JOY THEATRE

Fredric March, Miriam Hopkins and Rose Hobart in DR. JEKYLL AND MR. HYDE, Saturday and Sunday. Admission 10 cents and 25 cents. (Adv.)

We can hardly conceive how any citizen, independent of his beliefs or disbeliefs about prohibition, can vote such a proposition. We believe that State Senator B. L. Eddy of Roseburg, who had much to do with the passage of the law to be repealed, states the situation correctly:

"I would say that the proposal to repeal the state prohibition law is on the face of it a great absurdity, because repeal would leave the state constitution and the national constitution in force against the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors without any state machinery for enforcing the law. I do not see how any person who realizes that our government must be a government by law can so propose to trifle with an important legislative matter. We would be in a position of a state having a general law denouncing all kinds of acts of crimes, without providing any officers or courts and penalties to enforce the general law. No greater absurdity in the realm of government could be imagined. Nothing but confusion, law violation and general disrespect for law could result. This, of course, must be the secret purpose and desire of those who are backing the repeal measure."

J. R. Ellison, chairman,
Committee of 100.

SLIGHT IMPROVEMENT SEEN IN INDEX OF FARM PRICES

The index of the general level of farm prices in Oregon registered improvement from mid-August to mid-September and reached 45 per cent of the average from 1926 to 1930, according to the monthly report on the agricultural situation by the Oregon State college extension service. This compares with 43 in August, 42 in July and 55 in September 1931.

Recent changes in the most important factors which are related to the demand and prices of Oregon farm products, such as the general level of farm prices in the whole country, factory payrolls and the general wholesale price level, have not changed very much during the past few weeks, according to the report. Some farm commodities have advanced in price, but most grains and livestock tended to decline from the middle of September to Mid-October.

Due to a decline of two points in the index of prices paid for commodities usually purchased by farmers, the exchange value of farm products increased from 55 per cent of the prewar ratio in August to 46 in September.

Farm wages are the lowest in 30 years, the general level being 84 per cent of prewar. The demand for farm labor is low at a time when the supply is large due to industrial unemployment.

Index Numbers

The phrase "index number" is sometimes applied to any series in which a chosen term is written as 100 and the other terms expressed in percentages of it. Another definition is: "An index number is a number adapted by its variations to indicate the increase or decrease of a magnitude not susceptible of definite measurement." Index numbers are applied to the measurement of the general movement of prices, cost of living, wages, production, consumption, employment, etc.

Herb

In Middle English the usual spelling of this word is erbe, from the Old French erbe (Eleventh century). The word was occasionally spelled with an "h" after its Latin original, herba, in both Old French and Middle English, and since about 1475 it has retained the "h," which remained mute until the Nineteenth century, and is so considered today by many persons. In best usage, however, the "h" is now aspirated. In modern French it is spelled herbe.—Literary Digest.

"Father Nile"

The Nile is unique among rivers of the world. Although it is 3,500 miles long, it has no tributaries for the last 1,700 miles of its journey to the sea, largely through desert. Several streams discharge into it above this point. The flow is so light in summer that the mouths of the Nile are entirely closed by dams, but at the height of the flood season or inundation it is a torrent discharging 13,000 cubic yards per second.

One Year's Sentence Popular With Court

Seven men appeared before Judge H. K. Zimmerman in circuit court Thursday to receive sentences on various charges.

L. C. Snyder, charged with robbery and assault against Harry Morris, owner of the Big Eddy service station appeared with their attorney, J. L. Storka, and asked that the charge be changed to that of assault with a dangerous weapon. They stated that they would plead guilty if this charge were made and save the court the expense of a trial. Judge Zimmerman granted the change and the plea was entered. Both men were sentenced to a year in the state penitentiary with no parole. Upon hearing the sentence, J. L. Foote, district attorney, stated that he would immediately have the two men arraigned on the four other counts that were found against them, namely that of stealing a car, passing bad checks, robbery, and in the case of Snyder, breaking into a building.

Roy Senn was the third to receive a year in the penitentiary. Senn pleaded guilty to setting up and operating a still on the Copeland place several months ago. Since no recommendations were made in his case, he will serve the year.

Vincent Murphy, accused of stabbing Edward Olson with a knife while on a party August 14, 1932, appeared before Judge Zimmerman and asked to have an attorney appointed for his case.

before entering a plea. This was granted and an attorney will be appointed later.

Earl Snyder and R. W. Lemercaux were charged with setting up and operating a still. They pleaded guilty, were sentenced to one year, and paroled.

Claude Stanley, accused with grand larceny in the matter of stealing a pump and an engine, was sentenced to a year in the county jail and paroled. John Warranko, convicted as the leader in the crime, is serving a year in the penitentiary.

R. W. Booth was allowed the full amount of wages in his case against W. C. Morley, tried Thursday in circuit court. Mr. Booth had as his attorney John L. Storka while Glen Metzker was attorney for the defendants.

This is the first of the cases on the docket to be tried as both law suits set for Tuesday were settled out of court. — St. Helens Sentinel.
