'THREE GREAT DAYS' SAYS L. J. COLMAN

Northwest Chairman N. E. R. Urges Observance of "Golden Rule Sunday."

Laurence J. Colman, of Seattle, has accepted the Chairmanship for the Near East Relief and Golden Rule Sunday for the Northwest Region, including Utah, Idaho, Montana, Oregon, Washington, British Columbia and Alaska, of which J. J. Handsaker, of Portland, is the Regional Director.

Colman is well known through the Northwest on account of his interest in religious and philanthropic institutions, among them being the Seabeck, Wash., conference grounds, which he has donated for the use of various summer groups.

Speaking of Golden Rule Sunday, he says, "There are three great days in November and December. The first, Thanksgiving Day, the third, Christmas, and midway between comes Golden Rule Sunday.

"On Thanksgiving Day we count our blessings. We count our enormous wealth of more than three billion dollars. We think of our vast farms, great universities and colleges, factories and other evidences of material prosperity. We are, or should be, thankful for a government under which both property and life are safe. "Christmas is again a day of feasting and mirth, to which we invite our friends and with whom, too often, our 'gifts' become merely exchanges.

"On Golden Rule Sunday, December 6th, we can remember the word, 'When thou makest a feast, call the poor, the halt, the maimed and the blind.' We can practice that pure religion which visits the fatherless and widow in their affliction. Surely there was never a greater contrast in all history than the one between our wealth, prosperity and security and the condition of the people of the Near East, exiled from their home lands without employment, homes or food, except as the Golden Rule operates in our hearts to make us do to others what we would have others do for us. "In more than fifty nations on Golden Rule Sunday, December 6th, many persons will provide for their Sunday dinner approximately the menu that is provided when funds permit by the Near East Relief for the tens of thousands of orphan children in its care, most of whom are under twelve years of age.

"When this simple meal has been eaten and the plight of the unfortunate children of the Near East has been thoughtfully considered, then give, give as you would have some one give if your children were in the Near East orphanage, were amongst the 4000 about to be turned out for lack of funds, or among those asking and being refused one meal a day.

"Full particulars of the day may be secured from the Near East Relief, 613 Stock Exchange Bldg., Portland; 339 Burke Bldg., Seattle; and for the Golden Rule Campaign temporary offices have been opened at 301 Walker Bank Bldg., Salt Lake City; 627 Peyton Bldg., Spokane; Bristol Hotel, Boise, and Y. MOVIE NEWS AND COMMENT OF LOCAL FEATURES

The "Movie Column" has good news for all this week. Last weeks program throughout was highly enjoyed. The coming nights are better. First of the news is the item that the Majestic theatre has just received and installed 200 new and modern opera seats. Now to the program, as we have glanced over the advance sheets issued by the producers. They each read better than a novel. For this Saturday night is to be seen Raymond Griffith, best known comedian and star of highest rank in "He's a Prince." Griffith with his high hat is as well known and admired as Lloyd, Chaplin, and other first line comedians. In "He's a Prince," the star is at his best and in Portland this picture carried more than the ordinary advertising and press comment. It is a laugh from start to finish, a gloom chaser. Gi you will feel better.

Then on the coming Sunday and Monday nights is the big special, "The Pony Express." A James Cruze production and pronounced by some as the greatest, most interesting and biggest picture ever exhibited. You will compare it with "The Covered Wagon" and other big ones. And in this production will be seen such stars as Betty Compson, Ricardo Cortez, Ernest Torrence and Wallace Berry, enough to guarantee more than a crowded house both nights in Vernonia. The history explained in the picture is inviting to all and especially beneficial to history students. "The Pony Express" is talked about from coast to coast.

On next Tuesday and Wednesday nights we will again see the actress, the vamp of old, the star with millions of friends and lots of enemies, the woman loved and the woman hated. She is no other than Pola Negri, who will appear in "Flower of Night." Flower of the Night was written especially for Pola Negri by Joseph Hergesheimer whose romantic tales are familiar to all readers of the Saturday Evening Post. Here is a picture no one wants to miss and an actress no one will miss. Describe her in adjectives, flirting, tempting, loving, flaming, glorious. One will long remember the "Flower of Night" and those that have seen it say that the screens fiery empress of emotion was never better. She dances and vamps, the days of '49 are made real. Spanish passions are brought out, and intense interest will hold the audience spell bound for nearly two hours.

Next Thursday and Friday nights will welcome Vernonia's favorite, Rin-Tin-Tin, the wonder dog in "Below the Line," a heart pounding story of thrill and love on the bloodhound trail, with John Harron and June Marlowe. We are promised more real thrills in this picture than of any yet shown here. The Wonder Dog is all but human and here one will see him as the best trained animal in the world. You will certainly imagine that you are actually below the line. Yes, the week is a good one. The four shows above, mentioned were chosen as the best that could be secured for a pre-holiday week.

UNITED STORES

The Origin and Operation of Skaggs Stores

Community pride and community interest are highly commendable traits—the fountain-heads from which spring better homes, better schools, better churches, road, civic improvements and—better citizens. Rapidly changing conditions—due, in large part, to modern methods of communications, transportation and distribution—are responsible for the comparatively recent development of formerly isolated points into thriving, contented and beautiful centers whose people have and enjoy all of the conveniences and luxuries of the larger cities. Good roads, the automobile, radio and modern methods of merchandising have practically eliminated the crossroads "country store"—and all of the lack of progress which it symbolized—and substituted therefor the up-to-date small city wherein are available practically all of the worth-while things that the larger cities have to offer.

It is both natural and desirable then, that communities should be jealous of their resources and it is perfectly right and proper that—withstanding the undeniable benefits and advantages they provide—the citizens of such communities should ask of "chain" organizations like Skaggs stores, "Where do the Profits Go?" For, it is neither morally right nor economically sound that one community should be "bled" to enrich a few men in some distant and, possibly, larger center.

Because of the essentially cooperative plan of their operation, Skaggs stores are "local" stores in every sense of the word and the profits from them go back to the source from which they came—the same or like communities in which they were earned—by as simple and natural a process as the return of the products of the soil to the land again, for its further enrichment.

The manager of each individual Skaggs store is, indeed, in truth a "local" merchant, vitally interested in community development and community growth. In nearly every and in every instance he depends, for a part of his earnings upon the case he owns stock in the company net profits which his store produces. He and his men live in the community—have their families and their homes there—and expend money for their support and education exactly as any other merchant would do. In many cases he has more of his own actual money ventured upon the success of his company than is represented by the total investment of the average so-called "independent" retailer.

Therefore, for the same reasons, including the purely selfish which govern the actions of others, Skaggs store managers are deeply concerned in the welfare and prosperity of their community and anything which might adversely affect them will arouse their instant opposition, just as any movement which will react to its benefit and make it a more desirable place in which to live will enlist their hearty support.

For the surplus profits, accruing after the manager has received the dividends on his stock, his share of the net profits and his salary and after the salaries of other helpers in the store, the rent and all other expenses have been met, an even broader and more beneficial use is reserved. Such surpluses go back into new stores, in new communities, offering a new service and a merchant of high integrity who is also interested in community growth and community development. And, best of all, they provide ambitious, hardworking young men within the organization who have developed to managerial capacity and who are eager for their hard-won golden surs.

In this manner new stores are being constantly opened, the service of Skaggs stores constantly broadened and extended, and loyal-hearted, forward-looking men within the organization are assured that they will have their "day in the sun." It is this absolute assurance of the certain reward of merit that accounts for the spirit and willingness of Skaggs men wherever you find them, and welds into one harmonious whole the more than 300 widely scattered units.
