TUESDAY APRIL 21, 1914.

Congressional Paladins (Progressives) of Washington, has introduced a bill establishing protection in Alaska. Why not? The nation has taken a progressive stand in the development of Alaska's material resources, by building a government railroad. Still more wise would it be to safeguard the high interests of that great territory by establishing the progressive principle of prohibition there. The bill ought to become a law.

In the last issue of the Headlight Editor Baker devoted a quarter column in taking off his coat, suiting on his hands and squaring off, figuratively speaking, for a scrap with the editor of the Herald. Well, go it old man. We have the advantage of having right on our side and an intelligent lot of readers to deal with, and we take much comfort in this fact regardless of the fact that we have the disgusting task of combating a man who would fill with better grace a strait-jacket in a lunatic asylum than he does an editor's chair.

A step forward in the fishing industry of this county has recently been made in the formation of the Oregon Deep Sea Fishing Co., with principal office at Tillamook City. The members of the company are Geo. Henderson, Harold Gill and Wm. Gregory. The capital stock is placed at $5000, and the articles of incorporation allow the conducting of deep sea fishing, cold storage plants, stores, shops, etc. It has been proven beyond a doubt that rich halibut banks lay immediately off this coast, and then there is a great abundance of other sea fish foods of the finest quality close at hand.

The formation of the above mentioned company is a step in the right direction. We are pleased to see it. It will mean much for the county.

The Irish home rulers regard their fight as practically won. The bill will go to the house of lords, and be rejected, but it will go back to the commons and be approved, and then becomes a law by royal assent. It is expected to be a law by July 1. Meanwhile it remains for the government and the Ulsterites to reach an agreement. The conciliatory attitude adopted within the past few days by Sir Edward Carson, leader of the Ulster unionists, indicate that they may accept the original proposals of the government which gives the Ulster counties the right of a referendum to say whether or not they shall be excluded from the workings of the home rule bill for six years. Another outcome may be the federal scheme of government already outlined, Ulsters to stay out of the Irish Union until the federal plan is in operation.

The Headlight makes the late failure of C. R. Funk the occasion for a lengthy harangue in opposition to Tillamook County's farm values which is certainly a great injustice to the owners of farms in this county. Mr. Funk bought 50 acres of land, paying $50 down. It was necessary for him to make many improvements. But regardless of this fact his undertaking was no more than what scores of others have made a success of in this county during the past 10 years. Mr. Baker does not mention one of the large number of our ranchers who have started with almost nothing and now own valuable farms, but he would pick out a single failure and make much ado about it regardless of the injury it does the real estate owners of the county in general just to injure a certain person who has fought to a standstill one of his much beloved pets, the Warren Construction Co., which has a reputation so well known to our readers, that further comment is not necessary.

The Headlight is heaping another injustice upon the farm owners in this county by continually prophesying the collapse of the cheese market because of late tariff changes, when every sane man or woman now knows that our cheese market is as safe as it ever was, natural conditions being much in its favor, and it still being protected by a 20 per cent ad valorem duty. If Mr. Baker would be fair with the administration and fair with our farm owners who are the ones vitally affected, he would wait and see how matters are to terminate, and what the consequences of the tariff changes are to be before he sets up a "howl." Calamity howling along this line cannot help but be detrimental to farm values. It seems he never will forget that post office.

Before his grouch, growing out of the fight on the Warren Construction Co., which has been trying to get one over on the people of Tillamook City, Mr. Baker was an earnest exponent of the system of selling lands in time "with a small payment down, balance on time" a system that has made it possible for many a poor deserving man to get on his feet and acquire a competency, a system that has been practised by hundreds of people in this county with and without the assistance of real estate men, and a righteous system that will live long after Bro. Baker and his hammer are laid away.

It has been frequently stated by thoughtful men in this county that the Headlight, since it has been in the hands of Bro. Baker, by its malicious indulgence in personalities and other indiscretions has done more to retard the growth of Tillamook County and city than any other influence. A few cases in point attributable to Bro. Baker was the embarrassment to the city in the sale of its water bonds, which cost this city a large sum; his unscrupulous course in defense of the Warren Construction Co.; the anti-trust aroused by him over the extension of the Port of Tillamook, etc.

We have often heard it stated that if the people of the county had bought the Headlight plant, years ago, paying Baker his own price for it and dumped it into the slough, eliminating Mr. Baker from further newspaper effort in this county, it would indeed have been a wise investment, and we believe this is true.

NO MORE LIQ FOR ADVERTISING.

One by one the great daily newspapers of the country are swinging in line against the debasing mercenary spirit that accepts liquor advertising.

In Detroit the Times has for an extended period kept itself clean from the taint of such basely earned cash. In Chicago some time ago the Tribune cut out such reprehensible advertising.

Now comes the Record-Herald of the same city with an announcement that henceforth, or as soon as it can fill existing contracts, it will eliminate liquor advertising.

In making this announcement it explains that it wishes to be rightly understood and then proceeds to deliver itself as follows:

"The manufacture and sale of liquor are sanctioned by law and the advertising is legitimate advertising. However, printing this class of advertising involves social questions that call for emphasis and increased consideration. The Record-Herald goes into many homes. In virtually all of these homes there is an abiding sense of the need of protection against the abuses of the liquor traffic, especially for the young. In a constantly increasing degree there is abstention from the use of liquor for the sake of the young. There is the haunting fear that from the first indulgence the young and unformed character may unconsciously drift into an uncontrolled and destructive habit of excess.

"Liquor advertising does not discriminate between use and abuse. It commends without reserve what the best social sense of the day more and more disapproves as dangerous.

"The Record-Herald does not deny the view that pure alcoholic liquors have their wise and proper use in individual instances, but contends that the responsibility for the advocacy of such use should rest with the family physician rather than the family newspaper, and declines henceforth to share this responsibility."
