So Recognized by Authority

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

—By—

E. R. Waite, Secretary, Shawnee, Okla., Chamber of Commerce.

That the fundamental conditions for better business were never better than they are today. That there is no question but that the world is on the threshold of a long period of prosperity and progress

That those business concerns who are progressive tell that interesting fact by advertising. That advertising tells the story of a business. It is the service by which the public judge a business

That advertising is a presentation of what a business concern has to sell the public That persistent advertising means quicker, easier and larger sales

That well advertised products are always of superior quality.

That persistent advertising is a guarantee of quality.

That the wonderful growth in sales of well advertised products prove their wealth.

Anything worth selling is worth advertising.

Anything worth having is always advertised.

Truthful advertising is an honest service to the public.

EAGLE FEATHERS

Another trouble with the world is there are too many people laboring under the impression that laws do not apply to them.

The Vernonia man who asks what has become of the old-time naughty joke hasn't been in "polite society" lately.

If Lot's wife had been equipped with a rear-sight mirror she would probably have lived to a ripe old age

Everything considered, it is probably just as well that the U. S. hasn't 17 vice-presidents, like some of our big banks.

Many a man owes all he has to his wife—and a lot more to other people If there is one man on earth who earns every cent he gets it is the chap who marries for money.

Two things the average Vernonia man can't understand are why a dog should have fleas and why a wife should have so many fool relations.

Dayton, Tenn., will have a real trial when it tries to take care of all the exhibits at the monkey-hearing.

There's this to be said in favor of Mormonism—it doesn't throw the entire burden of supporting a husband on one woman.

You can't blame a Vernonia woman for wanting her husband to keep well. There isn't anything on earth more disagreeable than a sick man who isn't sick enough to stay unconscious.

The man on foot isn't the only one the automobiles keep on the jump There's the coroner.

The reason we'd hate to marry a "flapper" is because as a helpmate they're about as useful as a match that has been lit.

There are still a few citizens around Vernonia who can remember when we used to get our winter weather in winter instead of in May and June.

They're talking of making a senator out of Gen. Pershing. Now isn't that a fine way to treat a fellow who tried to help his country

Evidently an aviator needs a parachute that will open just as much as a motorist needs brakes that will hold.

How many in Vernonia can recall when there was more need for safety pins than for "Safety Weeks?"

WHY NOT HANG THE BOOTLEGGERS

How angry the nation would be if a native of a foreign land should slay an American sailor during the visit of the battle fleet! Demand would be made immediately for the death of the slayer and payment of indemnity.

But a bootlegger strikes down one of Uncle Sam's defender's with poison during the fleet's visit to San Francisco and the worst he need to dread, if caught, is a fine or a brief term in prison.

One of the chief arguments advanced against capital punishment in a recent debate between two notionally famous men was the fact that less than one per cent of all the murderers in the United States pay the extreme penalty. This discrimination, of course, reacts against the law; it embitters the relatives and friends of the few who die for their crime; they can see no justice in a law that lays the hand of death on only one out of one hundred who are guilty.

In a western murder trial the defense raised the point that the killer did not premeditate the taking of life, he did not go there armed; he did not 'slay with malice aforethought,' he deliberated only a minor crime. After he entered the home a boy heard him, ran to a bureau drawer, picked up an older brother's revolver and faced the sneak thief In the scuffle the weapon was discharged and the bullet entered the heart of the boy. And the supreme court of Utah upheld the principle that when a man plans a minor offense against the law and it develops into a major crime the penalty should be the same as though the major crime were the result of deliberate intent.

Isn't the bootlegger equally as guilty of first degree murder when his deliberate violation of the law results in a death? Shouldn't the man who sells deadly poison disguised as liquor be treated a murderer? We can think of no reasoning that would entitle him to any other treatment.—June Sunset.
