, the station being located at the Bell Telephone office. While the installation of the Western Union office is an ordinary affair, still it has a great deal of significance for Tillamook, in that it shows and proves that we are growing. It proves that our kind of business is increasing and that our demands and needs are becoming greater.
