

STAR DUST

MOVIE AND RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE

THE air was more or less electric in New Jersey the other day when Lupe Velez, Gary Cooper and Mrs. Cooper arrived from Hollywood on the same plane.

For news photographers thought it would be a bright idea to photograph Miss Velez and Mr. Cooper together, seeing as how they used to be sweet-hearts. Miss Velez was willing. But Mr. Cooper said "No" in unmistakable terms, and hastily departed with his social registerite wife and her mother, who had met them, for the sands of Southampton, that minor Newport.

As for Lupe, it didn't matter a whoop to her. She is on her way to South America, where they idolize her. And she's perfectly happy with Johnny, so why should she get excited over the ashes of an old romance?

Leo Carillo, who made such a hit in Grace Moore's latest picture, also arrived by plane that day. A small boy asked him for an autograph, but Carillo gave the youngster the topcoat he was carrying instead. Worth $150, so they say!

Do any of you old-timers remember Monroe Salisbury, once a mighty hero of the silent screen? He died recently in San Bernardino, Calif., at the age of fifty-nine, and lay for two days in the morgue before he was recognized.

When so many stars of the early days come to such ends as that, it's not to be wondered at that today's headliners try to save their money, and kick like fury against high taxes that take so much of what they earn.

Apparently Cary Grant is follow-

Quick, Pleasant Successful Elimination

Watch Your Kidneys!

Be Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood

YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as nature intended—fail to remove impurities that poison the system when retained.

Then you may suffer nagging back-ache, dizziness, scanty or too frequent urination, getting up at night, swollen limbs, feel nervous, miserable—all upset.

Don't delay! Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are especially for poorly functioning kidneys. They are recommended by grateful users the country over. Get them from any druggist.

DOAN'S PILLS

ing in the footsteps of Gary Cooper. He's been seen around in Washington, D. C., lately, with a little daughter of the rich to whom he was most attentive. Not a few of our male movie stars have decided that marital happiness lies outside the profession, and have taken brides from the ranks of society.

Elliott Dexter did it—remember him? And Tony Moreno. Richard Barthelmess picked him a society wife for his second attempt, and they're very happy. Lawrence Tibbett made his second trip to the altar with a blue-book representative.

On the other hand, the ladies of the film world don't seem to find happiness with social register husbands; they'd rather have some one who knows what they mean when they want to talk shop of an evening.

Bing Crosby is at Saratoga, N. Y., forgetting about pictures and having a lot of fun watching his race horses run. And his brother, Bob, and his—Bob's—band are playing one-night stands on the road, building up a reputation for themselves—and also having a lot of fun.

Pretty Margot Grahame, the English actress, stopped in New York on her way from Hollywood to England; she's going to take a brief vacation and then rush back to make more pictures.

She's quite lovely—has pale, feathery hair and enormous blue eyes, and the prettiest feet in the world. She could have had anything she wanted in New York, but what she wanted most was something that a lot of girls have—unlimited time in which to play bridge with a few old friends. She stayed up all night doing it, and was perfectly happy.

Her father and mother were theatrical people, and she was about two and a half when she started traveling with them, because they couldn't leave her at home. She went to South Africa, and grew up there; that was where she started in the theater. Then she appeared on the stage in London, and broke into pictures in England.

"The Informer" was her first American picture, and after they saw her in that, motion picture executives fell over each other to sign her up. She chose RKO, and you'll see her next in a picture with Richard Dix.

But if you saw her in any of those English releases you wouldn't recognize her now. Then, on the screen at least, she was a bit too plump and not too pretty. Now she weighs 120 pounds (she's five feet four inches tall) and is remarkably beautiful.

The sparkling air of Sweden seems to have gone to the great Garbo's head. Recently she went on a yachting party, climbed a mast, fell and sprained her ankle. But what a relief it must have been to her to be back home, where she could go out and have fun and sprain her ankle. If that had to happen, without all the fanfare such doings would have caused in Hollywood!

From the Columbia Broadcasting company comes the statement that, out of 15,000 auditions held in one week by their artists' bureau, only twelve persons were signed up. Encouraging! Makes you wonder what some of the people turned down could have been like, when you hear some of those who do land on the air.

Two well-known writers quite obviously selected Katherine Hepburn as the heroine they wanted for a novel. One is running in a popular weekly magazine, the other in a monthly; Fannie Heaslip Lea wrote one story, and Faith Baldwin wrote the other. Both stories, judging by the opening installments, would make swell pictures for Miss Hepburn.

Wonder if that was why the writers chose her as a model? Or was it because she's such a popular type just now?

Add perils of radio—young girls nowadays all seem to be trying to talk like Portland Hoffa, but the boys imitate Tom Howard.

ODDS AND ENDS . . . Clark Gable is to appear in his first musical picture, with Jeanette MacDonald as his leading woman . . . They say Josef von Sternberg is going to try to make a glamorous leading lady out of Marian Marsh . . . Looks as if the romance between pretty Helen Vinson and Fred Perry, the tennis champion, had fallen by the wayside . . . "The Irish in Us" is good entertainment, if you like James Cagney and Pat O'Brien and lots of slapstick . . . "China Seas" is good, but why don't they let Jean Harlow prove again what a grand comedienne she is?

Gypsies in most districts of Hungary must have at least one bath a month, to be taken under official control of the local authority.

Wearing the Wedding Ring

In many parts of this country during the middle of the last century, both men and women indicated their attitude toward matrimony as well as their marital status by the way they wore a ring. When on the first finger it meant they wanted to be married, on the second that they were engaged, on the third that they were married and on the fourth that they wished to remain single.—Collier's Weekly.
