$10,000,000 FOR NEW FREIGHT CARS

Union Pacific System Will Build Them All With Lumber
From Northwest Mills.

The Union Pacific system will expend immediately nearly $10,000,000 for increased freight car equipment according to announcement yesterday through the local offices. This is among the first announcements of railway expenditures that is of importance to the Pacific northwest.

The contracts which require the expenditure of the money call for the building of 4500 new freight cars for delivery the first six months of this year. The contracts require the use of lumber from this territory to enter into the construction of the cars. Several million feet of fir lumber will be used in building the cars. The railway officials have specified that the car builders who will erect them in the east obtain this lumber from mills on the Union Pacific line in this section.

Of the 4500 cars, 2000 will be double-sheathed 40-foot, 50-ton box cars; 1500 will be special double-sheathed 40-foot, 50-ton automobile cars for general service, including movement of grain in bulk, and 1000 are to be steel 50-foot, 50-ton automobile cars suitable also for general freight service.

The building of the special cars for the carrying of bulk grain will be of great benefit to the grain shippers of this section. These cars will be tight and moisture proof. It is planned to keep them in service for shuttle service back and forth from grain-loading stations to railroad terminal and shipping points at the time of year when grain is moving in its greatest bulk.

B-U-N-K

By the Cub Reporter

Lowly, Gang! Did you take a last pot at the ducks Sunday? The butchers were sure complaining of the continued silence of their cash register bulls the fore part of the week. The ducks must have been responsible.

Hollie Watson's in love! Horrible state of affairs, isn't it? Says that he celebrated his eighteenth wedding anniversary with a chicken dinner. The worst part of this yarn is that he done his celebrating at home with his wife and kiddies. So, we assert—Hollie is in love, and with his wife at that. Says that if he had it to over again he'd trot along and hunt up the same girl, preacher and all. Can you beat it? What are these married men coming to?

They're telling a good one on Art, the iron man down at Hiner's. Art USED to be a basketball player. Friday night the Odd Fellow's team carried him to Blaine to act as referee (no one else was available) and they say he was responsible for the seven (no one else was available) and they say he denies it, but the Blaine-ites think otherwise.

A little bird handed me a sure-enough news scoop yother day. Said bird whispered that a certain prominent jeweler was contemplating the installation of one of the alleged new outfits for the manufacture of synthetic gold. Great Caesar! What will happen when old iron, lead, copper and brass is transmuted right here into gold? The banks had better sit up and take notice, eh gang? At that it would be kinda nice to hand over a chunk of lead pipe or a few flatirons in payment on the mortgage on the home.

A good many people are eating bran now. Not so many moons ago these same folks were drinking mineral oil. Bran is offered as an alibi for exercise for the tired man. It works on the alimentary system about as what farmers call roughage does on other brutes—cows for instance. To us bran is just like so much sawdust and mineral oil like so much castor oil.

Haven't heard a word from Messrs. "atridge and Morrison with regard to a ticket of entrance to their movie emporium. Maybe the Gem was not built for printers, but we do not claim to be anything of the sort which fact we gently call to their attention.

John Junior, whom we lovingly refer to as our esteemed co-worker from the pressroom, was again a dinner guest at Bay City. With all our hinting and advertising we were forced to dine out at the same old lunch counter. Some people were born lucky; others with good looks. Ahem!

But then we shouldn't kick! Ma Brenner reads B-U-N-K anyhow. She presented us with a platter of rich home-cooked, honest-to-gosh doughnuts, hole and all, the other day. The boss eat ours but he says they were sure fine. We like doughnuts, also cream pie and home-made fudge.

Got to go 'round and see Halton's man, Frank, so will ring off. Frank is selling everything Mr. Halton ever brought into the store at about half price and maybe he needs some help or expert advice. We can get him either or both, hence our haste.

The Thanksgiving Cranberry. Probably very little is generally known as to the origin of the cranberry. Originally it grew wild, as, in fact, it does today in several of the Canadian border states, in the salt marshes of the coast states, in the glades of the Adirondacks and as far south as Virginia and the Carolinas. The wild cranberry, however, is distinctly inferior to its cultivated relative. Both grow on a small, hardy shrub, about six inches in height. The fruit takes its name from the appearance of the flower, which, just before expanding into perfection, bears a marked resemblance to the neck, head and bill of a crane. Hence the name "crane-berry," which has become "cran-berry." Thanksgiving and the cranberry are one and inseparable. During the year the cranberry market is steady, but in the month of November the demand is phenomenal, over half of the year's crop being disposed of within 30 days. Over a million bushels are marketed each year in the United States.

Why "Pot-Luck?" When an invitation is issued to "come and take pot-luck" it is understood that no special preparation is made for the invited guest. There was a time, however, when "pot-luck" meant dishing the food out of a pot and when the guest really took chances of getting a good meal or a very slim one. In the old days—and the practice is still in force in some parts of Europe—nothing came amiss to the family cooking pot, suspended from the pot-hook in the middle of the fireplace. Everything edible was thrown in it, and "to keep the pot boiling" the fire was seldom or ever allowed to go out. When meal time came everyone fished in the pot for himself and whatever he happened to find was "pot-luck."

FIRST CUPBOARD IN AMERICA

Said to Have Been Brought to the Country by Lord Fairfax—Preceded Collarette.

It was not the custom until a recent period for each person to have a separate drinking vessel, and even as late as 1800 one writer says: "As for drinks, it is usually filled in pots, goblets, jugs, bowls of silver in noblemen's houses; also in fine Venetian glasses of all forms, and for want of these elsewhere pots of earth are used. All of which are seldom set upon the table, but each one, as necessity urges, calleth for a cup of such drinks as he likes."

A "cupboard richly garnished" was therefore a necessity in those days. That was one of the ways people displayed their wealth.

Lord Fairfax is said to have brought the first cupboard to this country when he settled in Virginia.

The framework of the first "cupboards" was always covered with "cupboard carpet" and for this purpose rugs of "Turkeywork" were imported from the East and became the first harbingers of those larger coverings to which nowadays alone the word carpet is attached. The change from an open stagework to an enclosed "cupboard," in the modern sense, was a gradual one, and arose out of the differing tendencies of the survivors of those days. "Almirens" or classets, were, therefore, placed in the lower part of the staging, into which the food was placed. The cupboard then became a "pantryhouse," and is frequently mentioned by old authors. After came the collarette.

HOW ISLANDS WERE PEOPLE

Anthropologists Believe It Was as a Result of Involuntary Voyages Made by Savages.

Sixteen natives of the Pelew Islands in the north Pacific made an involuntary canoe voyage to Formosa, which anthropologists find interesting. As reported, the voyage seems to add proof to a current theory of the manner in which the innumerable islands of Oceania were settled by man.

Now, the Pelew Islands lie east of the southern groups of the Philippines. Sixteen savages in three canoes with outriggers were fishing near one of the islands when a gale blew up and carried them out to sea. They had nothing to eat but fish. They were driven out for many days, some say sixty, in which time they probably traveled sixteen hundred miles in various directions, and at last sighted Formosa, an island of which they had never heard.

Almost dead from exhaustion, they landed and were kindly treated by the natives of that island. When they were able to eat and had regained their strength they were sent to Hong-kong, thence to the Caroline Islands and from there home in a trading schooner. After more than three months' absence they were hailed by their friends as risen from the dead.

It is by such involuntary voyages, anthropologists think, that man was placed on many of the widely scattered islands.
