TEACHERS COURSE OFFERED.

It has recently been decided by the faculty to offer a short course for the benefit of teachers and prospective teachers who wish to prepare for the coming state examinations to be held at the county seat the last of June. The course will embrace all subjects required for the securing of a one-year state certificate and includes strong reviews in arithmetic, grammar, United States history, geography, spelling, reading, physiology theory and practice, Oregon school law, civil government and Palmer Method of penmanship. The work will last for six weeks beginning May 17, with continuous classes until the examination dates. Regular classes will be held on Saturday where desired. Aside from the above subjects, work will be offered for the qualification of higher certificates. Teachers may prepare for a five year and a life diploma, classes to be organized in psychology, history of education, American and English literature, general history, botany, geology, algebra and geometry, and higher english composition. Work for teachers who desire to secure the primary five years certificate will be offered if desired. Prospective teachers may enter at any time and stay as long as they wish. The terms are most reasonable. Four dollars per week includes all tuition fees, boarding and lodging. Special privileges will be allowed to all who form these classes. Picnic parties, long strolls in the woods, and pleasant profitable, hours out of doors, with the comforts of home life, are to be allowed. The instructions will be individual. The members of the faculty are holders' of teachers' state life diplomas and other evidences of solid scholarship, with many years of teaching experience. All the teachers who are contemplating taking a teachers' review course for the next examination are invited to correspond or call upon us. All communications should be addressed to Sister Superior, St. Mary's Institute, Beaverton, Ore.

Mummies of Peru.
Before taking leave of Cuzeo, Peru, we went to see the very interesting collection of Inca relics in the private museum of a Peruvian doctor who has devoted many years of his life to Inca research. Ranged round the walls were mummies which had been taken from rock tombs. All had been buried in a sitting posture, and, judging by the horrible expressions of agony on the parchment skin, I should imagine that some of them, prisoners of war, I was told, had been entombed alive. The horror of those mummified faces and the awful contortions of the skeletons haunted me for a long time, nor shall I ever forget the sight.

One or two of the skulls bore evidence of skillful surgery, star shaped pieces of bone having been cleverly fitted in to repair damage done by the star shaped stone weapons of the period. I did not measure those I saw in the museum, but one of the afore-said stone weapons which we brought back to England from Cuzeo measured four inches from point to point across the top—a truly formidable club—Wide World Magazine.

They Feared the Dutch.
In 1673, in the old days of England's wars with the Dutch, the inhabitants of Sherbournham, in terror of invasion by the Dutch forces, petitioned the Lord Lieutenant and deputy Lieutenants of Norfolk "Our Town," they said, "Joyes upon ye Maine sea, and we are afraid every night ye enemy should come ashore and fire Our Towne when we be in our Bedds; for ye Houses stand very close together, and all ye Houses thatched with straw, that in one houres time ye Towne may be burnt, for we have nothing to Resist them But our Gunne, with a broken carriage and four Musquets, which we bought at our Owne cost and charges; which is a very small defence against an enemy; and likewise wee have no powder, nor shot for ye said Gunne, nor Musquets, when we stand in need." They therefore asked for a few more muskets, with powder and bullets. In granting this the authorities stipulated that Sherbournham should not "imbecill ye said arms and ammunition."

Oliver Goldsmith and Powders.
April 4, 1774, died Oliver Goldsmith, in his forty-seventh year, at the height of his fame, as also of his embarrassments. Goldsmith's death was hastened, as some thought, by his taking against his apothecary's wish the famous specific, Dr. James' fever powders. One should be just to the powders. Goldsmith himself thought he had been given spurious and not the genuine powders, while Mr. Hawkes, his apothecary, declared the sick man had taken the right remedy in a wrong fashion and after Goldsmith's death published in collaboration with the poet's other two physicians, "An Account of the Late Dr. Goldsmith's Illness So Far as relates to the Exhibition of Dr. James' Powders." Death pays all debts. In no other way could Goldsmith have cleared himself.—London Spectator.

A Costly Quarrel.
Rowley, the English violinist, was hard to beat in his perseverance against one who had incurred his ill will. Rowley had a quarrel with a horse dealer named Brant. It was a trivial matter, but Rowley took the next house to Brant, set up a piano, bought a cornet and proceeded to make insomnia for Brant. After one or two assault cases in court Brant moved. Rowley bought out the next door neighbor and followed with piano and cornet. Brant went to law, but found he could do nothing. Finally, he took a detached house. Then Rowley hired brass bands and organs and assailed him. This was actionable, and Rowley paid $5,000 for his revenge.—London Tatler.

The Gospel Oak.
In the village of Polstead, Suffolk, England, stands a famous oak which the rector has proved to be 2,000 years old. The tree has a girth of thirty-six feet and has been known always as the gospel oak, since under it the first Christian missionaries preached to the heathen Saxons thirteen centuries ago. This event is commemorated each year by a special service held under the tree.

Early Soporifics.
Hoatho, a Chinese physician who lived in the third century, gave his patients a preparation of hemp, whereby they were rendered insensible during surgical operations. The soporific effects of mandrake are mentioned by Shakespeare.

Retreating in Disorder.
"Who was that tough looking chap I saw you with today, Hicks?"
"Be careful, Parker. That was my twin brother."
"By jove, old chap, forgive me! I really ought to have known."—Kansas City Times.

Wrong Either Way.
Isabel—I'll never have another photograph taken. Dorothy—Why not, dear? Isabel—Oh, if it looks like me I don't like it, and if it flatters me my friends don't like it!—Exchange.

A Woman's Way.
"Your doom is sealed!" cried the villain.
"Ha," laughed the heroine defiantly, "I guess I can steam it open!"—Chicago Herald.

The Difference.
"Your cook is just like one of the family, isn't she?"
"Dear me, no! She never would get warmed over dishes."—Baltimore American.
