

Watertight Sand

How it happens that highway M-48 which approaches to within 40 feet of the east shore of Muskellonge lake and is three feet below lake level is not flooded with water is part of a mystery that has puzzled geologists for a long time and is now proving a source of interest to CCC workers at Camp Lake Superior. Further the north shore of Muskellonge lake is elevated between 50 and 60 feet above Lake Superior although the distance between the two bodies of water at one point is only 200 feet.

Some explanation of these phenomena may be had in the fact that when sand from the shore of Muskellonge lake is placed in a water glass and covered with water it will not allow the water to penetrate it. But why this should be true when the sand from Lake Superior, only a short distance away, is readily penetrated by water is another mystery.—Detroit News.

ITCHY PALM

By BARBARA BENEDICT
© Associated Newspapers, WNU Service.

MISS ABBY FORBES was not superstitious. That is, not very. Of course, she would never walk under a ladder when she could walk around it, and if a black cat crossed her path it gave her the horrors, and when she spilled salt she always tossed a pinch of it over her shoulder on to the stove.

No, Miss Abby was not really superstitious, but when even non-superstitious people have an itchy right palm and it continues to itch for no apparent reason despite your best efforts to ignore it—well, you just can't ignore it. Miss Abby knew that an itchy right palm meant you were going to meet some one new.

Today Miss Abby sat in her rocking chair near the dining room window scratching her itchy right palm and staring out at her flower bed and wondering. It was spring, and the flower bed was a glorious riot of color. Miss Abby was proud of that flower bed; just yesterday she had left off putting around in it, planning to spend the remainder of the week spring house-cleaning. And now this business of the itchy right palm had come up and so she had decided to postpone the house cleaning for at least a day. That morning she had spent an extra half hour primping. She had gowned herself in a spic-and-span dress of blue print and curled the unruly locks of her brown hair into little ringlets.

You see, Miss Abby was forty and she'd missed something in life. Romance. Once, to be sure, years ago, she'd kept company for awhile with Orion Pratt, but Orion had gone away and Miss Abby had stayed at home and dreamed and hoped and wished, until suddenly she found herself at forty, with an emptiness in her heart that even bright flower beds couldn't fill.

And right then a knock sounded on Miss Abby's front door. She gave a little start, even though she had expected the knock, and sat very still for a minute, conscious of the fluttering of her heart. But presently she stood up and made her way through the living room and opened the door. The person standing there was a man, a very tall and handsome and clean-looking man, with gray eyes and graying hair, and a wide, humorous mouth. "Good morning," said the man, and stepped, uninvited, inside. Abby didn't answer him, and he regarded her queerly, and then went along the hall and through the living room door. Miss Abby didn't know what to do. It was all so strange and queer and unreal. But after a moment she mustered her courage and followed him through the door. And right then her heart seemed to stop beating. A terrible coldness came over her. For, looking through the dining room into the kitchen, she could see the man gazing up at the gas meter on the wall and writing something down in a book.

A tear welled up in Miss Abby's eye, and she quickly brushed it away. She felt suddenly older than her years and very tired. She wanted to sit down and rest—and cry. Folk couldn't understand how she felt, because no one could possibly know.

The gas man came back through the dining room and stood over Abby and stared at her and there was a strange light in his eyes. Unexpectedly he said: "Aren't you Abby Forbes?" And Abby looked up at him and caught her breath, because there was something about him that fanned into flame a dying ember of memory.

"Yes," she said. "Yes, that's who I am." And the gas man threw back his head and laughed.

"I thought so." He suddenly leaned toward her and the depths of his gray eyes held something that caused Abby's heart to begin its fluttering again. "And you don't remember me. You don't remember Orion Pratt who used to keep company with you?"

Abby felt as though she were going to faint. But she didn't. She recovered and said of course she remembered him and wouldn't he sit down a minute and she'd make some tea and they'd talk of old times. So Orion Pratt sat down in the rocker and looked out at Abby's flower bed, and presently Abby brought him a cup of tea, and they talked of old times. Abby's palm began to itch again and Orion looked at it and told her that she'd better be careful of poison ivy at this time of year. He noticed, he said, that some was growing out in her flower bed. And Abby blushed and said that must be it, because he really wasn't someone new, was he? Which puzzled Orion, but he let it pass and mentioned that Abby was prettier than she'd ever been before, and that he wasn't married and—but, shucks, you can guess how it all turned out.

DOLLARS & HEALTH

The successful person is a healthy person. Don't let yourself be handicapped by sick headaches, a sluggish condition, stomach "nerves" and other dangerous signs of over-acidity.

HEARTBURN?

Its surprising how many have heart burn. Hurried eating, overeating, heavy smoking, excessive drinking all lead to heartburn. When it comes, heed the warning. Your stomach is on a strike.

TAKE MILNESIAS

Milnesia, the original milk of magnesia in wafer form, neutralizes stomach acid. Each wafer equals 4 teaspoonfuls of milk of magnesia. Thin, crunchy, mint-flavor, tasty. 20c, 35c & 60c at drug stores.

Household Questions

A mixture of one part vinegar and two parts linseed oil, applied with a soft cloth to suitcases and bags will clean and polish them.

A large piece of blotting paper placed on the closet floor will absorb moisture from wet rubbers that may be placed in closet.

Scorch on cotton or linen may be removed with soap and water. Wet the spot with water and expose to the sun for a day or longer if necessary. The scorch disappears more rapidly if the material is moistened first.

If your garden peas get too hard for serving in the regular way, cook them until tender, press through a sieve and use the pulp in soup.

Minced ham and chopped green pepper makes a tasty filling for deviled eggs.

If you want your glassware to sparkle, add a little lemon juice to the water in which it is rinsed.

Treasures Found in Tomb of Darius

A view of the tomb of Darius the Great, carved into a mountainside near Persepolis, Iran, where an expedition from the Oriental Institute of the University of Chicago is excavating. One of the expedition's finds was a stack of Sassanian silver coins. Also uncovered was a sculptured wall relief 2,425 years old.
