

MOVIE NEWS AND COMMENT OF LOCAL FEATURES

We consider it quite a treat this week to look over the advance sheets of the attractions coming to the Majestic theatre beginning this Saturday. Certainly some good stories and after reading them we are of the opinion that you will say the coming week is the best yet offered at the local house.

For instance, on this Saturday night you will be privileged to see Anita Stewart in one of her best, "Barce, Son of Kazan." Barce is a dog, and the story is of the far north. It is a story always liked, of prospectors, fur hunters and trappers, mixed with romance, a beautiful love story, the strong devotion of a wolf dog and excitement. Saturday night promises to be a good show.

For this Sunday and Monday, two nights, all will more than welcome Harold Lloyd in "The Freshman." It is the best and most comical of all his productions. Harold Lloyd plays a rah, rah boy—and a very green one at that—in "The Freshman." In Lloyd's entire career before the camera this is the first time he's ever been a collegian. Harold Lamb, the hero's name, is a "Grandma's Boy" learning the ropes and riding the bumps in his first year when, as a froshie, he seeks to capture all the popularity honors and succeeds only in winning the booby prize. But, wait! You can't keep a good boob down, says Harold and what he does to redeem himself is our secret.

On next Tuesday and Wednesday you will see the world's most beautiful woman in "The Dark Angel." It's a beautiful love drama on the post-war period. It features Ronald Colman, the most magnetic low of the movies, together with Vilma Banky, the Budapest beauty, in her American screen debut. And it was produced by Samuel Goldwyn.

and George Fitzmaurice who gave you "A Thief in Paradise," "Tarnish" and other best selling films. These are the high lights of "The Dark Angel," and we maintain that they are an ample guarantee that this picture will make more than good. The story has already made good. As a stage play it was a thrilling success. It is not the usual type of love drama. There is no villain. There is not a dishonorable act by anybody. A soldier is stricken down upon the field of battle in the World War—not killed, but blinded for life. A girl back home had promised to become his wife, but rather than submit to her to his life of darkness he returns under an assumed name. —But we can't tell you the big story here.

Next Thursday and Friday is offered "The Wife Who Wasn't Wanted." A thrilling drama of real life. "The Wife Who Wasn't Wanted" the Warner Bros. classic of the screen is an engrossing photoplay of a wife's sacrifice of her husband's love and a mother's sacrifice of her reputation to save her son. Irene Rich the charming Warner Bros. star, plays the title role of Mrs. Manning, who became an unwanted and unloved wife because she believed no sacrifice to great for her son, and her husband believed that his honor came before everything else, including his son. James Flood was the director. In ever respect it is a photoplay that will appeal to picture goers who are discriminating in their choice of screen entertainment.
