Suggestions For Boosting Your Town

Don't be the man who put sit in it.
Building houses build a good town.
Save a little money and save a lot of worry.
Good roads lead not only to town, but to money.
Be a live one and the town will never be a dead one.
A nice town never has a evened in by an old maid.
Why should the town buzz with a lot of chatter?
When a woman plans to help the town, plan to help the plan.
The best way to have a town to visit is to have an honest plan.
A good way to have the word water to flow with the home town.
A town is not a chamber for a sn't nose, but a town it is a place.
Fasting about the depot with the mail bags for our paper we have noticed that when a woman with several children, basket and baggage, leaves to visit the house at the depot to see her off. But when a young lady with nothing but an empty pocket book leaves town there enough people as the depot to fill the waiting room. Oh, youth! how joyous and popular—how richly thou art lavished. We can not keep from growing old physically, but our mind and spirit may be so trained and conserved that we may linger long at the fountain of youth and enjoy its invigorating fragrance.—Gervais Star.

A newspaper editor or reporter can stop and ask a hundred persons "What is the news?" and fifty out of the hundred will reply: "Nothing special;" and yet fifty out of that number know something that if not found in the next paper will astonish them greatly and appoint them mor, and perhaps make them madder than hornets. Don't be afraid to let the newspaper man know it.

A town boy that spent his first night on a farm as a guest. When he got home he was asked "How did you like the farm?" "First he gave the cow some breakfast food and water and then he had the 'crank case'.

Being poor is no disgrace, but it is a disgrace to be poor and not to know it. It is a disgrace to be poor and not to know it.

And we have noticed that if the girl has lots of money, and her dad is rich, the wart on her nose is seldom noticed.

BUGGY RIDIN'

The old diversion of buggy ridin' is not going to disappear. The flivver, with all its temptations in the way of speed and speed has not yet succeeded in driving the buggy out of its traditional uses. These statements come from no less an authority than the secretary of the Carriage Builders National Association, which held a convention in New York a few days ago.

So there is still some pertinence left in the old joke we occasionally hear around Vernonia about the skill of the driver who could manage the reins with one hand. There may be chauffeurs sufficiently skilled to do the same thing with an automobile, but it's too dangerous to be popular. Buggy riding, even without a record-breaking speed, may retain all its charms when there is present the spell of the moonlight, or when the scent of the honeysuckle climbing over the rail fence grows richer in the warm-summer air—the right company being present, of course. All seasons are good for buggy riding under proper circumstances, especially to be recommended in the autumn afternoon, with dusk approaching, the air crisp and the glowing leaves of fall keeping pace with the horse along the roadside.

Nor has the horse yet become what has been called the beast of luxury. He is not alone for the higher vehicles of pleasure for delivery wagons and other wagons are always needed to wind among narrow streets and rough roads. These are other assertions of the carriage builders, and they serve as important evidence that the horse is not becoming extinct or 'buggy ridin' a forgotten pleasure.

PRODUCERS OR PARASITES?

Are you rearing your boys to be producers or parasites? This is a question that is or ought to be of most vital interest to fathers and mothers. Some parents give money to their children to spend as they wish, and when those same children are grown, will it be surprising if those same children are poor managers, knowing nothing of good buying, or the fundamental principles of making a dollar go far?

It is easy best to encourage children to earn. When they earn money it is less advice and reasoning to teach them how to spend it advantageously. Once the idea is established in their young minds that to get we must work, and each must do his or her part no matter how small, then they will endeavor to become producers, even in their small way. We have a deal of respect for the small boys who bring papers to us to sell. They surely never will be parasites. Teach the little people to work to earn. Begin early, give them compensation for humble tasks, teach them to buy wisely and well. The only great men worth while began with little things in a humble way; some had only ambition to aid them, but they achieved the things they sought.

USE YOUR HEAD

A wood pecker pecks out a great many specks of sawdust. When building a hut: He works like a nigger. To make the hole bigger—He's sore if His cutter won't cut. He don't bother with plans Of cheap artisans. But there's one thing Can rightly be said, The hole excavation Has this explanation: He builds it By using his Head.

ARE YOU GUILTY?

A farmer carrying an express package from a big mail-order house was accosted by a local dealer. "Why didn't you buy that bill of goods from me? I could have saved you the express, and besides you would have been patronizing a home store, which helps pay the taxes and builds up this locality."

The farmer looked at the merchant a moment and said: "Why don't you advertise these articles in your home paper—didn't know you carried them. I read the home paper and did not know you had the stuff I have here."

MORAL—TELL IT IN YOUR AD.

The man who gets the fewest letters complains the most about the management of the postoffice; the man who finds the most fault with the preacher pays the least toward his salary; the man who has the most trouble with his neighbor is the meanest neighbor; the man who has the least sense is the most conceited; the man without children has the best chance for their bringing up; the bachelor knows the best way to manage a wife; and the man who borrows his neighbor's newspaper is the worst critic the paper has.—Rainier Review.

We have observed that love, like fake jewelry, is the real thing until it commences to wear off.

"Vernonia Heights" is getting so many new houses that, at night, the addition looks like Portland Heights by lamplight as seen from the busy city.
