

At High School Auditorium Saturday, Nov. 13, 8:15 P. M. BEVERLY ENTERTAINERS

THE Beverly Entertainers is one of the most successful of the smaller companies that have entered upon lyceum work in recent years. They sing, read, play mandolins and guitars, give musical sketches in attractive costumes, and thus offer an evening of most delightful entertainment.

The guitar solos presented by Miss Rita Smith, have been an instantaneous hit. The musical numbers in Dutch costumes have proved to be a unique and attractive feature. "A most delightful program" is the verdict of all who hear this company.

GIRL DRIVER WINS BIG

ECONOMY RUN.

To the amusement of the veteran road drivers who took part in the recent Maxwell efficiency run from Buffalo to their homes in New England and the other North Atlantic states, the first prize winner turned out to be the only woman pilot in the tour. Miss Eva Cunningham, daughter of F. J. Cunningham, Maxwell dealer at Haverhill, Mass., drove from Buffalo to Haverhill, 57 miles, on exactly 17 gallons of gasoline—an average of 33.37 miles to the gallon. Her car was a new Maxwell roadster.

Oil Economy Too.

There is no disputing Miss Cunningham's record. Her drive was under the eye of several witnesses and the results are set forth in her own affidavit.

Miss Cunningham's car also went the route without the addition of a drop of cylinder oil to the original supply. This is really the fact which won her the big slice for the Flanders prize, as her mileage on fuel was exceeded by two of the other cars in the big tour—those driven by her father and by George D. Robinson, of Springfield, Mass. Mr. Cunningham's new Maxwell touring car averaged 36.85 miles per gallon, and Mr. Robinson's roadster, 34.9. Each of the male pilots, however, added a quart of oil to the original supply.

Second prize went to Verne H. Jackson, of Pen Argyl, Pa., and third to Joseph De Cantillon, of Meriden, Conn., the former covering 388 and the latter 474 miles.

As of the tourists, virtually all of whom were Maxwell dealers driving new cars to their homes from Buffalo, the average of better than 30 miles per gallon, sixteen scored between 25 and 30 miles. In fact, the average of the entire tour, including light cars, was very close to 25 miles to the gallon—a degree of efficiency almost incredible to those not acquainted with recent carburetor developments in cars of the light popular-priced type.

Climbs "Ladder" on High.

The tourists who watched Miss Cunningham's driving praise her without reservation. She piloted her car up "Jacob's Ladder"—a rolling trail of 20 miles—on high gear, and showed the most dashing sort of skill on a number of detours where such and difficult roads were met with.

A year ago a sensation was caused when a Maxwell, under observation at Yale University, made a record of 33.2 miles to the gallon. This record was bettered by three of the cars in the recent tour, including the one driven by Miss Cunningham. Nor had the 1916 model Maxwells been given any preparation for the test; all were new cars getting their first run after leaving the factory.

Sheriff of Tillamook County, Oregon.

I DID NOT THINK.

Here is a man with a bright idea or new invention which is just the thing needed. We say, "Why in the world did not someone think of that before?" Now that the other fellow has thought of it, you can see it, it is the simplest thing in the world. You might have created that idea. A dozen times you have been on the verge of thinking of it, but you just didn't.

Here is a simple little thoughtful deed of kindness which some one has done possibly for some one very near you. You had a thousand chances to do that thing, and you would like to have done it, too. But somehow just did not think.

You have been doing your work in the most convenient and awkward way, and someone comes along and shows you a simple change that makes it all the easier and more handy. You rub your eyes and say, "Well, didn't I see that before?"

Well that is the greatest difference between people in this world. Some people see things and some do not. Some people are sensitive to little things, and some go through life absent-minded, like sleep walkers. Some minds are always thinking out new ways of doing things, and some are everlastingly the creatures of habit and custom.

The greatest benefactor of humanity is the man who can make people think.

Many people live lives of needless drudgery, they never rise out of the deadly commonplace; they never get out of life half that there is in it, just because they do not think.

The world is mentally lazy. And mental laziness is the worst kind of laziness. If you think, you must hold your attention upon something for a while, and that takes effort—you may have to change your mind about some thing, and that means no end of exertion.

And so people shrink from new ideas, they often miss their finest opportunities, they become the plodding slaves of things as they are; they go on stoically enduring unnecessary misery and making a virtue of their endurance, largely because it is too much trouble to use their brains.

If you do not think, some one else must do your thinking for you, and he will be your master.

A little thinking would save the world half its suffering. All around us we see terrible accidents that could have been prevented if some one had only thought a little at the right time.

And we go living wasted lives, killing our loves and our ideals by slow tortures, misjudging one another, stupidly creating and then torturing criminals, doping ourselves with drugs, repeating word out platitudes, inflicting terrible injustice, enthroning lies, stoning prophets, all for want of little mental exercise.

Even in our desire to make the world better we do not think enough. Blind partisanship, popular passion, and hatred can never improve things. We have to become a thinking people or we shall never take a single step of progress.

It is not the cunning selfishness of exploiters, nor superstition, nor tyranny imposed from without that holds the world back. It is just mental laziness.

The world today is beginning to wake up and think about a lot of things that it used to accept as a matter of course. And how much honest original thinking have you done since the day you were born?

That is the whole question of progress so far as you are concerned.

Three American troopers were killed and eight wounded in a 40-minute battle with Mexican raiders at Ojo del Agua, on the American side of the Rio Grande, near the town of Brownsville, Texas, last night. Two Mexicans were slain.
