TUESDAY, MAY 11, 1915

The most broken outrageous impudence the American nation has ever exhibited for many a day, was shown in the city of Washington the other day, when on the semi-centennial anniversary of the death of Abraham Lincoln, a nation on the nearest corner to the historic house in which the martyred president died, advertised that it was "the place where John Wilkes Booth took his last drink." It was that "last drink" which served the assassin to fire the fatal shot. The saloonist who would coin money out of that infamous fact must be a degenerate indeed.

It is a Russian soldier is killed in battle he is identified by a number badge, a French soldier by a card stitched into his tunic, a German soldier by a little metal one bearing his number, a British soldier has an aluminum disc, with identification marks and chosen affiliations, a Japanese soldier by three discs, all affixed one on the neck, another in his belt and one in his boot; an Austrian by gunmetal badge, looked shape, with identification on a tiny parchment leaf within. The Turk carries no badge identification, being considered not worth while.

The Oregon State Grange is with us, it is used to say that Tillamook extends to the 20th or more delegates a most excellent welcome. The Grange as an organization has done much for Oregon and has done much for the nation. It has for fully organized every advanced moral and progressive issue for decades past, and is today one of the strongest pillars of our beloved commonwealth. The Grange gets results through deliberation and discussion. It has no place for profaneities. What it wants is the facts that it may act intelligently, and when it does makes up its mind what to do it does forward and makes its influence felt. Hats off to the Oregon State Grange.

One of the peculiar things to be taken into account in securing aid from the government for harbor improvements, is the fact that a port must show a certain amount of shipping done or business transacted over the water route before aid will be given. It does not matter what the facts are. The question which the government considers first and foremost is: What are you doing now? All of our business men and citizens of this vicinity would like to see the government aid in the improvement of our water way. But they must remember that if they do not take advantage of the facilities which they now have the government will take but little interest in any plan which they may make in the future. Our people should also remember that water competition is the only thing that will keep freight rates where they ought to be.

MILLER FISK AT THE CHAUTAUQUA

The program for the coming chautauqua is definitely arranged. Lecturers and entertainers of unexcelled worth are to appear here for six consecutive days, beginning July 12. The talent, secured through the ceaseless efforts of the local committee of five wives, is the best obtainable either in the United States or on the continent. Never before has such an opportunity been afforded citizens. Nothing now remains to prevent the entire city from taking advantage of these educational and inspirational offerings brought to its very door.

Miller Hammers Truth Home. Bringing a message fraught with the wisdom of the seer and the wit of a Mark Twain, Colonel William Hamilton Miller, the renowned Illinois lecturer and realistic humorist, is to be one of the leading speakers. He is heralded as the man who delivers the message of humanity's development with a smile. He pours forth his mighty truths in a terse, quiet manner, alternately keeping his audience under a spell of humor and thought. A man of letters he has straight from the shoulder with speeches that bristle with epigrams and show only to plainly that the lecturer fills the part of community philosopher and optimist.

Heroine "The Jungle" Coming
Morris Ralston Fisher, heroine in many human interest tragedies staged in that part of the timberland of Oregon, the smoky city, made famous by Upton Sinclair as the "Jungle" is coming. A student of human hearts she plays upon the strings of emotion and sympathy and implants a message in the mind of her hearers as her fingers part on the greatest pictures of life and her ready wit, her versatile humor and crisp word painting keep her hearers enraptured. She unobtrusively shares their thoughts about the higher things in life.

MOOSE LEND ASSISTANCE

Secretary R. H. Foster of the Moose Lodge of this city recently received the following communication from the widow of Frank Foster:

Cliftondale, Oregon, May 3, 1915.
Loyal Order of Moose, Tillamook, Ore.
Dear Sirs:

I acknowledge the receipt of your check for one hundred dollars last evening. I wish to express to you my thanks for the prompt and kindly manner in which the order fulfilled its obligations during my husband's illness. Moose members everywhere were especially kind to him. With a wish for the prosperity and good of the order which does so much for its members, I remain, Yours sincerely, Mabel N. Foster. Besides the above aid, Mr. Foster had previously received $250 in sick benefits.

EUSTAIS PETTEYS DEAD

On Friday at 5:20 P. M., of last week Eustais Marion Pettys, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maudie B. Pettys, of Bay City, died at the home of his uncle L. C. Bewley, of this city. Deceased had been ailing with diabetes for some time and was at the Bewley home for the purpose of taking treatments. He was 18 years old, a fine young man much beloved by all who knew him. He was an active and much valued member of the band, playing the baritone.

The funeral services were held at the home at Bay City on Sunday, and interment took place at the Bay View cemetery. Rev. Strude preached the funeral sermon.

Deceased leaves a father, mother, two brothers and one sister, and many other relatives and friends who are much grieved at his untimely death.

DOESN'T LIKE WAR

Thoroughly disgusted with war conditions in Europe, G. V. Copson recently appointed to a position on the faculty of the Oregon Agricultural College, writes that he has been forced by the policy of the German government to leave Germany and that he is now pursuing his research work at Bern, Switzerland. He was able to continue his studies in the great German University at Munich for some months after war broke out, specializing in dairy and pathological lines. He has both a bachelor's and a master's degree from O. A. C. and has done graduate work in the Massachusetts Agricultural College. He says that he hopes to get back to Corvallis, his former home, sometime this spring. His instructorship in the college will begin with the next college year.

OREGON STATE COLLEGE DECLARED STANDARD

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, May 11. Stating that "the only thing which this great and magnificently equipped institution lacked to meet the requirements of a standard college was the foundation of a full four years of secondary work for entrance," the specialist of the United States Bureau of Education says that the Oregon Agricultural College should be rated as a standard college when its requirements for a four-year secondary course for entrance to the degree courses goes into effect in September, 1915. The report further notes the fact that the college has added one year of secondary work to its entrance requirements and has announced the rising of these requirements to four years of secondary work to take effect in September, 1915. "In every other respect," concludes the report, "this institution fully meets the terms of both the Salt Lake City resolutions and the State Educational Department's definition. The standardization requirements of a four year secondary course have been fully met and take effect with the end of the present school year. Only students completing a four year high school course with a minimum of fifteen high school units are eligible to the degree courses.

MAKING LIFE ATTRACTIVE TO BOYS ON THE

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, May 11. "Give the boy the best interest in the business of the farm," Dean A. B. Conroy, Dean of the school of agriculture in the Agricultural College. "The boy likes to go to the city where he can earn a salary, but if he is given a share of the profits of an acre or more of acres farmed as he best salary job, will be happy to begin figuring how long he will stay on the farm, and how long he will stay on the farm. An even better way is to give him a cash or call on the farm when the animal is marketed, profits are to go to the boy in the satisfaction earned will be a greater incentive to work hard."

"Statistics show that only one percent of the boys stay on the farm, where it is difficult to get for his individual interest in the work, while 82 per cent stay on larger farms of 200 acres or more. The boy's home life is a business life, most hard work for him. For years the boy has been striving to bring the farm into the city and it is now to get the city into the farm, which is easier and cheaper than the usual method of getting the boy and his family into the city. The natural attraction of the city life will lead the boy to the city, and it is now to get the city into the farm."
