TUESDAY JULY 7, 1914.

Capital Journal, Salem

Colonel Roosevelt attacks the Colombian treaty and calls it blackmail. There is a pretty general impression that the rebelion of Panama and setting up of a separate government was caused largely by the channel, in his securing the Panama canal rights. It was not a creditable thing, and naturally the rebelion kicks against anything that would reflect on his action in the case. It is a notorious fact that the United States gave Columbia dirt in that deal, and while money given her as a sign may be foolish and un-called for, that being a matter of opinion, it is certain that we owe her an apology. Whether we owe her anything tangible for taking her territory, the Panama canal zone, away from her is a question of international ethics.

SENATOR CHAMBERLAIN

From National Tribune (Washington, D. C.)

Senator George E. Chamberlain, of Oregon, whose term will expire March 3, 1915, has a warm place in the hearts of the veterans of Oregon and their widows. He has been their consistent and untiring friend throughout, and they hold him in particular affection because of his work in securing the admission of soldiers' widows to the State Home. In addition to this, Senator Chamberlain has, during his five years in the Senate, justified the choice of the people of Oregon, and has shown himself a man of unusual ability and devotion to the public interests. He is far from being a "rubber stamp" for Southern politicians, as one Northern member of Congress proclaimed himself to be, but has carried his own sovereignty and done his own thinking under his own hat. In this way he has attained a very flattering prominence among his colleagues as a man of light and leading, and whose utterances must be listened to with careful attention.

This led to his being given assignment to the important committees of Military Affairs, Agriculture and Forestry, Appropriations, Commerce, Public Lands, and the Territories. There are few Senators who have an equal place on so many committees of the first rank. As Chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs, Senator Chamberlain strongly impressed the Committee of the volunteer Officers' Retirement Association with his friendliness and his executive ability. As Chairman of the Military Committee, he has naturally had much to do with the management of the Army and the situation in Mexico. His vote has always been for the firm assertion of the honor and dignity of the Flag, and the proper assertion of the Government's duties in that troublesome problem.

A CLAMOR AND A CRISIS

Portland, June 30.—To the Editor of the Journal—The railroads of the United States, according to the 1914 World's Almanac, have a bonded debt of $10,929,668,551 and a capital stock of $8,582,463,256, or a combined capital stock and bonded debt of $19,512,131,807. The people of the United States in 1914 in passenger and freight rates paid to the railroads $2,848,468,945, which is nearly as much as the entire medium of the nation. That the people of the United States have been paying freight and passenger traffic which enable the railroads to pay dividends upon billions of dollars of water, is a matter of common knowledge. In the days when the railroad magnates could get together at a banquet and raise freight rates to "all the traffic would bear," the market values of railroad stocks were maintained at high prices, but when the supreme court of the United States in 1906 decided that the interstate commerce commission had authority to regulate freight rates the railroad magnates began to see the "handwriting" and to get out from under it. Since that time the market value of railroad stocks has shrunk over $3,000,000,000. In other words, already $3,000,000,000 in water has been squeezed out. How many more billions in water remain is a question. There is undoubtedly yet a great deal of water in the railroad stocks, for there is a concerted movement on the part of the railroads, Wall street bankers and allied interests to intimidate the interstate commerce commission into the approval of the railroads' valuation of their systems by granting an increase in freight rates, based on that valuation. In other words, if the interstate commerce commission, acting for the government, grants the increase in freight rates, it amounts to the stamp of approval upon the valuation which the railroad officials have placed upon their own property, and admits that the valuations are sound, that the waters are gone and that on each valuation the railroads are entitled to freight earnings.

It is apparent that with the increasing equipment for government ownership of railroads, the railroad officials are anxious to have the government admit a valuation of the railroads which contain as much water as possible; that is, the railroads don't want the government to wait until another $3,000,000,000 is squeezed out of their stocks before it is K. X. their valuation by granting an increase in freight rates.

In view of these facts, is it any wonder that the subsidized press of the country is doing everything it can to discredit this administration. The Oregonian, among other standard papers, has boldly stated editorially that if the railroads were permitted to increase their freight rates, prosperity would jump with a jump. It is not the little five per cent increase which the railroads care for, but it is the stamp of approval of the United States government upon their valuations which water water makes out.

In 1907 in the mills of the Roosevelt Lumber Company, owned by the well known Morgan and Perkins made a special trip to Washington, secured a special pass with Roosevelt's before he had breakfast and told him that they would prevent the spread of the disease of the Tennessee Coal & Iron Co. by the steel trust. The Tennessee Coal & Iron company was the formidable rival of the big steel trust. It has immensely valuable iron ore lying alongside the coal mines with cheap fuel near by, and it was subsequently testified by Charles M. Ashwell and others during the investigation that the steel could be produced cheaper by the Tennessee Coal & Iron company than anywhere else in the world. It was also brought out at the investigation that the Tennessee Coal & Iron Co's properties were worth $25,000,000, but Mr. Morgan and Perkins, who had then brought on a picnic, as they are trying to bring it on now, intimidated Roosevelt into sanctioning the purchase of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Co. by the steel trust for a paltry $29,000,000 or less than one-seventh its actual value.

Every loyal American should be thankful that we have a president in this crisis who will not yield to the demands of Wall street for a few days of temporary prosperity, and it behooves every American citizen to stand by the administration and give it his moral support.

—J. T. FISHER

THE SUCCESSFUL WOMAN

From Catholic Sentinel:
The fact remains that the women who really constitute the backbone of any country are not the few brilliant women in public life, or the many workingwomen in business life, although girls in the business world are making headway, and women in professional fields are successful.

The women who are doing the greatest work of the country are those who have always done it. They are those women who through their pure characters and their sweet influences make their homes a center of happiness, who rear wholesome children, who make their fathers and brothers and husbands and children happier and better because of their presence. Not what she does, but what she is, makes the successful woman.

The most fortunate women are those who are doing, not the spectacular things, but just these simple duties that are sometimes spoken of with weariness or even with half contempt, but which should always be spoken of with reverence—woman's work.
