BRIEF NEWS OF OREGON

A white blackbird has been seen at Cottage Grove, it is declared. The bird resembles its fellows in every way except in color.

The Eugene commercial club plans to raise $7000 for use in continuing activities of the club for the ensuing year.

Representative Lafferty has introduced Senator Chamberlain's bill appropriating $2,500,000 for a drydock on the Columbia river.

The First National bank of Tillamook and the Halseboro National bank have applied for membership in the new federal banking system.

The onion crop in the Sherwood district this year will net the growers more than $75,000 and the return from hops will be $150,000.

An Oregon man sent the treasury department 25 cents "conscience money" to repay the government for use of a cancelled three-cent postage stamp 40 years ago.

Deputy State Treasurer Ryan estimates that $1,000,000 in unpaid warrants will be outstanding when the taxes for the year become available in April.

Preliminary arrangements have been made for a ranchers' junket early in March from Medford to North Yakima, Wenatchee, Hood River and other orchard centers in the northwest.

The report on the practicability of creating a great power site at The Dalles will be ready for the next session of the Oregon legislature, according to State Engineer Lewis. A project engineer will be selected.

Representative Hawley has introduced a bill authorizing the use of the revenues of Crater Lake National park in defraying the cost of the park management and for improving roads and trails within the park.

Corporation Commissioner Watson has cancelled the permits to do business in this state of the Investors Building & Trust company and the State Deposit & Mortgage company, of Portland.

Oregon will get $116,000 less from the Indian appropriation bill than was recommended by Secretary of the Interior Lane in his report of December 1. The appropriation of $15,000 for the addition to the assembly hall, Chemawa school, was included in the cut.

The war department informs Senator Chamberlain that army transports are limited by law to carrying persons connected with the federal or insular service and cannot be rented for the transportation of agricultural college cadets to the Panama exposition.

The bill of Senator Lane amending existing law requiring vessels bound for Portland to stop at Astoria, was favorably reported by the commerce committee. The law providing for the stop at Astoria is obsolete and an obstruction to commerce, it is pointed out.

So weak that he could not raise his gun to shoot himself with the bullet he had saved for his self destruction rather than starve to death, Wesley Eastahl of Nehalem was found in the woods some miles from Vernonia by a party that had been searching for him.

The secretary of the navy does not believe in it, and he says so fearlessly, but he has just allowed an Oregon man to resign from the navy. This was a special case, however, and it seemed proper to let the young man have an opportunity to make a fair living for his family.

Secretary Lane has allotted $23,450,000 to carry on work under the reclamation law this year, and of this total, Oregon receives $1,220,135. This big allotment exhausts all moneys now available for government irrigation work, including the full $20,000,000 lent by congress several years ago, but heretofore untouched.

Portland has an unemployed problem. It does not amount to an emergency and it is not so acute as in most other cities throughout the country. Solution is, however, rendered more difficult by the closing of the city rockpile. No adequate plan has been made by any agency to handle the situation. There are, according to estimates, 4000 to 6000 men there who have no work.

Instructions to institute criminal prosecutions against all the commission merchants doing business in this state without complying with the law enacted by the last legislature regulating their business have been sent out by the state railroad commission to 10 district attorneys in the state in the counties of Multnomah, Marion, Umatilla, Josephine, Clatsop, Wasco, Linn, Baker, Jackson and Lane. Only one association or firm in the state has complied with the law.

A cow testing association has been organized in the Lewis and Clark district of Clatsop county, another is ready for organization at Scappoose and the work of organizing the dairy industry of Oregon is well under way.

Ralph F. Beard, instructor in agricultural chemistry, and John E. Larsen, agronomist, have been appointed to positions on the Oregon agricultural college faculty, and will take up their duties the beginning of the second semester.

DR. WITHYCOMBE ADVISES WIDER USE OF SILAGE

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Ore., Feb. 6. "I think dairymen should use more ensilage here in Oregon," said Mr. Withycombe, director of the Oregon Station, in addressing an association of dairymen. "Our climate is moist in winter and dairy cows should not be made to stand outside in the storms. Yet they should have their forage feed and you will find the silo an economical means of supplying it.

"As to the silo construction I would recommend the stave type where lumber is plentiful and cheap. It will prove satisfactory and cost much less, under these conditions.

"The silo should be built high but not too large around. If too much surface of the ensilage is exposed it will spoil. The most satisfactory size does not exceed 10 feet in diameter, but for 20 cows it may be 12 feet. For more than 20 cows it is better to build another silo than to incur the risk of increasing the diameter. It is cheaper as well as safer.

"Oregon has many plants which will fill the silo profitably. Clover is a standard silage plant and makes a splendid product. Should it develop an order let it get a trifle ripe, passing the stage for good hay. Don't cut it too soon.

Corn is an ideal silo filler, and may be grown for silage in many parts of Oregon. It must be well matured or the ensilage gets too sour.

"But if you cannot grow corn successfully never mind about it; there are other plants which will fill the silo profitably."
