GRASS
 (From the pen of the late John J. Ingalls)
 "Next in importance to the divine profusion of water, light and air, those three physical facts which render existence possible, may be reckoned the universal beneficence of grass. Lying in the sunshine among the buttercups and dandelions of May, scarcely higher in intelligence than those minute tenants of that mimic wilderness, our earliest recollections are of grass, and when the fitful fever is ended, and the foolish wrangle of the market and the forum is closed, grass heals over the scar which our descent into the bosom of the earth has made, and the carpet of the infant become the blanket of the dead."

 "Banished from the thoroughfares and fields, it bides its time to return and when the vigilance is relaxed or the dynasty has perished, it silently resumes the throne from which it has been expelled but which it never abdicates. It bears no blazonry of bloom to charm the sense with fragrance or splendor, but its homely hue is more enchanting than the lily or the rose. It yields no fruit on earth or air, yet should its harvest fail for a single year famine would depopulate the world."
THE FUTURE OF FOREST COMMUNITIES.
 Oregon has One-Fifth Remaining Stand of Virgin Timber in United States
 Oregon has one-fifth of the remaining stand of virgin timber in the United States, or 395,776,229,000 board feet. She stands second in volume of annual cut.
 As the pinch for lumber increases her annual timber harvest must increase. Within a few years, she will lead all the states in annual cut. This is in accordance with economic laws. Increased cut will mean state development, more sawmills, more markets for labor. How long will this development peak last? How long can Oregon expect to maintain her lead in lumber production, once she has attained it? What will follow utilization of her virgin timber stands?
 Will it be stagnation—deserted logging camps, wrecked sawmills, bare and blackened hillsides?
 That is for Oregon's citizens to answer—her timber owners, her lumbermen, her bankers, and all her citizens. For, never forget that every citizen of Oregon has a share in her timber wealth and every citizen is going to prosper or suffer as this timber wealth is well or illy used.

W. C. T. U. Institute.
 A local institute of the W. C. T. U. was held at the Evangelical church April 13, 1926. The State President, Mrs. Mallett and State Treasurer, Mrs. Donelson were present. At 10 o'clock Mrs. Mallett gave a very instructive address which was greatly enjoyed. At the noon hour a bountiful luncheon was served to a goodly number. Then at 2 o'clock the meeting was again called to order and Mrs. Donelson gave a very spirited talk. She said, "we would play that we didn't know anything about the W. C. T. U.," and so read the pledge, gave the creed and outlined the different department of work Mrs. Mallett then spoke on drugs and patent medicines. She gave the names of many well known medicines and their ingredients as given by the American Medical association. Medicine retailing at one dollar per bottle, estimated value of ingredients ten cents. She also spoke about the farm home maintained by the state W. C. T. U. Then at eight o'clock in the evening, Mrs. Mallett spoke on "Bear and light wines," which was greatly applauded. Mrs. Shion favored the audience with several violin solos and Mr. Thompson rendered a baritone solo. These musical numbers were splendid and greatly appreciated.
