Foot "Eaz Em" makes my long walks easy

OH, SUCH RELIEF!

Nothing makes a person feel more "miserable" than tired, aching, aching feet. No reason to have this trouble, either! To-morrow morning, first thing you do, sprinkle a little into your shoes, and dust it on your stockings, and you'll have feet comfortable the whole day through.

It is an antiseptic, odor-destroying preservative—absorbs moisture, relieves the tired feet and lessens your chance of having corns. We'll send you a great big package of NAYA'S EAS'EM—comfort for months and months—for only 25c.

We pride ourselves on the excellence of our goods. We believe in quality first—and so do you! That's the reason we are exclusive agents for the famous NAYA FAMILY REMEDIES—one for each ill.

WATER FED THE FLAMES.

Hopeless Fight Against a Peculiar Conflagration at Sea.

When the freighter Hardy stemmed out of Le Treport, France, she carried besides the mineral water in her hold a number of small wooden cases marked "metallic sodium."

The channel was rough. The vessel rolled and pitched violently. The captain saw that the ship was listing to port and, suspecting that the cargo was shifting, sent a boatswain below to investigate. As the boatswain entered the hold he saw that several cases of mineral water had broken and that the water was swishing about in the hold. Then suddenly he saw one of the wooden cases marked "sodium" burst into flame.

Immediately he gave the alarm, and the crew rushed to their fire stations. The captain directed the men to play the hose into the hold. As the first stream of water struck the burning case there were several explosions as leakage after leakage within the case caught fire. By this time two other cases of sodium had broken open, and their contents as they came in contact with the water from the hose burst into flames.

The crew could not believe their eyes. The more water they poured on the fire the more intense grew the conflagration. Then suddenly two cases flew into the air, crashed against the overhead beams and spread out in sheets of fire, the smaller pieces dropping back only to bounce and dance about, hot balls of flame. In the half-swamped hold.

Panic-stricken, the crew dropped the loose lines and fled above decks. But the captain ordered the cargo dung into the sea and led his men back into the hold. They succeeded in throwing several of the cases overboard. But as each case hit the waves it rebounded into the air, a flaming ball.

The superstitious crew was fast leaping unmanageable and the captain saw that in any case he must abandon the ship. He ordered the crew to the boats not one moment too soon, for as the boats rowed away from the blazing bulk several loud explosions came from the hold. Then there was one mighty detonation. The freighter broke in two and plunged out of sight.

The origin of the fire was, of course, in the sodium. Sodium is a peculiar metal, which oxidizes rapidly when water touches it and flames as soon as the water becomes warm. According to the chemist's classification, it is the second member of the alkali group that includes lithium, potassium, rubidium and caesium. All of these elements have the same characteristics as sodium in greater or less degree. The sodium should have been shipped in hermetically sealed tin cans inclosed in wooden cases. But the rolling of the ship and the careless stowing of the cargo broke open some of these cases, and the sodium, which was not properly packed, was liberated.—Boston Herald.
