IN THE COUNTY COURT OF THE STATE OF OREGON, FOR THE COUNTY OF COLUMBIA

In the matter of the Estate and Guardianship of Lloyd Dobbs, Olga Dobbs, Venetta Dobbs, Everett Dobbs, Sylvia Dobbs, Maxine Dobbs and Keloran Dobbs, Minors.

No. Order to show cause why order for sale of real estate should not be made.

It appearing to the Court from the petition heretofore presented and filed by D. A. Dobbs, Guardian of the estate and persons of the above named minors, praying for an order of sale of the real estate therein described, and it is necessary, expedient and beneficial to the wards that all of such real estate be sold;

It further appearing that D. A. Dobbs of Vernonia, Oregon, is the father of said wards, and Jane Doe Dobbs, address unknown, over the age of twenty one years, is a sister of said wards, and are the next of kin of said wards;

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that the said D. A. Dobbs, father, and the said Jane Doe Dobbs, sister, of the said wards, and that all persons interested in said estate appear before this Court on Tuesday, the 12th day of April, 1927, at 9:00 A. M. o'clock in the forenoon of said day at the County Court House in the County of Columbia, State of Oregon, to show cause why an order should not be granted said guardian authorizing him to sell all of the real property of the said estate of his wards, either at public or private sale, for the purposes of paying the charges and expenses of administration against the said estate, and for the purpose of re-investing the proceeds of the sale not necessary for maintenance of the said wards in the manner by law provided, said real estate being described as follows, to-wit: An undivided seven-eighths interest in the following:

Lot Two (2) Block Twenty Four (24) 2nd Addition to Vernonia, Columbia County, Oregon; and Lot Four (4) Sec. Thirty One (31) T. 6 S. R. 10 W. Lincoln County, Oregon;

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that this order shall be served on the next kin of the wards above named and on all persons interested in the estate by publication in the Vernonia Eagle, a newspaper of general circulation printed and published in Columbia County, Oregon, once each week for three successive weeks.

Dated this 9th day of March, 1927. Date of first publication March 17, 1927. Date of last publication April 7, 1927.

John Phillip Judge.

Teddy W. Leavitt To Hold Meeting, Here

(From Page 1) called, holds that party names and creeds are sinful, according to Evangelist Leavitt, and that all party divisions are contrary to the will of Christ. He pleads for a united Christendom on "No name but Christ, no book but the Bible." His motto is, "Where the Bible speaks, we speak, where it is silent, we are silent; in faith, unity, in all things charity."

Secretary Lester Sheeley reported that the next meeting of the Lower Columbia River Chamber of Commerce association will be in St. Helens April 8. He wanted a good delegation present from Vernonia at that meeting. Mr. Sheeley was appointed by President R. M. Aldrich to present Vernonia's question of the development of the Inland highway before the association meeting, with the view of securing the cooperation of the other chambers.

Florida Residents Put Faith In Future

cept in winter." Dredges are at work making a deep harbor of 50 feet in one section of the bay, and making a couple more islands with the sand pumped out. The ocean shore drive is being connected up in places so that it will be possible to drive all the way from Jacksonville to Miami soon. Florida will continue to grow as a winter playground at least. Hurricanes will be forgotten as are the earthquakes of California. Perhaps all of the subdivisions will be built up in time, yet it would seem that some of them will wait a long time. It takes a permanent, all-year-round population, with steady work for those who have to earn a living, to build much of a city. Perhaps this will be worked out in time, but at present about three fourths of the people do not stay here in summer. There is but little work for the laboring class, and the 29,000 negroes in Miami do not have enough employment to keep them busy the year round. The summer climate here is better than any of the states south of the northern tier of states, I am told, and if year-round employment were to be had there would be no question of the rapid building of homes for all the year-round residents, but there would seem to be a limit to the building of homes for a winter residence only.

Orlando is a city of lakes, there being 21 within the city limits, scattered in all parts of the city. They are maintained at one level all the time by drilling a well at the edge 300 or 400 feet, where an underground body of water is reached, then a pipe run from the level of the lake to the well. As the lake rises from the rains it drains off into the well. By raising or lowering the pipe the level of the lake can be kept at any point desired. The streets of the city are lined with large live oaks, the branches generally meeting in the center, making shady drive-ways. Many fine homes with attractive grounds adorn the city. While there are many new homes but a few years old, there are a great many fine old residences and large estates. A new auditorium has just been completed, to accommodate large public gatherings. Orlando has a tourist population each winter of 10,000 or 15,000, most of them returning year after year, the place having a charm all its own. One of the principal amusements is hunting and fishing, and there are many places to go. A large country club and golf course is well patronized. The golf champion of the world was on the green when we visited the place starting a contest.

