Metchan States Plan for Lumber

As a business man I know that the prosperity of our people is dependant upon the prosperity of the lumbering industry and of agriculture. These two industries support, either directly or indirectly, our manufacturers, our railroads, our merchants, our steam ship lines and our professional men. Our lumber industry, and that includes pulp and paper, veneer, box factories and other by-products plants, is worth $200,000,000 a year. Agriculture creates almost as much new wealth every 12 months. I am giving you these figures because I wish you to know that I appreciate the importance of lumbering and agriculture in our economic life.

And since the people of Oregon derive their living, either directly or indirectly, from lumbering and agriculture I am of the opinion that the public should manifest a helpful desire to make those industries prosperous. The needs of these two industries should be studied with a sympathetic mind and every assistance rendered to make them prosperous.

Out here in Columbia county you have large areas of land which will always be more valuable for growing of timber than for agriculture, and the state should contribute its share to the protection of the timber on that land, and to the reforestation of those lands.

Much of the land out here, however, is more valuable for agriculture than for lumbering. These lands have been studied by the state for the purpose of determining their principal values. These studies should be continued and if soil surveys have not been made they should be made. We should know what crops can be grown upon these lands, and we should know, as they know in Southern California, what lands lie in frost belts, the dates of the first killing frost and the date of the last killing frost. You may think that this information is not valuable, but I tell you it is valuable, and you business men here in Vernonia will come to appreciate its value as more and more settlers are attracted to your district.

You are wholly dependent upon lumbering and agriculture. Every family attracted to this district creates new purchasing power and the greater the purchasing power, the greater the volume of business that you may reasonably hope to obtain. Therefore, you are interested in bringing in new people, for the larger your population, both in town and upon farms, the larger your markets will be. The state can be of great aid in helping carry forward an intelligent plan of land settlement.

Over in Yamhill and Washington counties are lands which are equal to anything in California for the growing of walnuts. These lands should be studied and information relative to soil and climate conditions should be made available to the public. After this information has been assembled it should be presented to the walnut growers of California. People are growing walnuts on land in California that sells for 3 and 4 times the price that walnut land can be purchased in Oregon. Californians, aware of our advantages, will be glad of the opportunity to enter the walnut industry here, and they are the type of people who will help develop markets, not only for their own crops, but for the crops of their neighbors.

What is true of walnut lands in Yamhill and Washington counties is true to an extent in Columbia county. Over here you have land that grows splendid apples and berries. You have tide water on two sides of you—a condition that I doubt exists anywhere else in the United States. Your lands should be studied by the state and information on soil and climatic conditions presented to the public.

I am agricultural minded because I was raised in an agricultural district. I want to see agriculture and lumber developed to their highest order in Oregon, and as governor I shall find pleasure in helping to carry forward a program of development which will make Oregon the richest of our western states.
