

Wheels of Industry Begin Turning in Columbia Region

(Clatskanie Chief)

The wheels of industry began turning in the Lower Columbia region this week with the prospect that the strike is about at its end.

The heavy vote for arbitration gave every indication that the strike will be called off within the next few days at least and if such is the case operations are expected to continue largely uninterrupted.

The Westport Lumber Co. mill at Westport began work Wednesday morning. The immediate reason for opening was that they were running short of fuel. If the strike is not over, they will operate for about ten days, it is expected, while if it's over they will continue operations as in the past.

The Crossett-Western Co. of Wauna began work Monday morning with some rail shipment orders to get out. Just what they will do in the future is uncertain but they are expected to operate for some time.

Fallers for Big Creek were called back to work this week and several of the smaller operators in this section are also going back to work.

Reports from all over the Lower Columbia region are that men are returning to work in the various businesses.

The Clark and Wilson mill at Prescott resumed operations Monday after having been closed for the past two months on account of the strike. The full force of men numbering about 180 were back on the job. They expected to continue operations if the strike is over.

At Warrenton, the Young Bay Lumber mill is operating and the Astoria-Pillsbury flour mill at Astoria is running one side but may not get underway full blast because of the large amount of flour now in storage and awaiting shipment.

The problem before lumber mill operators is the movement of some of the enormous stock of lumber now glutting their yards but a boom in the lumber business is expected as soon as the president's new housing program gets under way.

The large sawmill at Knappton, Wash., has commenced sawing lumber again after its two-month tie-up.

At Longview the Weyerhaeuser Timber company's pulp division is operating near normal and the M. and M. Plywood company, employing 250 men, is operating two shifts, the full time the NRA code allows.

Benson Timber company here will probably not begin operations again until September.

With the Scripture for the textbook, there can be no better school in the world than Bible school. Come, you are welcome.

Evangelical Sunday School Notes

Enthusiasm in the "Red and Blue" attendance contest placed the Sunday school attendance at a new high level last Sunday, and the final count showed the blue side just one count ahead. The closeness of the race adds to the interest, and both sides are striving this week to make real strides ahead of the other side.

As a special number, the captain of the reds, Mary Ann Childs, had Mrs. L. H. Dewey present a dramatic reading, "The Little True American." Sara McGee, captain of the blues, is arranging for a special number next Sunday.

Remember, your side can't win unless you come, and bring others with you. Let's all be there, promptly at 9:45 A.M. Sunday.

The Christian Endeavor service will be led by Elizabeth Piert Sunday evening. The discussion will deal with Faith, its definition and value. All members are urged to be present promptly at 7:00 P.M. Rev. Granville will be present to assist with the meeting, too.

Prospects Deemed Good For Timber Salvage Road Work

(Tillamook Headlight-Herald)

County Judge H. H. Rosenberg and C. H. Coe, chairman of the salvage committee of the Tillamook Chamber of Commerce attended a meeting of the state highway commission at Portland Wednesday and presented the matter of the pressing necessity of the construction of a logging road to make possible saving as much as possible of the $88,000,000 worth of timber killed by last year's great forest fire.

The session was largely devoted to planning allocation of the $3,097,814 of federal highway funds appropriated to Oregon for this year and Chairman Leslie M. Scott of the commission called attention to the many road projects for which appropriations were desired including the Wolf creek and Wilson river roads, as far exceeding in total the limited funds available.

Judge Rosenberg and Mr. Coe then presented briefly the matter of the logging road needed, stating that they would not take up the time of the commission with any extended argument as the facts and conditions had been so presented that the commission was fully informed and, they believed, realized that an enormous and valuable asset of Tillamook county and of Oregon was threatened with total loss which the proposed road would aid in averting.

Walter W. R. May, manager of the Portland Chamber of Commerce, urged that appropriations be made for both the Wolf creek and Wilson river roads. He hoped he said, the the federal government would make the great Tillamook burn salvage a federal aided enterprise. L. M. Lepper made a strong plea for both roads, earnestly advocating the issuing of bonds if necessary to provide the fund.

The timbermen stated that a road to Fall creek is necessary for the proposed volume of logging operations. The highway commission estimated the cost of construction of this section of road at $250,000, which was more than could be had at this time. The $250,000 included $50,000 for a standard bridge and the final proposition was made that if the commission would build the road to the new bridge site the county and timbermen together will construct a temporary log bridge and complete the balance of the road to Fall creek, so that it can be used for efficient logging, it being considered that the cost to the county and the timbermen will be so small compared with the great benefit to be realized as to be inconsequential.

A favorable decision on this proposal is quite confidently expected.
