The Majestic

"Ankles Preferred," a J. G. Blodstone production for Fox Films, which comes to the Majestic theatre Saturday, is the silk-hose romance of a cotton-stockings girl. It is packed with humor and pathos and features Madge Bellamy. Lawrence Gray plays the man.

Lloyd Bacon, who directed "Broken Hearts of Hollywood" and "Private Izzy Murphy," has turned out another success for Warner Bros. in "White Flannels," a story of a Chinese architecture, and other details of creating and exact duplicate of the mysterious Orient proved one of the strangest tasks of research ever encountered at a studio, when the spectacular settings for "Mr. Wu," Lon Chaney's new starring vehicle coming Tuesday and Wednesday to the Majestic theatre, were created.

"The Gay old Bird," the Warner Bros. production which comes to the Majestic theatre on Monday, based upon a story by Virginia Dale. The story concerns the predicament a young husband finds himself in when his wife disappears with their twin babies after a quarrel.

Liberal Use of Oil Prolongs Life of Car

Neglect of the proper use of oil in an automobile materially lessens the resale value of a car, according to Roy D. Clark of the Vernonia Service station, who calls attention to the fact that according to records of automobile engineering experts, less than two per cent of the cost of operating an automobile goes to lubrication, whereas about 90 per cent of the mechanical troubles with a car are due to neglect of the lubrication.

Greater comfort and satisfaction are derived by providing fresh, clean oil and grease to the moving parts of the car frequently, according to Mr. Clark, who adds that the difference in cost between regular lubrication at the recommended mileage periods or even oftener and striving for false economy by running the oil low or breaking it down is so slight that one can ignore it. Oil is cheaper than repairs.

FARM MARKET REVIEW

Wool—Further improvement in wool trading was registered last week. More optimism is being shown generally. Prices have advanced on cotton, rayon and silk during recent weeks.

Livestock—Scarcity and relatively high prices for feeder and stock cattle continued in eastern markets last week, while all killer classes held steady at high prices. Hog prices are considered to have reached bottom generally with prospects for only slight improvement until demand for provisions results in clearing some of the accumulation of pork products. Increased lamb receipts and sluggish dressed trade with lower prices describe the lamb market of last week.

Butter—Foreign butter markets have strengthened somewhat. This lower domestic prices has reduced the price differential below the amount of the American tariff. The San Francisco market was steady at 41 cents or better for 92 score last week, but butter markets at Chicago, New York, Philadelphia and Boston weakened slightly with heavier receipts. Quality is improving and considerable quantities are being stored, tending to stimulate operations. The deficit in storage holdings is being reduced as a result of heavier production on good pastures.

Wheat—Some further strengthening of the Liverpool market took place last week on unfavorable weather conditions for seeding spring wheat in North America and for winter wheat in Argentina. Domestic wheat markets also advanced. The wheat market continued firm with demand active on the Pacific coast. Winter cereal crops in Europe are reported generally in favorable condition.

Feed Grains—Corn planting is much behind throughout nearly the entire corn belt and weather conditions unfavorable, causing highest prices on corn last week and other grains to hold firm. Barley prices advanced again last week both in the United States and abroad. The London market for California and American barley moved up 5-8 cents per hundred pounds. Movement of new crop California barley is getting under way.
