Franklin Patented a Stove

Benjamin Franklin did obtain a patent on his stove. In 1742, after his stove came into use, the governor of Pennsylvania was so pleased that he offered Franklin a patent. Franklin, however, declined because, he said, "as we enjoy great advantages from the inventions of others, we should be glad of an opportunity to serve others by any invention of ours."

Medieval Architecture in Stone

Millions of years ago nature, in Bryce Canyon, southern Utah's national park, began to make, with rain, wind, sun and frost, this giant Tower bridge. It needs but to have a moat beneath it and knights of old in the armor of the Middle Ages to be almost the perfect counterpart of a scene from the Tenth and Eleventh centuries.
