A NEAR FATAL ACCIDENT

The little son of John Zurcher narrowly escaped being killed last Wednesday. The little fellow with two other children followed Mr. Zurcher into the field, where he went with a mowing machine to cut outs. On the first trip around the field the children were behind him, but on his second trip around he had caught up to them and they were in front of him. He called to them to run out of the road and he thought they were all out of his way; but the little one, instead of running to one side out of the path of the machine, sat down in the oats just within reach of the machine. Mr. Zurcher did not notice him until the ma-
