FRIDAY JUNE 5, 1914.

According to a dispatch last week from Washington, Col. Roosevelt will flatly turn down the carefully prepared proposal of the leadership of the standard element of the Republican party for a merger of the Republican and the Progressive parties. He will continue to make war on the man who directed the campaign of former President William H. Taft for re-nomination and re-election in 1912. Col. Roosevelt, so it is declared, will not treat with the leaders of the Republican and except on terms amounting their absolute elimination. These reports appear to be quite disquieting to each "old guard" leaders as Senators Peirce, Smith and Gallinger and ex-Speaker Cannon.

Charles S. Mellen, former president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, who appears to have been the "goat" when the day of reckoning came for that gigantic bit of railroad work, is telling a lurid tale of "high finance" before the Interstate Commerce Commission, as to the operations by which that great railroad property was loaded to its destruction. It was but one incident of many when, for instance, the Rhode Island trolley system was bought for about $20,000,000—twice the value of the properties. "J. P. Morgan the elder, who manipulated these great financial operations, is exonerated by Mr. Mellen from personal profit, when he says: "I do not remember his doing a single thing on which he made a dollar in connection with the New Haven while I was president." But with some ulterior motive, for some party or parties, Mr. Morgan put these deals thru, and "would brook no interference with his plans." Mr. Mellen says he concealed the truth in regard to the operations which wrecked the road, and accepted his own criminal indictment, because he knew that if the man really to blame, were held responsible, it would have meant his death. When Mr. Morgan finally died by the hand of Providence, Mellen received his reward for his own self-sacrifice by being "fired" by Morgan's son! Incidentally to the facts he is revealing, Mr. Mellen suggests an absolute monopoly of the transportation interests of the country, under government control, as the solution of the American railroad problem. "To get efficiency and economy," declared Mr. Mellen, "there must be a monopoly; and that monopoly is certain to be the United States government." A little later he remarked, "Every time a railroad official comes to Washington he has to take off his hat to some government official.

GOOD TIMES AHEAD.

One of our dry goods merchants recently received from a manufacturing concern in the East a communication which we give in full below. It gives the public an inside view as to how one of the big manufacturers of the country feels about and sees conditions.

Business conditions of the country are resting upon a sound, healthy foundation and there is really no good reason for a depression of any account.

Following is the communication:

"A little heart to heart talk always does good. Always work in the open, speak your sentiments, and be true to your convictions. It is impossible for us to meet all of our customers personally, and therefore, we must use the mail.

Business has been poor, it is poor to-day, and the dawn of plenty is not yet at hand, but as sure as you are living, it is coming, and one of these bright summer mornings, you will wake up with customers at your counter, asking for the merchandise which you should buy to-day. Too often we do not see an opportunity until it is too late.

"Some people never buy merchandise until they have calls for it, and find the stock exhausted.

"Hard times and good times, are foretold by signs, as certainly as words could read.

"It is the successful merchant who looks the future squarely in the face, and anticipates what it is to bring forth.

"Let us consider a few things:

"In 1913, the small grain yield was little more than half a crop. The corn yield less than half a crop, and cotton about in the same class.

"When the corn and wheat fields fail to produce in this country, then it is time to call a halt, because our National prosperity depends upon the farmer.

"The one thing—A change in rural administration, was upon us, to adjust the rural, adjust the financial system, and to readjust the business, much of which has been overproduced.

"The Rail Road, those great arteries of commerce, through which must flow the blood of business, were asking permission to advance freight rates. We cannot have a great country without Rail Roads, and they must be permitted to run their business and make a fair return, as you expect to run your business. They have been asking this privilege, and while waiting its answer, have stopped all improvements.

LET US LOOK TO THE FUTURE

"The political unrest has been settled, and the tariff, the trust and the financial adjustments are behind us.

"The Interstate Commerce Commission has not made their answer to the Rail Road, but within two weeks, they will answer, and the forecast of that answer is, that the Rail Road will be permitted to advance freight rates, and if this happens, then watch the orders for steel rails, for freight cars and freight engines! Thousands of men will be given employment.

THE NEXT GREAT FACTOR IS THE CROP SITUATION.

"The hay and small grain crop is in sight already. We hear the creak of the binder, and the call for men to harvest.

"The wheat crop will be the largest in the history of the Nation.

"Next comes the corn and cotton crop, a little to early to predict, but it looks good—and why borrow trouble and anticipate failures?

"The prospects for the fruit throughout the fruit belt is wonderful, and the trees are fairly groaning with the increased weight from day to day.

