HAYSEED AND GOLDMAN.

Farmer Hayseed: Here's a note for $1,000 guaranteed by Deacon Jones.

Want money on it for a considerable spell.

Banker Goldman: Well, that's what we call "gilt-edged." Will give you $939.50 in our notes for your individual note for $1,000, payable in one year; we keeping the guaranteed note as security.

Sixty dollars is the discount for one year, and fifty cents for the three day's grace.

F. H.: Whew! Never hear'n tell 't'you bank fellows had any grace to grant.

Don't see where it comes in either. You take pay for it a year in advance without waiting to see whether it is wanted or no.

But, say, I want the credit for twenty years. How much mought be then the mis—discount?

B. G.: H'm. Well, 'twould be $1,200.50. But we don't discount notes having that long to run.

F. H.: I should say not. Let's see. I would pay you down $200.50 and $1,000 when the note was due without ever have ing from you a measly red. Don't want any mis—dis—miscount that gits in such work. And come to think o' it, will vote no more of your bank men or their attorneys into office to "fix up the value" onto money so it'll miscount like that.—Truth Seeker.
