Alfalfa Found More Useful in This County

Alfalfa is a crop that is finding increased usefulness on Columbia county farms. The acreage has increased from 78 in 1924 to more than 200 now, according to County agent Nelson. It is a popular crop on poultry farms as a source of green feed and on the dairy farms for many as well as green feed.

Through demonstrations established by County agent Nelson alfalfa has proven successful in most communities in the county if put in properly. In the Fern Hill district J. C. Skeen by sweetening his soil with ground limestone, by inoculating his Grimm alfalfa seed before planting, by preparing a firm, fine seed bed, has obtained a successful stand of alfalfa. Ainsworth Wallace is one of the most successful alfalfa growers in the Nehalem valley.

Mr. Wallace also finds lime necessary to alfalfa success. Some of his alfalfa plantings are more than five years old. He obtains two good cuttings and a light third cutting.

Soils of the Warren district are naturally adapted to production of alfalfa, County agent Nelson states, and lime is not required.

"This is a good year to grow alfalfa," Nelson points out, "because Grimm seed is cheap and plentiful and because other crops which might be grown on land planted to alfalfa are low in price and little will be lost by using the land for getting alfalfa started. For good stands it is essential to seed alfalfa alone. If the soil is acid, lime should be applied at the rate of a ton per acre. The seed bed should be worked down to a firm, fine condition and the seeding should not be done until about May 10 to June 15. Moisture should be held and the weeds killed through frequent shallow cultivation. The Grimm variety is best and it should be inoculated before seeding. An application of about 75 pounds of land plaster per acre harrowed into the soil now would tend to stimulate growth."

"A few years ago alfalfa was thought a failure under western Oregon conditions and there were but very few acres of it. In 1921 O. T. McWhorter, then county agent of Washington county, established a few alfalfa demonstrations. These demonstrations pointed the way to successful alfalfa culture in western Oregon. Since that time the acreage has increased each year until 1931 saw 25,225 acres of alfalfa in 14 western Oregon counties where the crop was formerly thought a failure. The value of the increased hay obtained from this alfalfa acreage, to say nothing of the value as a source of green feed and pasture in late summer, is $250,000."
