John Junior, our New Orleans pressman and nighting editor, made his scheduled weekly trip to Bay City Sunday. Seems like he has a standing invitation. John's a likeable cuss when he's dolled up.

Howdy, Gang! Got that yeller tag or Lizzie yet? 'Bout time for Chief to call the roll, so better hurry if you haven't 'beat Lizzie be placed durance v.l.e. The question is, is he blamed old hunk of tin worth the money. Ben Olcott, et al, sure want a large enough divvy out of our pleasure allowance this year. It's the hunk.

A neighbor of ours was cussing last week. He sure was. Some miscreant visited the family clothes line and hid themselves off with said neighbor's "all-wool" munningspants, and provided the cause and wherof of friend neighbor donning his H.V. D.'s. The deuce of the thing was that the mercury suddenly dropped down to 18 degrees, which you all admit is not B. V. D. weather. Hence the cussing.

Portland's latest scandal has to do with corsets. Imagine a male school board being confronted with a thing of that sort. Methodist ministers, in all seriousness, allege that high school lassies had contracted the habit of "checking" their stays before trpping out onto the dance floor. The school board hollers "Bunk"; the teachers say "Bosh" and the kids themselves call it "Slender", while the sky pilots maintain that it is gospel truth. Tillamook isn't bothered that way however; never was and never will be—so we should laugh.

Boyd Mendenhall, fisherman by trade and haberdasher by profession, has a fishing record that many an angler would envy. He whips the streams hereabouts 48 Sundays in the year and seldom lets a holiday slip by without, trying his luck. Boyd hangs around Halton's when not fishing and is said to draw down a nice little pay check each week for his partiality toward Hart, Schaffner and Marx togs.

P. S. Boyd is still numbered among the eligible bachelors. School mams and bookkeepers please note.

Halton's man Frank—you all know Frank—Sunday hiking. Last Sunday he tramp'd out to the old shippard, inspecting the new ocean-beach highway, admiring the scenery and getting his feet wet. This past Sunday Frank hiked to Bay City. He hit the ties on the return trip and now he is composing a letter lamenting the impossibility of comfortable hiking along a railroad right-of-way. He is undecided whether to mail it to Ben Olcott with an idea of having the legislature take action or whether to send it to the railroad company. Anyway Frank's feet were sore and his shoes worn through. P. S. We accompanied Frank, so we know.

Opportunity.

In a southern town two young colored dandies each with a lady of color were going along the street, with a third dark rose walking unaccompanied between the two couples, when another young colored man hove in sight around the corner. "Howdy, Mistah Johnsing," called the nearest pair; "hit's a mighty fine day. Cain't you come ova and jine us? Here's a vacant lady."

The Apex of Shyness.

We've heard of shy men, but here's an English novelist who says he feels a strange embarrassment when he finds himself alone with one of his own female characters.—Boston Transcript.

Hoarseness Relieved.

Hoarseness can be relieved by mixing one teaspoonful of glycerin to a well-beaten white of an egg, the juice of one lemon and enough sugar to make it palatable.

Aid to Amateur Astronomer.
The fascinating study of the stars is the oldest of the sciences, and one which has interested human beings for ages. The average person who has not the time to take up this extensive study, but whom the stars interest as he gazes up at them on a clear night, is usually bewildered if he tries to distinguish one from the other. As an aid to the amateur astronomer, a star map has been drawn, which shows the star of the first five magnitudes, and the different constellation groupings. The stars of the first four magnitudes, and the lines showing the constellation groupings, are marked with radium salt, thus making them shine at night.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Will be what we make them through our care of the children of today—undernourished children cannot develop into vigorous alert men and women.

Neglect the boys and girls in their growing days, and we wrong them forever and beyond recall.