"Read the two pages—the present cramped situation foretold as plain as words could be written.

"The future prosperous condition foretold, as plainly as you yourself will realize it, by the dawn of 1915. As—as plainly as you will realize it, sixty days from to-day. What are you going to do? Are you going to wait? Or are you going to prepare for it?

"Now is the time to get ready, now is your opportunity. Now is the time to buy merchandise. Now is the time to buy what you need to-day—today!

"My factories are not running full force to-day, but I want to run them full force, and I am willing to bank on the future to do that.

"Ninety days from to-day, you will want my merchandise in a hurry, and I will be unable to give it to you, as you will want it, because thousands of other merchants will be in the same fix. I am so sure of it, that I have adopted the following plan, in order to meet the situation:

"I do not want you to pay for it before that date. I know, and you know, that you will need, and can use the goods, therefore that date.

"I know that ninety-five out of every hundred will not anticipate their wants sixty days off, under present conditions, and on regular basis, but I am willing to take the risk, and give these unusual terms.

"Why do I do it? Because I want to give my people work—I want to give them work during July and August, just the same as I will be able to give them work in October and November.

"I am selling you the goods on to-day's market, with October dating, and my opinion is that they will be higher before October comes around, but what matters not; I want your order to-day.

"It is so easy to wait; it is so easy to float with the tide, but remember live fish, only go up stream. There are great crowds at the bottom of the ladder, but few at the top. Did you ever make anything by waiting? I did not and I do not expect to wait.

"I see the dawn of plenty; I see great business awakening; I see prosperity on every hand and now is the time to prepare. Do not wait to buy your ammunition until the war has been declared; prepare for war in time of peace. Business is war, and your competitor is entrenched in front of you, but with guns bearing on your camp, you can win, your advantage is great but you must act, you must write the order."

THE CHEESE SITUATION.

According to Carl Haberlach, cheese has probably reached its lowest price for this summer. When asked about present and future prospects, he said:

"From present indications, I believe we have about reached the bottom prices for this season. We have been selling the cheese as fast as made on account of falling market, but with larger dealers putting same into storage we feel easier about the future. Our May production was about 8,000 boxes triplets and the other factories output would swell the total to 9,000 boxes triplets, however, most of our cheese has been going to California lately, Portland taking but little and the Sound Country practically supplying its own needs. While we have been having a large amount of cheese to sell, we have found a lively ready market, notwithstanding general dullness in other lines of business. We have a uniformly good article, have a wide range of markets, and we are trying to market our goods in a businesslike manner.

"Give a good article and one with a good reputation, and wide range of markets, makes it much easier to dispose of a large production of cheese, although there have been times the last few weeks when it was some puzzle to know just what was best to do. I believe that as a whole, the patrons are getting more for their milk than they expected, certainly much more than the dairyman was getting in the Willamette Valley or other places in the State. Still, I do not look for much higher prices soon, as most dealers are going into the storage business in a very cautious manner.

"Personally, I believe that while tariff changes have had a certain effect and while there may be some importation of foreign cheese, we have fair prospects ahead. We have more to fear from butter manufacturers going into cheese making than from the importation of foreign cheese. Until a certain gets well organized, they take considerable loss for their cheese, than market conditions would warrant. A corresponding loss in this line will show cheese being offered all the way from 10 to 15 cents less than ours. While some of this stock may be high at the price, still it has its effect on the market, many dealers only look for the immediate dollar and not so much for reputation.

"I believe that the matter of New Zealand cheese has been somewhat overrated. Most of the make to be made there the coming season has already been contracted for by certain London houses, according to our advice. Then, too, the people have been making cheese a good many years and have been making a cheese which would not take well in our markets, being nearly three times as large as our triplets. Like all Englishmen they are slow to adapt themselves to new ideas and ways, and unless dealers will contract for a considerable output, do not change their size of hoops. I mention this simply because a great deal has been said about that country, and while things may not be just as they might, we have fair prospects ahead. If we gradually improve the quality of our milk and cheese, and possibly by making different grades of cheese, we will be well able to hold our own with any place in our line."

Fellow Worker's Greeting:

The average worker, through profit, rent and interest, is exploited of four fifths of the product of his labor, hence is a slave, industrially.

The wife of the working man is the slave of a slave. The exorbitant, confiscatory taxes of Tillamook County place the dairyman in the same struggle for existence, as the toiler in the industrial centers.

Have you pride, spirit, or desire to be free? Come to this meeting and take part in working your emancipation.
