

Band Members Guests at Fair

the evening before the wrestling after which the young musicians were free to enjoy the evening until they began the home trip at 10:30.

The Vernonia boys and girls, dressed in natty white uniforms were highly praised for their playing, their attractive appearance and their fine conduct. "They either made a big hit with the fair crowds," said Mr. Watts, "or else the people there were awful liars." Mr. Watts and the many Vernonia residents attending the fair that day are distinctly proud of the band, especially because it has been in existence only since February, and at that time only one member of the band had ever before played the instrument he now is using.

Twenty-seven local young people played at the fair, but 40 members of the band made the trip, including a beginning group which started work more recently.

The Vernonia Eagle office will be closed this week end from Friday evening to Tuesday morning.
