> > If a man is known by the company he keeps, isn't his ballot likely to be known by the company it keeps

The one great and all important argument of the liquor traffic is, that the law has no right to interfere with pergoose, a species of animal resembling sonal liberty. Yet all law, all government is based upon the principle of the surrender of individual liberty for the good of the many. There is no law which does not interfere with the individual liberty of some one. We have laws to prevent gambling, to prevent prize-fighting, to enforce education, the payment of taxes and service in the army. Yet the liquor traffic would have us believe that prohibition were the only law that interfered with personal liberty. The liberty desired by the liquor traffic, is the liberty to do wrong. They contend that a man should do exactly as he pleases, regardless of consequences, to himself, his home or his country. Such liberty is anarchy.

We believe that a state that can make laws to protect its birds, jought to do as much for its boys. Do the liquor men love their country? To love ones country is to prefer its interests to our own.
