Candling eggs is a safeguard against such conditions as blood spots. And it's the way to make sure that you are not sending stale eggs to market. It's one of the most efficient methods of learning the quality of eggs.

There are ways to improve the quality of eggs besides producing only infertile ones, keeping them in a cool place, and marketing them often. There are various management practices that will improve the quality of eggs. In the first place, laying stock should be kept on clean land. The houses and nests should be kept clean at all times. And only clean eggs should be marketed. Dirty eggs not only look bad, but they sell less readily. Get them out of the nests promptly. In warm weather, when the temperature is 80 degrees and above, the contents of the egg tend to evaporate rather fast, and eggs will become stale quickly if they're left in the nests. The same is true if you let broody hens sit on either fertile or infertile eggs. And of course, eggs should not be left exposed to the direct rays of the sun.

The ideal condition for raising chickens is on open range, without yards, fences greatly increase the labor cost, as well as the cost of equipment and maintenance. When open range is not practical it's best to raise them in one large yard or field, a field to keep the chickens in and the dogs and rodents out.

The value of clean land in growing good chicks can not be overestimated. In many cases, poultrymen get good results the first year or two. Then, each succeeding year, they fail to do as well, due to contaminated yards.

When the five-hour session of the city council was completed at 12:30 o'clock this morning, the city had a new city marshal, the council had taken the first steps to build the west end sewer, had heard an insistent demand from property owners on Spring street appealing for the improvement of that street and at the request of the Woman's club, the Garden club, the Kiwanis club and the chamber of commerce appointed the afternoon of April 29 and the morning of April 30 as clean-up day for the city.

FOREST GROVE NEWS TIMES

Farm Reminders

Apple and pear scab are best controlled by being sure that leaves as well as fruit are thoroughly covered with spray, says H. P. Baras, Oregon experiment station pathologist.

Well crained, sweet, sandy types of soil are best for alfalfa growing in western Oregon according to results at the experiment station. Alfalfa does not grow well on sour, poorly drained soil.

A well prepared seed bed is more important than time of sowing for alfalfa. Late plantings on a well prepared and settled seed bed give better results than early plantings on improperly worked ground. The Oregon experiment station finds that alfalfa sown without a nurse crop is best under unirrigated conditions.

Oregon grown bent grass is giving splendid results on lawns and golf courses. Bent grass makes a beautiful, smooth sod. It requires considerable moisture to keep it growing. It is difficult to distinguish from redtop so seed analysis is often necessary to insure purity. The seed laboratory at Corvallis will test bent grass seed free of charge on receipt of a 1 ounce sample.

Testing alfalfa seed for purity and germination is important according to the Oregon experiment station. Much alfalfa seed contains dodder and other noxious weed seeds. Dodder causes a loss to the alfalfa crop and is hard to eradicate. The seed testing laboratory at Corvallis will test for purity and germination free of charge upon receipt of a 2 ounce sample of seed.

CLATSKANIE CHIEF

Tragedy stalked into two homes of the community last Saturday, taking the lives of Sam Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. August Thompson, and Leo Maki, son of Mrs. and Mrs. Moses Maki, by drowning.

The lads had been playing on a scow that they had made on the Beaver Slough. They started to cross the slough, somewhere in the stream one of the lads fell off and the other was thrown into the water. Sam could swim, Leo could not.

Sam was swimming out and almost on land when he saw Leo floundering around and calling for help. He turned back to aid his companion and together they went to the beyond.

August Thompson and others were quickly at the scene and soon brought Leo up with a grabbing hook. It was three quarters of an hour after the tragedy that he found his own son at the identical place the first lad was. They had evidently drowned holding to each other.

The Quincy district as far as the John Drainage district will have electric service by about June 1st, according to present plans of the People's West Coast Hydro-Electric corporation.

Grant Lynch, fruit inspector for Columbia county, stated yesterday that in his opinion the recent frost had not materially damaged the fruit crop in the county. He said that in some sections he had received reports that the more advanced walnut trees had been hurt to some extent, but that the bulk of the trees had not advanced far enough for the frosts to seriously hurt them.

Short work was made of the grind in circuit court this week to clean up the docket in preparation for the May term of court to begin on May 10.

Mrs. Charity Baker (Grandma Baker) died last night at 9:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. John Urie in St. Helens. Grandma would soon have been 100 years of age.

All the farms have fine, large buildings and are well kept up. Although the land has been cultivated for 75 years, it is as fertile as ever and produces profitable crops.

Green Lake, between here and Princeton, is one of the oldest and most popular of the many summer resorts in Wisconsin. It is a very beautiful body of water, very deep and of a green color, which gives it its name. High bluffs rise in places on each side of the lake, which is nearly two miles wide in one place, and about 10 miles long. It is on the shores of this lake that the late Victor Lawson, publisher of the Chicago News, built a summer cottage over 40 years ago, and later purchased a number of farms on the lake until he had acquired 100 acres. He then built a model farm, sparing no expenses, putting up elaborate farm buildings, water towers and reservoirs to hold water pumped from the lake and wells for irrigation and for house use. Stone fences, paved roads running through wooded parks and hills, observation towers, and unique recreation places were added, until probably a million dollars had been invested. Owing to ill health of Mrs. Lawson, this wonderful show place was closed to the public, but until her death several years ago it was her recreation and delight to watch the place grow into a country estate that has few equals.

After the death of Mr. Lawson a year or two ago, the place was sold to a Chicago syndicate for half its cost, and it is now being laid out as a real estate subdivision for summer homes, with restrictions that will insure desirable buildings. A number of fine residences are now being built. It rivals some of the noted real estate projects of Florida. It is still kept very exclusive, however, and no one can enter the grounds without permission from the manager.

Oregon will receive $583,000 national forest road fund this year.

McMinnville will vote on $75,000 bonds for city hall.
