If you wish you were a rock
A sittin' on a hill,
A doin' nothing a' day long
But just a sitting still,
Wouldn't sleep; wouldn't eat,
Wouldn't even wash,
You want to sit still a thousand years
And rest yourself by gosh.

JUNIOR PROM
On Saturday, May 15, the Juniors gave a prom in honor of the Seniors. The gymnasium was beautifully decorated in the Senior's colors, silver and orchid, and the Juniors colors, silver and coral. On one side of the gym was printed in silver and orchid

'Seniors' and on the opposite side in silver and coral was printed 'Juniors.' On one end was the figure '26' also in the seniors colors and on the other end '27' in the juniors colors. In one of the gym a booth trimmed in the seniors colors held the punch and oh! what good punch. The 'Revelers' played such music that even those who did not dance couldn't prevent themselves from enjoying the pleasure of the others. Refreshments were served in the latter part of the evening and were they good? You bet!
Mr. and Mrs. J. Lindley and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Hughes acted as patrons.
Everyone left the school building realizing this was the best prom and the best social event ever put over in V. H. S.. The success of the prom was due to the sincere and honest cooperation of the prom committee.

VALEDICTORIAN ADDRESS
The Pathway to Success (Jessie George)
What is success?
Success is a prosperous termination of anything attempted. It is a desire to succeed, which is common to man. The greatest desire that most of us want 'is not only to be good, but to be good for something. Success is the goal toward which all men are pushing; we can't measure a man's success until we know his goal.

Bill and Tom were twin brothers equal in stature, equal in ability, 'Bill' set out from home with a determination to accumulate a million dollars. Tom was quite as determined to marry the girl who lived across the street and become an efficient plumber. Both succeeded. Bill got his million before he died and Tom got the girl and supported her by wiping joints and fitting pipes.
When the two men were dealt the people who had known them said to one another: 'Bill was uncommonly successful, but his brother never amounted to much, ah, well: there's usually one failure in a family.'

But Tom wasn't a failure. He was a complete success. He did precisely what he set out to do, and he was content. If he had devoted himself to the business of making money he high have matched Bill's millions.
There isn't any hard and fast definition to success. To be sure, it consists in arriving; but unless a man elects to take you into his confidence you can't tell where his goal lies and if you are ignorant of his goal you are not qualified to judge of his success.

A banker isn't called a failure because he can't drive an engine, or is a surgeon called a failure because he can't play a violin. There is a division of gifts or talents and it is a far better thing to develop one talent and become useful to society in one small particular than it is to possess many talents and fail of the achievement they promise. If a man's ambition is to become a justice of the peace, and he achieves it and administers the law without bias or offense to justice, he is a success. If he is a king and his reign brings ill-fortune, misery and want to his people, he is a failure.

In the common definition, success constitutes getting money. If this definition is correct how shall we classify the astronomer who maps the heavens and discovers a star, the man of medicine who spends his life among germ cultures and finds a cure for some dread disease, the explorer who discovers a continent, a missionary who lifts a savage people out of mental and spiritual darkness? These seldom get great rewards in money. Are they failures?

Which is the greatest success, the poet or the surgeon? The bridge builder or the preacher? The violinist or the financier? How do you know? And if we cannot tell whether this man's work or another will have greater worth at the final accounting, how do we qualify as judges of any man's success when we don't even know what his ambitions are?

NOTICE OF CANDIDACY
I wish to hereby announce my candidacy for the Republican nomination as Commissioner of Columbia County at the May primaries.
If nominated and elected I will do my best to further the best interests of the county as a whole, as I have tried to do in the past.

Los Angeles, May 10—The bathing suit, like the pajama should be worn at certain times and in specific places only. This is the gist of an ordinance by the Los Angeles city council, making it a misdemeanor to wear a swimming costume in the streets unless it is covered with an outer garment.

The aldermen reasoned that there were too many bathing beauties and 'asphalt arabs' who disported themselves, in and out of season, without sufficient covering. No bathing suit, no matter how abbreviated, is immoral when worn at the beach in bathing season, it was argued. But
