WHEN WAR WAGES END.

Experience proves that when the workingman has once enjoyed high wages he will never be satisfied with anything else. Will any of the European powers be able to keep up wages at the present high level after the war is over. If the workingman cannot get big wages in his own country, will he not be irresistibly drawn to the United States, where wages are always higher than in any other country in the world? Immigration from the Balkan states was wonderfully stimulated at the close of the Balkan war, the immigration from Serbia, Bulgaria, Montenegro and Greece almost doubling in 1914 that of 1912. The desire to escape militarism, the poverty and the excessive taxation that will follow in the reconstruction period after the war, and the lure of the land of high wages all point to a tidal wave of immigration at the close of the war. This gives added significance to the recent decision of the supreme court, declaring void Arizona's anti-alien law. By the initiative process of legislation, Arizona enacted a law which required employers of more than five persons to employ not less than eighty per cent qualified electors or citizens. The supreme court dclared the law to be unconstitutional, on the ground that an alien has a right to the equal protection of the law as guaranteed by the fourteenth amendment to the constitution. "It requires no argument" said Justice Hughes in rendering the court's decision "to show that the right to work for a living in the common occupations of the community is of the very essence of the personal freedom and opportunity that it was the purpose of the fourteenth amendment to secure." The broad principle upon which the decision rests is that the right to live carries with it of necessity the right to work. If an alien has a right to live in Arizona or any other state, he cannot be deprived of their right to work there.

The decision is more far-reaching than in its application to aliens. If an alien's right to work cannot be infringed upon, no other man's can. The right of a man to work for his living is a natural right, not one conferred upon him by the constitution, but a natural right the exercise of which is protected by the constitution. Have we not gotten down in this decision of the supreme court to a fundamental principle that must govern in all future labor disputes? The principle involved in the decision of the supreme court upon Arizona's anti-alien law is practically the same contained in the testimony of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., before the Federal Commission on industrial relations, in which he expressed his belief in labor unions, provided that they leave "every worker free to associate himself with such groups or to work independently.—Charles Bates Stinger, in Leslie's.

TEMPERANCE NOTES.

Of five congressional vacancies in the entire country filled on Tuesday, November 2, three were in New York state. All three of the Republicans elected will stand for the submission of a prohibition amendment to the constitution of the United States.

The sale of intoxicants on all Denver & Rio Grande railroad trains will cease after January 1, 1916, when Colorado becomes dry territory. The order will apply not only to Colorado but to trains operating in Utah and New Mexico, which has not prohibition states.

Official declaration has just been made that liquors are no longer to be regarded as necessary medicines. Recently, by a vote of twenty-six to twenty-four, the committee of revision decided to exclude whisky and brandy from the new edition of the "United States Pharmacopoeia."

Harrison county continues to hold the banner as the dryest county in Ohio. This year the drys polled 3,469 votes in the county, while the wet strength was but 858. In the county seat town of Cadiz, with a population of 2,000, but 119 wet votes were polled. There has not been a saloon in Cadiz for nineteen years.

The National Dairy Council recently in session at Chicago, voted to raise $250,000 advertising fund to be used in the newspaper to demonstrate that it is unjust to the dairy cow to expend five times as much per capita for liquor as for milk. A committee composed of leading men in the dairy business in different parts of the country was appointed to conduct a nation wide campaign of education.

Of all the crazy things said and done in connection with the European war has there been anything more insane than the attitude of the trades unionists of London toward the government's resolutions shortening the hours during which liquor may be sold? For the Russian government had the sense to establish a system like unto prohibition, at the opening of the war. Chancellor Lloyd-George urged Great Britian to do likewise, declaring thatdrink was a worse enemy than Germany. The government did not have the nerve to do it, but it did recently, to check somewhat the drink evil and promote labor efficiency, order that after November 20 the hours during which saloons might be kept open should be curtailed. Thereupon 500 delegates to a conference of London trade unionists passed a resolution pledging themselves to resist to the utmost, "by open revolt if necessary," these regulations. Later they raised the cry, "No beer before dinner, no work after," and appealed to the labor members of parliment, demanding that they "save London from teetotal tyranny." Do these men care more for their drink than they do for their country? It looks that way.

GOD PITY CALIFORNIA WHEN OREGON IS DRY

The following verses were written in answer to a song composed by Capt. McGenn of the steamer Breakwater, by Rev. C. H. Waymire of North Bend, Ore.

What means this noisy concourse as they go marching by,
They're bound for California so they say;
They are defeated liquor men and boozers who did try
To hold Oregon in saloon men's awful sway,
But in the last election they were routed hip and thigh
By the grandest men and women of our day.
So they're off for California, hear their curse as they go by,
God pity California when Oregon is dry.

The church men stood together, they declared that live or die,
The cursed liquor traffic had to go.
The Women's Christian Temperance Union joined in as they passed by,
And they all for temperance voted don't you know,
The business men came next, men to whom you well could tie,
Shouting manhood and efficiency shan't go!
While bums and thugs and harlots all stood for hop juice pie,
God pity California when Oregon is dry.

[illegible] Washington did grandly [illegible]
[illegible] saved by allowing all
[illegible]
[illegible] of Arizona there arose a mighty cry,
That the liquor dealers there should stand no show,
And the breezes whispering temperance as calmly they blew by,
Giving life and hope and blessing where they blow,
While better thinking people all heaved a long deep sigh
God pity California when Oregon is dry.

But there is a fairer picture, please look as you go by,
Repentance will work wonders, yes thats so.
They can have their sins forgiven and stay home if they but try,
Just be sober and industrious that's all.
Bow your heads to large majorities, all's well so do not cry,
Sobriety will never burst your gall.
California can your grape juice and stand for things that high
And God will surely bless you the day that you vote dry.
