7 BANDITS HOLD UP ELMA, WASH., BANK

Set Fire to School Gymnasium to Divert Attention From Their Operations.

Elma, Wash.—Setting fire to the school gymnasium at Elma, Wash., to divert attention from their operations, seven bandits at 8 o'clock Saturday, held up the bank at Elma, and taking $3500 in currency, escaped into the woods.
The bank of Elma remains open Saturday nights from 7 to 8 o'clock. The attack was just before closing time and the only ones in the bank were Cashier Earl France, his book keeper, A. H. Fleming, and three depositors, Walter Myer, Ed Bonley and George Avery, and Ben Young.

Four of the high-women entered the bank, covered the occupants, loading Cashier France into the vault, where they were "covered." One of the men on the outside hurriedly forced two persons into the bank, where they were "covered." One of the men on the inside made the haul during the "scramble" covering of the citizens, taking only the money in the vault, leaving $2000 on the counter untouched.

The holding was completed within five minutes. On account of resistence made by Cashier France, who attempted to reach his revolver on the cage counter, one of the robbers fired twice at him, but neither shot took effect.

When searched at the police station Watson was found to have a .45-caliber Colt automatic pistol, a .31-caliber revolver, three knives and some loose cartridges.
