TUESDAY OCTOBER 5, 1915

In examining an application for dual citizenship papers this week the following questions and answers were given:

Question: Where does the state legislature meet?

Answer: At Salem.

Ques. What does the legislature do?

Ans. Works a little and does a little. That man was certainly entitled to full citizenship privileges, and then some.

Is prohibition working in West Virginia? Let the following report from fifty-four municipalities given by the state commissioner of prohibition answer: Total arrests for the year ended June 30, 1914, 15,267; for the year ended June 30, 1915 (the first prohibition year), 7,731. For the year ended June 30, 1914, there were 7,825 arrests for drunkenness, and for the year ended June 30, 1915, 2,772. Thus there has been a decrease in crime of virtually fifty per cent.

Great Britain is facing the most prodigious mountain of debt any nation ever encountered. Chancellor of the Exchequer McKenna tells parliament that the government's revenue for the current year will be $1,390,000,000, and the expenditures $7,850,000,000; and by the close of the year the dead weight of national debt will reach $11,000,000,000. This statement was preliminary to the introduction of the new budget, which proposes drastic taxation on a scale never before imposed by the British nation. Half-penny postage is abolished; incomes of $18 a week and over are taxed, graded up as the increase, until an income of $25,000 a year will pay $12,645 tax. Those with enormous fortunes will pay one-third of their income to the government. Automobiles, bicycles, motion picture films, clocks, watches, musical instruments, plate glass and hats will pay a duty of 83 1/3 per cent ad valorem, yet, strange to say, spirits and beer remain untouched by the new schedule.

Henry Ford, the Detroit millionaire peace advocate, is again strongly in the limelight because of the novel method he is advocating for the elimination of war and promotion of universal peace. On Wednesday of last week he was in close conference with President Wilson and Secretary of the Navy Daniels, who have taken a deep interest in his suggestions. Briefly, Mr. Ford's idea is somewhat similar to Theodore Roosevelt's when he said the way to avoid war was to be prepared for it. Mr. Ford's suggestion is, make war so terrible that no nation will be willing to engage in it. With his eminently practical turn of mind, Mr. Ford proposes: (1) a revolution in submarines, by use of the gasoline engines, so that no warship can stand against them; (2) wireless controlled aircraft, needing no human operator or pilot, which can drop explosives galore wherever desired. "Such engines of destruction could be constructed for two cents a pound engine and all. They would call for no sacrifice of life by the nation using them and would preclude absolutely the thought of any other nation attempting war against the country so equipped." I believe there's ingenuity in the United States to depopulate the earth. Mr. Ford is willing to try to work out his ideas, and many officials are anxious to have him do so. At first thought it may seem rather inconsistent for a peace advocate who has offered ten million dollars to promote peace, in the next breath to propose to make war more deadly than ever. That certainly will hardly meet Mr. Bryan's ideas. Yet there may be a profoundly sound philosophy in it. Everybody will at least watch with interest to see what the Detroit Wizard will work out.

dent Wilson led his cabinet in prayer at a recent meeting was told here yesterday by Bishop William F. Anderson of Cincinnati, at a session of the Indiana Methodist Episcopal conference. A United States Senator told the bishop of the incident, he said. The senator had heard it from one of his church members, who prayed with the president.

When the president arrived at the cabinet meeting, said the bishop, his face wore a solemn look. It was evident that the serious affairs of the nation were on his mind. He said to the cabinet members, "I don't know whether you men believe in prayer or not. Let us pray and ask the help of God."

"And right there the president of the United States fell upon his knees and the rest of the members of the cabinet did the same and the president uttered a prayer to God. While the war rages in Europe, we in this country should thank God that in this crisis of the world we have a chief executive who is a servant of God, who stands with his hand in the hand of God. Every minister in the land should every time he offers a prayer like Woodrow Wilson by the hand and lead him into the presence of God and ask that he be given strength to continue to be the great apostle of peace among men."

Later a telegram expressing the confidence of the delegates in him was sent to the president.

EVENTS IN BASEBALL

Jimmy Galvin Pitched the First Hit No Run Game. Salaries first were paid to ball players in 1868 by the Cincinnati club. Roger Connor, the famous pitcher, got in 1,071 games in ten consecutive seasons had a grand hitting average of .225.

Richard J. (Dickey) Pierce is credited with introducing the bunt hit in the summer of 1876.

The first 1-0 game on record was played by the Chicago and St. Louis teams in 1873, the former winning the contest.

O. Nicholson holds the record for the greatest number of stolen bases in a season. When with the Frankfort team of the Blue Grass league in 1912 he stole 111 bases in 122 games.

In 1913 the Meridian team of the Texas States league was defeated in twenty-six consecutive games, the record.

The first no hit game, no player reaching first base, in the history of baseball took place in 1876. James Givins of the St. Louis Reds was the record making twirler, and he pitched against the Cass club of Detroit. The battle took place at Topeka, Mich., Aug. 17. The test was repeated twice in 1879 by J. L. Richmond of the Worcester National League outfit. On June 2 against Chicago and on July 25 against Springfield. Again, on June 1880, Richmond performed the exact stunt against Cleveland, and in the same year, on June 17, John M. Ward twirled for Providence, besting Buffalo in this kind of a contest.

No additions were made to the names until May 5, 1904, twenty-four years later, when D. T. (Dixie) Dean of the Boston American League team defeated the Athletics in a no hit game, the first player reaching first, home, and a player similarly best the White Sox when twirled for the Cleveland American League club on Oct. 2, 1908.

F. W. Thayer of Harvard wore the catcher's mask in 1876. He was catching for the Crimson team at the time.—Ed. A. Gosey, in Lester.

SWING OF THE WIND.

Thirty-five years ago, while making a four month's voyage, I was frequently impressed by the unerring accuracy with which Captain O'Neil, one of the best known captains sailing from New York, forecast the course of the weather. In reply to my question he answered, "Doctor, as a result of fifty years of seafaring life, I assure you that almost invariably, night or day without exception, the wind will shift to the westward." In its shifting follows the course of the hands of a clock—that is, from right to left.

"Of course," he added, "one can say how long the wind will remain any quarter, but when it changes, it will almost without exception do so in the course I have stated. For instance, if the wind is in the northeast instead of going to the north and then to the northwest, it will go to the north, or to the east, or to the south, southwest, west, and finally reach the northwest."

When I asked him why that was, he said he had never been able to obtain an answer to that, but that was an absolute rule as far as the practice of his life went.

One other observation I have made through all these years, although not by any means as exact as the one above, is that the winds have a fairly accurate knowledge of the time in which they reach their various quarters. For instance, northeast and east winds are greater two or three days in duration, and usually shifting to southwest and then after a day's duration to the west and northwest. These remarks apply only to the Atlantic coast and contiguous states and are inapplicable to the Pacific, where conditions, in some respects even remarkable, are entirely different.

Will in Ancient Greece.

Wills were introduced into Athens by Solon, though in many other parts of Greece they were discontinued. Diogenes Laertius gives copies of wills of several celebrated men, as Plato, Aristotle, and others. But Solon's law no man was allowed to make a will, the wealth of the deceased belonging in certain proportions to the members of his family and after Solon only an Athenian citizen had the privilege of leaving the estates of both slaves and foreigners confiscated for the use of the state.

Island of Manhattan.

In other days there were the islands of Manhattan and Manhattan Bay. They were different bodies. Manhattan was applied to the land occupied by the old city of New York, now the borough of Manhattan. Manhattan Island was a little knoll in the limits of what is now Houston and Lewis streets and river. At high tide the knoll was an island.
