DANGER OF BORROWING
Listen to a classic printshop fable: Once upon a time a nickel-nurse sent his kid to borrow the neighbor's paper, and the kid upset a hive of bees and soon was covered with lumps. His father ran to help him and caught his chin on a clothes line and sprained his back and fell and broke a $25 watch. The clothes pole fell over the car and smashed the windshield, and mother rushing out to see what occasioned all the excitement, upset a five-gallon churn of cream into a basket of kittens, drowning all of them. The electric flatiron burned through the ironing board setting fire to the house, and the firemen broke all the windows and chopped a hole in the roof.
The baby ate a jar of pickles and got cholera morbus, and the doctor's bill was $15. The daughter ran away with the hired man during the excitement, the dog bit a neighbor's kid and the calves ate the tails off of four night-shirts on the clothes line.
Moral—Subscribe to your home paper. Don't borrow it! This all happened in Dyer, Tennessee, according to the town's paper.—At-tica (O.) Weekly Hub.

DON'T GIVE A DOLLAR
"Don't give a newspaper a dollar." Such is the advice spoken by a well known merchant over the radio recently. He was directing his remarks to business men in small towns and cities. Don't give the newspaper a dollar, he emphasized, "instead buy twice as much advertising as you think you can afford for a period of one year. Then watch your business grow."

"The newspaper," he said, is an accurate mirror of the town which it serves. If your town is a live town, one than can meet the intense competition of today, the newspaper will be filled each issue with snappy invitations to trade at the various stores in that town. Your newspaper is your weekly contact with the people of your trade territory. Use it liberally and you will be surprised at the result.

"The merchants in any community where a real newspaper is published could afford to pay the subscription of the paper for every resident within thirty miles—they would get their money back many times over by increasing contacts for advertising messages.

"Boost for your newspaper. It is always boosting the community, and the boosting you give will pay you big dividends."—Clipped.
