These children don't even think of light outdoors. There is plenty, even in the shade of this tree there is probably 1000 foot candles of light. Do you know how much light you have in your home? Probably not over 5 foot candles. Why take a chance with your children's priceless eyesight for a few cents a day?

BEAUTY PARLOR INSTALLED-Now that graduation is near, and that momentous occasion, they me expected to look their best, the eniors have installed a beauty paror in the back of the study hall. On the wall is hung conveniently, a mirror, before which the masculne half of the seniors can adjust their neckties (who wears one?) and comb their hair There the roug and lipstick can be wielded by the girls until the place takes on the imosphere of a bloody battle field. Already the grades of the seniors ave taken an alarming drop, due c the time spent admiring them elves and not studying.

Also, a gentle hint to the unortunate underclassmen. That six year old club hanging beside the nirror is not an ornament. Any unior, sophomore or rook found dmiring his or her beauty (if any) in the mirror will be vigorously inroduced to this weapon.

TRAGEDY STRIKES-

This is a tale of some little mice. These little mice lived in a big ouilding called V. H. S. At night hese little mice would frollic all over the place. They had cunning little holes and tunnels cut through the walls and in the floors. They would play tag and hide-and-seek at night when everybody had gone ome, and how they would enjoy themselves. In the daytime they visely stayed in their holes so they vouldn't frighten the girls.

However, one day tragedy struck he little colony of mice. No longer can they scamper through the halls of V. H. S. at sixty miles per hour. No longer can they run and plunge down the holes in the floor, in time escape their captors.

You see, cruel Mr. Spencer has nailed tin over their holes, and ow they are all shut up
