everywhere. Our 7593 Newspaper Association members can do more to get them built than anyone else. We believe that these good roads can only be obtained through a system of national highways, built and maintained by the national government. We be lieve this is also best for the taxpay ers and users of our highways, as well as for those who make money out of United States in Our Day" can only be brought about in this way.

While we advocate this, we are for all efforts towards good roads, for all methods help towards the ultimate solution of the road problem. While for national highways we are not against Federal aid, even though we are convinced the latter will not solve he road problem.

National highways will be financed by general national taxation, thus equitably distributing their cost Therefore, the rich Northeastern states will pay about half the cost of both building and maintainance. They will profit the most and can there fore afford such cost. Nearly all the other half will be borne by the great and wealthy cities as is the case with state highways built at state expense. This is fair, as the cities gain the most. And finally, the farmers, while getting the most miles, will pay the least. This is also fair, as the nation s altimately dependent upon the well being and prosperity of the farmers. CHARLES DAVIS,

President, National Highways Asso.