Mr. and Mrs. Moo Start North

Daytona, Fla., March 13, 1927. We left Miami Saturday morning on our way north, with rain threatening, and during the way we ran through several light showers, but it cooled the atmosphere and altogether it was a pleasant day. Going through Palm Beach we began to leave the effects of the hurricane and but few trees were blown down along the highway. We reached Stuart at noon and called at the courthouse to see H. L. Snyder, brother-in-law of Truman Butler, but he was out making up his assessment rolls, so we headed north. The country began to look better the farther north we went, and we soon reached the Indian River country, where the Dixie highway winds along the river, in many places with trees on both sides.

The river is a sort of bay that separates the narrow islands from the mainland and is quite wide in places. Indian River is the best in Florida, especially oranges and grapefruit, so nearly everything on sale in the cities is called Indian River fruit, no matter where it was grown.

Just south of Indian River City is a section where pineapples are grown. We saw many fields of them, but they were not looking good on account of the dry weather. We stopped at one place and the owner said that they were not very profitable any more on account of the high cost of labor and competition from Cuban fruit. The drive along Indian River is the prettiest we have seen in Florida, with the water on one side and farms on the other. All along the road farmers had stands with fruit for sale. We bought three dozen grapefruit at one of these stands and they filled a gunnysack.

At Indian River City we turned west and reached Orlando before dark. The 40 miles of road goes through an undeveloped section and there were no towns on the way, except two or three places with a filling station and a house or two. We passed many swamps and thick jungles, mostly cabbage and palmetto palms and small pines. Coming into Orlando we began to see cultivated land, and then the outskirts of the city, with orange groves and some truck gardens. By the time we got located for the night it was dark.

Orlando is the prettiest city we have seen in Florida. It has grown from a city of 9,000 to 31,000 in eight years, the last two years moving along very rapidly with the general Florida boom. Orlando will probably be the metropolis of central Florida, being the center of the citrus belt. About 40,000 cars are shipped from this section each year. The elevation is about 200 feet above sea level, high ground for Florida. To the west and south are many truck farms, different sections specializing in different kinds of vegetables. Most of the way on the road to Daytona, 65 miles northeast, were orange and grapefruit groves, and the new blossoms just coming out make a fragrance that fills the air. Celery is grown largely around Sanford, 20 miles from Orlando, while other sections specialize in strawberries, potatoes, beans, peas, etc. The citrus groves look healthy and vigorous, much better than in other parts of the state south and on the west coast. While Orlando is north of the so-called tropical zone, and is subject to the cold waves and frost from the north, yet this section of the state is full of lakes, which save the trees from many of the frosts. Groves are located south of the lakes where possible.

There are no coconuts this far north, but many have bananas set out in their yards, yet the cold snaps are hard on them and very little fruit matures.

Lolita Camp Fire Girls On Tuesday evening of last week the girls of the Lolita Camp Fire group gave a farewell surprise party on Vivian Wahlater one of their group, who is leaving Saturday for Arizona.

The girls met at the home of Miss McDonald, their guardian at 6:30 o'clock.

From there they went to Vivians home and surprised her by bursting into the house singing one of their Camp Fire songs, while throwing the handkerchiefs each one had taken her.

After playing various games refreshments were served and the girls departed feeling that they had spent a very enjoyable evening.

Those present were: Miss Bessie McDonald, Kathryn Malmsten, Luella Williams, Beth Davis, Nell Green, Louise Roberson, Gladys Garner, Dorothy Black and Joy Bush.

Eighth Grade Exams May 12.

The eighth grade examinations will be held May 12 and 13 this year, according to Elizabeth Murray, county school superintendent. There will be no exemptions in geography, and there is one other subject in which there will be no exemptions. Fifty per cent is given in agriculture for all those who complete a club project. Penmanship grades will be based on the regular Palmer award.

This modern age likes the mellow mildness of Camels

TRY Camels and you'll know why they win the modern world. Mildness and mellowness. The smoking wish of this exacting age is realized in Camels. Such taste and fragrance as never came before from a cigarette. A mellow mildness that can result only from superb blending of the choicest Turkish and Domestic tobaccos.

This age demands the best of everything—and it finds its ideal smoke in Camels. Nowhere else can you find such smoothness, such ever-dependable goodness as here—
