san effort to discredit relief administration. I choose to think the latter is true for, when I asked him where he got his information, he said, "They sent it out of Portland." I don't know who "they" are, but it is a fair assumption that whoever "they" are, "they" are more interested in the political possibilities of relief than in its administration as a measure intended to restore to American citizens a small part of their depression losses. And the prosecution of such an attitude toward relief, I submit, can only lead to chaos.

Yours very truly,
Judd Greenman.

was as follows:
For labor $4,598,307.57 70.45%
For material 1,610,397.07 24.67%
For administration 318,500.01 4.88%

From the above audited report of the Oregon CWA for the period of its existence, it is quite apparent that Mr. Treharne's figures of "80 per cent to some republican bureau and 20 per cent to the men" are all haywire. Instead of 20 per cent, labor received 70.45 per cent and instead of 80 per cent, administration cost less than five per cent. The 25 per cent that went for materials meant jobs for men in cement plants, lumber mills, stone quarries, etc., and consequently was spent in carrying out the explicit purpose of the administration in setting up the CWA, namely: to provide the citizenry with income.

It must be apparent to any fair minded citizen that Mr. Treharne is guilty either of gross misrepresentation or that he has been made the victim of a parti-
