"TOO MUCH SPACE TO BLACK-GUARDS."

A news story sent out from Wash-ington a few days ago quoted Presi-ient Harding as saying, in discussing recent attacks upon members of the Tabinet, that the press gives too much space to the utterances of the black-guard and not enough to the really great and good things the government is doing. Harding to much share the President had in mind

Of course the President had in mind the big city dailies which are always looking for an opportunity to spring a sensation, and not the newspapers of the smaller towns, where people are not so much interested in the sputterings of the flannel mouth and the inconsequential of all classes; but in the people who are constructive forces in material, intellectual and spiritual accomplishment. spiritual accomplishment.

How did all these cheap-skates ever put the hoodoo on the big papers, any-way? From the pet nicknames applied people in the country doing anything the banker, use the hard-times excuse for the real advancement of the hutant people to be talked about and they do not need, instead of passing most prominent in public affairs were those of the classes enumerated above, It is hardly thinkable that the big notees at the bank, and yet manage newspapers have so great a patronage bestowed by the "Mike de Pikes," the "Big Tims," the "Cauliflower Joes," the Peggy Joyces, the "Sheiks" and a thousand others, that they are entitled to the spotlight and asinine adulation while everyday common people who are doing a good work should be but are not made conspicious by the work they are doing, even though it be something that is being done by some one else and therefore has no sensational features about it.

The President is right. Altogether too much space is given to the utter-ances of blackguards, and to the do-ings of people of absolutely no consequence. There has been built up an aristocracy of nothingness, if the misuse of the word aristocracy may be pardoned, in human values, and so long as patrons of the big newspapers permit themselves thus to be imposed upon without protest, probably just that long may there be nothing better expected .- Publishers' Auxiliary.

HARD TIMES. HAD HEARD IT ALL BEFORE

Mr. Pester's Pessimism Interrupted by Memories of His Grandfather's Remarks Concerning Time's Trond.

"This boasted progress of ours is mere illusion," grimly said old Festus Pester. "Corruption permeates our en-tire social fabric. Selfishness has sup-planted generosity. The process of disintegration is going on at an alarming rate. Our sole god has come to be money. Vice is tolerated, and we make obeisance by hypocrisy. Patriotism has disappeared. Waste and idleness abound. Humanity is decaying at heart. Criminality, moral obliquity, class hatred, the destruction of the family sentiment, pessimism and skepticism are evident on every side; and so on and so forth.

Do you know that while money is tight, as a natural result of natural tight, as a natural result of natural causes, times would not be hard if crisis is at hand, and also that it is people did not take advantage of them a pretty kettle of fish, if I did not to the bruisers, the bootleggers, the bank robbers, the dope fiends and the denizens of the underworld at large, one would suppose that there were no the butcher, the baker, the grocer and stage of the game and there are still could have it, to pay what they owe the world and his fellow men at his the butcher, the baker, the grocer and stage of the game and there are still in existence letters written by his for not meeting their obligations and grandfather wherein is set forth a man status, and that the most import- go out and spend good cash for things like estimate of the folks and affairs of his day, and there is a tradition to the effect that his ancestors felt the same way about their own times and associates. "We prate of our great civilization and we discount the ancients, because we know next to nothing of their methods or their customs," Colonel Archer said. "I found bathtubs made of onyx in Babylon and evidence of tubs made of metal and various other kinds of stone. They are identical with those of to-day, with the same openings for letting water in and for letting it out. The Babylonians had sanitation, plumbing and bath facilities practically as we have them to-
